AMA Offers Alternative To Federal Health Plan

Organized Medicine, Fighting Compulsory Insurance, Proposes Big U. S. Department

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP).—The American Medical Association today offered organized medicine's alternative to compulsory health insurance.

The AMA plan would create a new "Federal Department of Health" headed by a doctor of medicine with Cabinet rank. The new agency would be charged with "coordination and integration of all Federal health activities" except in the armed forces.

The 12-point program includes expansion of voluntary hospital and medical care plans and "establishment in each State of a medical care authority to receive and administer funds with proper representation of medical and consumer interest."

Department Functions

The proposed Federal department would foster new medical and hospital facilities, including those for care of the aged and chronically ill; stepped-up medical and nursing education, medical research; public health education and other programs.

The AMA plan is a counter-proposal to the compulsory health insurance bills of Senator Murray (D., Mont.) and Representative Dingell (D., Mich.) now before Congress.

Announcement of the AMA plan was made by Dr. Elmer Henderson of Louisville, Ky., chairman of the AMA board of trustees. He said no steps have been taken yet to obtain congressional action.

It is likely, however, that champions for the association's program can be found on Capitol Hill. Senator Hill (D., Ala.) has expressed interest in sponsoring a similiar but more limited plan proposed by Dr. Gilson Colby Engel, president of the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

Senator Taft's Plans

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) has announced plans to sponsor a bill which would avoid compulsory insurance requirements. In the last Congress, Taft favored extension of private insurance plans and outright grants up to 200 million dollars a year for State medical aid for those unable to pay for it.

The AMA has been outspoken in its opposition to compulsory health legislation. Last December, the AMA House of Delegates voted to assess each of the association's 140,000 members $25 to finance what it described as a campaign to educate Americans on the progress of medicine.

Senator Murray termed the AMA fund "a $3,500,000 political fund" to oppose his compulsory insurance bill.

Commenting on the AMA plan, Dr. Henderson stressed promotion of a national science foundation for research, greater provision for care of the chronically diseased, and provision of "nonpolitical"

Scott Favors Home Rule In Principle

Not Committed to Any Specific Bill as Yet; Awaits Conference

By Marsnall Andrews
Post Reporter

National Republican Chairman Hugh D. Scott, jr., said yesterday he favors "in principle" home rule for the District of Columbia.

Scott told reporters he "leaned toward the principle" of District home rule but he was "not committed to any specific bill." He would decide what legislation to support, he said, after talking with local Republican leaders following his return Tuesday from a trip to West Virginia.

At a reception tendered him by District Young Republicans at the YMCA, Scott flatly denied rumors that he would resign after a few months the national Republican chairmanship he won after a bitter fight at Omaha last month.

No Intention of Quitting

He cited a report in a Minnesota newspaper that he would resign within four months and declared:

"I have not the remotest intention of resigning and that's positive."

He said that in every State whose committeemen voted against him at Omaha he found many Republicans "critical of their leaders" but was emphatic in saying he wanted no reprisals. The job of the GOP now, he declared, "is to close ranks, get together and heal the breaches; we can't win unless we're all on the same wagon."

During a recent cross-country trip, Scott said, he found "they're climbing on like mad and there are just a few die-hards left. They want to win now." He found, he continued, a "fighting determination to do something about party needs" and said he intended to "take the party to the people with complete candor and lay everything on the table."

1950 Drive Urged

"Our principal job," he declared, "is to elect a Congress in 1950."

Scott is scheduled to meet Republican leaders in the Senate and House Tuesday, he said, to talk over organization of a new policy committee. Then, on February 28, he is to address the District Young Republicans.

That organization yesterday adopted a resolution congratulating Scott on his Omaha victory and saluting him as "a forward-looking leader and booster of Young Republicans throughout the United States." The resolution also favored "progressive, constructive reform, consistent with the continuation of private busi-

Snow Forgotten

Spring Tries It Again With Balmy 68

Heigh ho! It was spring in Washington yesterday.

Midweek's snow and sleet forgotten, the temperature rose from a low of 44 degrees at 3:32 a. m. (it was 23 above, 24 hours earlier) to hover in the 60s much of the day and register a high of 68 at 3:58 p. m.

The south, southwest wind blew a leisurely 10 to 20 miles per hour, and there was laziness in every puff.

Women thumbed through seed catalogues, while brave men shivered at the thought of lawn mowers—and followed their fair ladies downtown to windowshop for Easter togs.

Someone wanted to know if those hardy perennials, the cherry blossoms, were out again. Fish jumped out of the Potomac River, and the groundhog was reported to have taken an anticipatory sniff of the air.

Of course, spring won't be officially here until March 20, and Easter not until April 17. It will be cloudy and colder today, the weatherman says, with some rain likely. But anyway, it was like spring for a day, yesterday.

Veterans Total 18,800,000, VA Tells Congress

There were 18,800,000 living United States war veterans last June 30 and the number is still increasing, the Veterans Administration advised Congress yesterday.

In its annual report for fiscal 1948, VA said its total expenditures through last June 30 were $6,896,264,628, or about one billion dollars less than was spent for veterans' aid in 1947, a record year.

The figures showed that of the living war veterans, some 14,900,000 served in World War II and that 98 per cent of all veterans were males.

The report said that through fiscal 1948, VA and its predecessors have spent a grand total of $48,728,561,681.17 for veterans' aid over the years. It said also that the Administration still is paying pension claims to the dependents of 36 deceased veterans of 1848 Mexican War. These payments totaled $22,439.73.

VA Demands Rebates on GI Tuition Fees

Land-Grant Colleges Accused by Agency of Making Overcharges

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A first-class row between the Veterans' Administration and the Nation's land-grant or nonprofit colleges led to a day-long session at VA headquarters yesterday.

The argument developed, according to some college representatives at the meeting, from demands by VA for refunds from colleges for alleged overcharges for tuition under the GI Bill of Rights educational setup.

One of the largest of these demands was for more than half a million dollars from Iowa State College, at Ames, Iowa. Other schools involved are said to include University of Minnesota and the University of Missouri, with several schools near Washington soon to be audited by VA officials.

According to some college officials VA officials demand that all Federal aid to education—such as the Morrill Act for Aid for Vocational Education, the three Bankhead-Jones Acts for extension, research, and aid to agricultural education, the Smith-Hughes Act for Aid to Agriculture and Home Economics Training, and the George-Deane Act for funds for vocational training in engineering and industrial trades—be deducted before the schools begin computing the costs of education provided to GI students. Originally, it was reported, VA also demanded that funds derived from old-time land grants to colleges be similarly deducted.

Attending yesterday's meeting with VA officials were President H. L. Donovan of the University of Kentucky, President Harold Stoke, University of Louisiana; R. A. Van Meter, president, University of Massachusetts; Blake Van Lear, Georgia Institute of Technology; Robert Stewart, Purdue University; Arthur A. Hauck, University of Maine; Robert Gordon Sproul, the University of California, and the controllers of the universities of Minnesota and Illinois.

Farm Price Drop Viewed As ERP Key

Senators Cautious In Approaching Idea Decline May Cut Cost of Aid

By David McConnell
NYHT News Service

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee indicated yesterday that administration requests for $5,580,000,000 in new funds for Marshall Plan aid in Europe may be cut if farm prices continue to fall.

Republican and Democratic committee members are cautiously approaching the question, bearing in mind that the commodity market break last week may be a forerunner of lower food prices which would materially cut the costs of aid shipments.

The Economic Cooperation Administration, which handles the program, has asserted its requests are figured on absolute minimum requirements, but officials testified last week that the estimates are based on November 30 prices.

Might Cause Crippling

The chief concern of top Republican and Democratic committee members appeared last night to be that undue optimism toward cutting the multi-billion-dollar program might result in its being crippled when it reaches the floor of the Senate and House. Tax-conscious Senators and Representatives, it was explained, are searching for ways to cut costs to avoid imposing the four billion dollars in new levies requested by President Truman.

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said that "it would be entirely possible" to cut the overall ECA request in the event of any "radical decline in prices." Senator Connally cautioned that Congress had ample time to inspect the figures in relation to current prices. He explained that the ECA requests first must be authorized by his committee and approved by Congress. Next the Senate and House Appropriations Committees would take up the bill to provide the actual funds.

To Scrutinize Relation

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, Republican foreign policy leader in the Senate, said that requirements for the aid program would boil down to a "question of fact." While reaffirming that he is "unalterably opposed" to any arbitrary cuts in ECA requests, the Michigan Senator indicated that Republicans would scrutinize the relation of prices to the purchasing power of the $5,580,000,000 ECA program before backing the measure.

An influential member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Senator Richard B. Russell (D. Ga.) announced yesterday that he would vote to cut the ECA funds if prices continue to fall. Russell asserted that falling prices would just mean for ECA "that there was more money to go around." He asserted that in the event of a cut he would favor insertion of an "escaltor" clause in the appropriation bill to provide for speedier spending should prices surge upward while Congress was not in session.

Two Measures Hold Spotlight

Elsewhere on the congressional front this week hearings on the Administration-sponsored bill to abolish the Taft-Hartley labor law and efforts to change the Senate's rules so filibusters can be curbed held the spotlight in that chamber. None but routine business was ex-

Panic Turns to Anger

Six Killed in Ecuador as Mob Avenges 'Martian' Radio Hoax

Quito, Ecuador, Feb. 13 (AP).—A mob took bloody vengeance here last night for panic caused by an Orson Welles-type radio dramatization of an "invasion from Mars."

The mob attacked and burned the building of the newspaper El Commercio, which housed the radio station, killing at least six persons and injuring 15.

Army troops had to use tanks and tear gas to restore order.

The newspaper building and equipment and the radio station were wrecked. Loss was estimated at more than $350,000. Several persons were reported under arrest.

The populace had been terrified by a radio dramatization of H. G. Wells' fantastic novel, "The War of Worlds," localized to describe strange creatures from Mars landing nearby and heading for Quito.

It was carried out much after the fashion of Orson Welles' famed "Martian invasion' broadcast in 1938 which caused panic in some parts of the United States.

Hysteria drove thousands of persons into the streets before the program directors learned how much consternation they had caused. Frantically they appealed to the people to be calm, and assured them it was all fictional.

When the people finally were convinced, they swept upon the El Commercio building, Ecuador's principal newspaper, showering it with stones and driving occupants to the upper floors.

Groups set fire to the building at various points, and some occupants leaped from third-story windows.

Police aid was slow to rally because police units had been sent to nearby Cotocallao, scene of the "invasion," to investigate.

Carmona Far In Lead as Portugal Votes

Salazar's Candidate Has Been President Of Nation Since 1926

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 13 (AP).—First returns in Portugal's presidential election today gave an overwhelming margin to President Antonio Oscar de Fragosa Carmona.

Victory was expected for the 79-year-old candidate supported by Premier Antonio de Oliveira de Salazar, the real political power in the country. Carmona has been President since 1926.

It was the first contested presidential election in 22 years, although the opposite candidate made a last-minute attempt to withdraw.

Shortly before the polls opened the Supreme Court of Justice ruled invalid the withdrawal petition offered by Maj. Gen. Jose Norton de Mattos, the 82-year-old candidate of the Democratic and Liberal Parties. The court ruled that its power was limited merely to recognizing the eligibility of candidates and that such eligibility "cannot be renounced."

For a couple of weeks during the campaign Norton de Mattos caught the public's fancy with his slogan "Vote for freedom and liberty." Then he ran into a government charge that Communists were backing him.

His supporters contended the Communists had given him a Judas kiss. Norton de Mattos has a long anti-Communist record.

Norton de Mattos announced his intention to withdraw Friday night. He claimed the government had given no guarantee of a fair election and demanded a secret ballot, examination of voters' list by both sides and a hand in the counting of the votes.

Salazar promised a fair election and asked the War Ministry to suspend military maneuvers scheduled for today.

Gen. Spaatz, Flown Here, Denies It's Recall to Duty

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 13 (AP).—Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, retired chief of the United States Air Force, said today he believes he is being recalled to active duty.

The general, en route to Washington in an Army B-25 which was sent to Dallas for him Saturday night, said he had not been informed of the nature of the hurried trip.

Spaatz said he thought the same might be in store for him as was the case of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, retired Chief of Staff whom President Truman recalled for special duty last week.

[After his arrival here last night, Spaatz described as "without any foundation at all" reports that he is being recalled to active duty.

[Spokesmen for the Air Force and for Secretary of Defense Forrestal also said they know of no plan to recall Spaatz, who retired last August.]

Report of U. S. Policy Shift in Japan Denied

Refutation of Change If War Comes Credited To MacArthur Staff

Tokyo, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—A high occupation official reportedly moved today to allay fears that Japan will be left holding the bag in the event of war between Russia and the United States.

The Kyodo News Agency distributed a story quoting an unnamed official in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters as saying occupation policy had not changed.

The story came on the heels of reports by American correspondents in Tokyo that the United States was reconsidering her strategic position in Asia and her obligations to Japan.

Publication Approved

Kyodo editors advised their Japanese clients that MacArthur's headquarters had approved publication of the story, denying reports by American newsmen.

The statement practically accused the American correspondents of betraying their country and did accuse them of playing into the hands of the Communists.

American newsmen, however, were still reluctant to reveal the source of their highly controversial stories. They maintained the source was "authoritative" and one who had full knowledge of American plans.

Asked About Purpose

The Kyodo denial pointed out there had been no indication of any change in United States policy, and asked if the originators of the reports had sought to destroy good-will between the United States and Japan.

The United Press asked MacArthur's public information office two days ago for comment on the original story, which said the United States was prepared to withdraw from Japan in the event of war with Russia. A spokesman today indicated there would be no official reaction.

Iran Given Protest By Russian Envoy

London, Feb. 13 (AP).—A Tass dispatch said tonight the Soviet Ambassador to Tehran has protested allegations made in the Iranian Parliament that Russia has been giving support to the Iranian People's (Tudeh) Party.

The dispatch said Ivan Sadchikov, the Ambassador, had protested regarding statements he said were read to Parliament by a government official in connection with the wounding of the Shah February 4.

The Ambassador called the allegations by the official a "provocative act against the Soviet Union and calculated, by worsening Soviet-Iranian relations, to gratify certain foreign circles."

Hungarians Face Treaty Protest by U. S., Britain

Mindszenty Case Held Violation of Peace Pact; Soviet Indicates Opposition

By Robert Manning

Lake Success, N. Y., Feb. 13 (U.P.).—The United States and Britain are preparing formal charges against Hungary alleging that the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty violates clauses of the Hungarian peace treaty, informed sources said today.

Official sources said the two powers would demand an American-British-Russian meeting, either in Budapest, London or Washington, to deal with the case.

Such a procedure still would leave the way open for the West to bring the Mindszenty case into the United Nations if they desire.

Provisions of Treaty

The Big Three peace treaty with Hungary contains two clauses under which the Budapest government bound itself to respect the civil, political and religious rights of its citizens. There are two other paragraphs providing for Big Three consultations in the event any treaty clauses are violated, or any of the Big Three powers alleges that such is the case.

The decision to use the peace treaty machinery indicated that Washington and London had ruled out, at least temporarily, the idea of laying the Mindszenty affair before the U. N. Security Council or the General Assembly, which convenes here in April.

Soviet Opposition Indicated

Hungary said yesterday it would be glad to defend its position before the U. N.

The Russians already have indicated here that they would fight all attempted retaliation against Hungary as an attempt by the West to interfere in that country's internal affairs.

Under terms of the peace treaty, there was little the West could do but fling charges unless Russia was willing to join them in some positive action.

Break With Hungary Doubted by Officials

By Coleman B. Jones
NYHT News Service

Chances of a break in diplomatic relations with the Soviet-satellite government of Hungary were minimized in responsible circles here yesterday as an attitude of deliberation in dealing with the diplomatic conflict which has followed the Mindszenty trial was increasingly emphasized.

State Department officials made it clear they did not expect Selden Chapin, the United States Minister, to show undue haste in preparing for his departure from Budapest in response to the order cabled to him yesterday to come to Washington for "consultation."

The order was sent after the Hungarian government had declared him persona non grata and

French Minister Of Justice, Target Of Critics, Resigns

Paris, Feb. 13 (NYHT).—Andre Marie, minister of justice under intense criticism of both Communists and De Gaullists, resigned today for reasons of health. He suffers from serious lung diseases, in part a result of his detention in German prison camps.

He will be succeeded by Robert LeCourt, head of the center Popular Republican Movement (MRP) in parliament.

It has been charged the minister of justice was more than sympathetic to a firm of contractors who did work for Vichy and for the Germans.

Navy Pilot Dies As Plane Crashes In Yard of Home

Sewell, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP).—A naval fighter plane on a high altitude training flight dived into the front yard of a home today, killing the pilot as it ripped to pieces.

State police said Franklin F. Gauer was just coming out of his house when the plane crashed 20 feet away and splashed him with mud as it disintegrated. The ship tore a big hole in the yard. No one in the house was hurt.

Name of the pilot was withheld until the next of kin is notified.

Fight Over Prowess

2 Veterans of War II Sought In Death of 1918 Soldier, 48

A fight between a World War I veteran and two younger veterans of the last war, over who were better soldiers, resulted yesterday in the death of the older man.

Alfred Potter, 48, of no fixed address, died in Mt. Alto Hospital of a fractured skull suffered January 29 in a fight outside the Royal Tavern, 1836 Columbia rd. nw., according to police. Police immediately rebroadcast a lookout for two unidentified men sought as his assailants.

Police report the argument started inside the tavern and continued outside until Potter was knocked unconscious by a blow on the head with an unknown instrument.

Identified by papers he carried as a War I veteran, Potter was taken to Mt. Alto Veterans Hospital and never regained consciousness, said Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner. The assailants disappeared.

A lookout sent out by police at that time described them as (1) about 27, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 180-190 pounds, wearing a gray tweed suit and carrying a topcoat, and (2), 35-40, 185 pounds, bald, blue eyes, false teeth, wearing a dark-striped suit. Both were occasional customers at the tavern but have not been seen since, police said.

Police were unable to learn anything about Potter except that he has a brother, Raymond F. Potter, living at 13 23rd ave., Tampa, Fla. They asked Tampa police to notify him.

AEC-Services Work Out Plan

New Accord Makes A-Bombs Ready for Instant Military Use

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

New procedures have been worked out between field forces of the Atomic Energy Commission and national military establishment which give assurance that A-bombs from the AEC stockpile will be instantly available in an emergency.

The new system has been successfully tested with the result that the once crucial issue of divided authority—resulting from civilian custody of the weapon—has largely evaporated.

Barely six months ago, the controversy between military and non-military men in the Government over possession of the A-bomb stockpile was so intense it had to be carried to President Truman for settlement. He ruled that custody should remain with the AEC and directed that "very close cooperation between the civilian commission and the military establishment" must be obtained.

After the White House decision was handed down, the Federation of American Scientists expressed fear that military leaders had not given up their fight, but could be expected to renew it.

The Washington Post can report today, however, that military officials have accepted the President's decision loyally. Some men in uniform still oppose civilian control of the A-bomb stockpile as a matter of principle, but are no longer pressing the question in the light of the excellent cooperation which all report has been achieved.

The argument advanced last year by defense chiefs was this:

Our basic military strategy rests on the premise that we will start no war, but in case of attack will launch an instant and terrible counterattack. The threat of such retaliation—as long as we have the A-bomb and means of dropping it on an enemy—is our best defense. No one would be likely to start a war and invite such an attack.

We might be assaulted, however, if an enemy felt it could strike such a devasting initial blow that our Government would be paralyzed, and through failure of command channels, A-bombs could not be loaded aboard our strategic bombers and sped toward their targets.

The A-bomb stockpile, therefore, should be under control of the airmen who would have to use them, just as are other bombs today.

Advocates of continued non-military control of the stockpile argued:

The A-bomb is not just another

Scientists Say House Probers Tried Condon 'by Newspaper'

By the United Press

Six leading scientists said yesterday that House Un-American Activities Committee charges against the atomic scientist Dr. Edward U. Condon resulted in a "trial by newspaper" which must not be repeated.

In a public statement addressed through Scientific American magazine, to Vice President Barkley and House Speaker Rayburn, they urged Congress to set up a "minimum charter of rights" to protect persons under congressional investigation.

The scientists based their conclusions on a study of the way in which the Condon episode was handled by nine New York City newspapers from March 1 to October 31, 1948. They said the papers "constitute the principal source of news for nearly one-tenth of the United States population."

They decided to undertake the survey, they said, "in view of the peril of our civil liberties represented in this extra-legal institution of trial by newspapers."

The scientists were the Nobel Prize Winner Harold C. Urey of Chicago University's Institute of Nuclear Research, Harrison Brown of Chicago University, Charles Lauritsen of California Institute of Technology, Phillip M. Morse of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, George B. Pegram of Columbia University, and John C. Warner of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

At Least 28 Die As Fast Spanish Train Is Wrecked

Tarragona, Spain, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—At least 28 persons, including an American tentatively identified as Philip Lierman of New York City, were killed early today when a Barcelona-Madrid night express train jumped the tracks near here.

Rescue squads were still seeking bodies in the wreckage tonight. But police, who had estimated 48 killed, indicated that this figure was too high.

Forty injured were on the danger list and many suffered less serious injuries.

The entire train left the tracks and the first three cars plunged 120 feet into a dry river bed.

New Snow Disaster Battled by Army

By The Associated Press

The Army attacked a new snow disaster area in North Dakota today as the national weather picture presented a kaleidoscope of snow, rain and mild temperature.

In the stricken West, the Army's Operation Snowbound started digging itself out of the worst 24 hours it had in two weeks.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, commanding the relief operation, said progress was cut 50 per cent in some parts of the disaster area and came to a complete halt in others. He said Saturday was the worst day since February 2. At Valentine, Nebr., 80 per cent of the equipment was driven off the road by snow and temperatures ranging to 19 below zero.

Fifth Army headquarters in Chicago, acting on an appeal from Gov. Fred G. Aandahl of North Dakota, declared the counties of Bowman, Hettinger, Adams, Grant and Sioux in the southwestern part of the State as Disaster Area No. 5.

This summary of the situation appeared from Army and United States Weather Bureau reports:

Nebraska — 40-mile-an-hour winds hampered ground and aerial operations with blizzard conditions in the southwest and south-central part of the State.

South Dakota—Cloudy, cold weather with light snow and a ground blizzard resulting from high winds also cut operations.

Wyoming—A bulldozer opened United States Highway 30 long enough to permit eight buses to evacuate passengers from three trains stalled at Rawlins and Hanna. Winds of 35 miles an hour also created ground blizzard conditions, with some light snow.

Light snow was general over Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, northern Missouri, northern Oklahoma, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico. A small tornado which did little damage dipped into Stillwater, Okla.

Elsewhere this was the situation:

Pacific Coast—Below-normal temperatures with Burbank reporting 34, San Francisco 39. Seattle had 20 and Ellensburg, Wash., recorded 13 below. Little or no precipitation was reported.

Midwest—Heavy rains throughout Illinois, Indiana and Michigan stopped Sunday morning, with rain and snow forecast for later. The rain extended to the Ohio Valley.

East—Temperatures were on the warm side with nothing lower than 30 above. Rain and snow were lacking.

South—Miami reported a high of 74 with the section's low of 45 coming from Atlanta. The section was mostly dry.

Brannan Urges Global Action On Surpluses

By the United Press

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan called yesterday for Government action on a global front to help solve the "serious problem" of United States farm surpluses that lies ahead.

He recommended action along the lines of President Truman's world cooperation pan.

The recovery of world agriculture inevitably would mean a piling up of farm surpluses unless there is a growth of world purchasing power, Brannan told President Truman in his annual report.

Opposing Government production controls as a cure for United States surpluses, he said the U. S. must help the world earn the purchasing power to buy more goods. The only way to do that, he added, is to help foreign lands increase their own production.

The United States, said Brannan, must take "international action" to (1) promote a rise in world production of all goods, and (2) see that a booming trade develops unhampered by the "strait-jacket of economic nationalism."

On the first point, he made clear that he was thinking along the lines of Mr. Truman's new world cooperation plan. He said this country should provide underdeveloped countries with the technical assistance, the know-how, and the industrial equipment needed to raise their production of industrial and farm goods.

Brannan said the emphasis now focused on Europe gradually will shift to the Orient. In Europe, he said, the United States foreign aid program—which is subsidizing record high American farm exports—is helping an industrialized area back on its feet to provide "a self-supporting market" for American farm products.

Paradoxically, he went on, the sending of industrial equipment to China and India to help them increase their food and farm output will help solve this country's farm surplus problem in the long run.

"Enhanced farm output would provide Oriental countries with buying power," he said. "This new farm production would not be highly competitive with American farm production, since it would rest on different natural advantages. Consumed for the most part in the countries of its origin, but exported to some extent as payment for necessary imports, it would mean better trade for all the world."

Two Senators Predict Control Of CCC Will Go to Brannan

By The Associated Press

A Senator of each major party yesterday predicted Congress will give Secretary of Agriculture Brannan direct control of the Commodity Credit Corporation with its $4,750,000,000 farm price support fund.

The CCC now is administered by a board. Senator Young (R., N. Dak.) said Brannan is responsible in the end and should run it. Both he and Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee said in separate interviews that they expect approval of the change.

Six Democrats and three Republicans in the Senate are backing such a bill. Thomas said hearings will start this week or next.

The Secretary of Agriculture held control prior to action of the Eightieth Congress. Brannan asks a series of changes, which are covered in the bill.

The agency makes crop-supporting loans. It also has been used for most of the food purchases for overseas relief and occupation areas.

Brannan asked these changes:

1. "Supervision and direction" by the Secretary of Agriculture.

2. The right to swap surplus farm products with foreign nations for strategic scarce materials such as tin needed for national defense.

Opposes Outside Directors

3. Elimination of outside directors for the corporation. At present Brannan serves as one of five directors and can name another but the majority of three are named by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Brannan asked to increase the board to 7 or 11 employes with the Secretary serving as chairman.

4. Right of the corporation to buy and sell storage facilities for farm crops and products upon which it makes loans or purchases. This could include elevators and warehouses.

U. S. Warned of 10 Million More Young Students by 1959

NYHT News Service

A Nation already harassed with the problem of crowded schools was warned yesterday by the Census Bureau that ten years from now the country's elementary and high school population will have jumped 10 million students.

The Census Bureau, which predicts that the over-all United States population will increase 12 million to an all-time high of 155,750,000 persons by 1955, estimates that the next ten years will see demands for a 40 per cent increase in school facilities. The enrollment peak is expected in the 1957-1960 period the bureau reports.

The bureau said that in 1947 there were an estimated 24,500,000 children enrolled in elementary and high schools, public and private. On the basis of available population figures, the bureau estimated that the school population will go to better than 34 million by 1958.

Estimates Are Outlined

The census experts figure it this way. In elementary schools an increase is expected each year in enrollments until a peak is reached in 1957. By then students in the first grades will reach 26,500,000, a climb over 1947 figures of more than 8 million students.

"The present rise in elementary school enrollment has been foreshadowed by the relatively larger annual number of births during the early forties than during the depression thirties," the bureau said.

High school enrollments are expected to fall off slightly until 1951, and then to leap rapidly until 1960, when an increase of two million students over the 1947 enrollments should push the total to a high of eight million, the bureau reported.

Aged Also to Increase

The Census Bureau expects the school age population to increase at a far more rapid rate than the over-all total of United States residents. Running second in age groups will be those persons 65-years-old and over. The aged are expected to increase in numbers by about 19 per cent between 1947 and 1955, according to the bureau. In 1947, persons 65 and over totaled 10,660,000 while by 1955 the age group class is expected to increase in numbers to 12,682,000.

The bureau also said the "long-time trend in the median population will be at least 30 years and seven months old, the bureau reports.

Foes Reported Plotting Racial Snag for Public Housing

By The Associated Press

Foes of public housing may try to kill the Administration's long-range housing program by urging an antisegregation clause, it became known yesterday.

Such a move probably would stir up a bitter floor fight that would delay or doom action on housing. But housing supporters, including both Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans, are expected to unite against such a maneuver and are confident they can beat it.

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), chairman of a Senate Banking Subcommittee on Housing, said he knew of no such plan, but conceded it would just about wreck the bill's chances.

"Such a provision would be fatal," he said. "I can't conceive of anyone who really wants public housing taking such a step."

The Administration bill provides for local authorities to operate the Federal housing projects under their own State and local laws. Therefore, Sparkman said, a Federal anti-segregation provision would not be workable.

Senate Banking Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) and Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) both members of the housing subcommittee, cautioned that housing is no place to fight out civil rights issues.

The Administration measure calls for building 1,050,000 federally subsidized housing units over 7 years, as well as a $1,500,000, slum clearance program and rural housing. The subcommittee is expected to trim the total number of authorized public housing units to perhaps 700,000 or 800,000. That figure would be a form of compromise with a bill sponsored by 14 Republican Senators calling for 600,000.

The former Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, which twice passed the Senate but was pigeonholed in the House, called for only 500,000.

Martin House GOP Publicity Head

House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts, yesterday named himself and eight colleagues to serve as a publicity committee for House Republicans.

The GOP Policy Committee authorized Martin to take that action earlier this month, in an effort to give the public a complete picture of what Republican representatives are doing, and thinking of doing.

While the policy group did not say so officially, members said one objective of the new group is to offset the "bad publicity" given the GOP-dominated Eightieth Congress during the 1948 presidential campaign.

Martin will head the publicity committee. Others on it are Representatives Leonard W. Hall, New York; Auchincloss, New Jersey; Halleck, Indiana; Brown, Ohio; Ellsworth, Oregon; Case, South Dakota; Jensen, Iowa, and Boggs, Delaware.

Martin said additional members may be named later.

Israeli Assembly Is Facing Rebuff

By Kenneth Bilby

Tel Aviv, Feb. 13 (NYHT).—In the face of a sharp diplomatic rebuff from several Western powers, including the United States, the Israeli government went ahead today with preparations for the first formal meeting in Jerusalem of the new constituent assembly.

When the assembly convenes Monday in Jerusalem's Jewish Agency building, representatives of the United States, Britain and France will be absent from the diplomatic gallery. They have refused formal invitations because of concern over Jerusalem's proposed international status.

The Israeli decision to hold the first assembly gathering in Jerusalem has caused a sharp East-West split. Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia will have representatives in the diplomatic gallery despite opposition of the United Nations Conciliation Commission which fears the meeting will compromise its effort to set up an interpational regime.

[The Associated Press reported from Jerusalem that Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion had served notice Israel will opose the internationalizing of the city. He declared Jerusalem will remain a Jewish city.—Editor's note.]

Government sources insisted the meeting was scheduled in Jerusalem purely because of Israel's historical association with the Holy City. They insisted no intent had existed to use the assembly as a weapon to strengthen annexation plans.

"This is the first Israeli parliament in 2000 years and public opinion would have demanded that it be open in Jerusalem," one government official said.

Jerusalem's Jewish sections completed plans for the biggest celebration in recent years. The meeting hall has been enlarged to make room for 400 persons, including 120 members of the assembly.

The celebration will continue until Thursday, when the assembly will adjourn and move to Tel Aviv.

Monday has been designated as Arbor Day, a new national holiday, and Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion will plant a tree in Jerusalem's suburbs in memory of those killed in the fight for the Holy City.

Armistice Prospects Are Declared Brighter

Rhodes, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—United Nations officials said tonight that prospects for an agreement between Israel and Egypt were brighter as their negotiations for an armistice entered the second month.

They said Israeli Chief Delegate Walter Eytan had indicated he was ready to make concessions which would help Palestine Mediator Ralph J. Bunche toward a compromise.

Booklet Issued

Military Out To Rule U. S., Council Says

By The Associated Press

A report of the National Council Against Conscription yesterday accused the armed services of campaigning for military control of United States policies.

The council said its 64-page booklet describing "a marked trend toward military control over American life and institutions" was issued by 18 prominent persons.

Among this group the council listed Albert Einstein, Louis Bromfield, Pearl Buck, Chancellor Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford University, and Chancellor William P. Tolley of Syracuse University.

The booklet said:

"Never before in American history has the military establishment had so much money to spend, so many officers and ex-officers in important civilian Government posts, so much influence in the formulation of national policy, or such an ambitious publicity department as it does today."

Millions are being spent on publicity and propaganda to reverse "traditional civilian control" of policy, the report said.

It said concentrated production of military materiel means less production of consumer goods, and added:

"Those consumer goods that are produced are in greater demand; the prices rise, and we have inflation."

Citing figures on the number engaged in publicity and public relations, the report said that in most instances the aim of the armed services is "one of helping the military establishment in its effort to get desired legislation through Congress."

The report named many former top-ranking military and naval leaders in high governmental posts.

The report attacked the Draft Act, saying it would not have become law without "an inspired war scare."

It also charged the military agencies "are steadily increasing their beachhead in educational institutions" through reserve officer training, scientific research and other programs.

It said the armed services' plans also envision draft of women, control of "industry as well as labor," and penetration of the Boy Scouts of America.

"The major goal of the Army," the report said, "and in a sense the climax of their militarization program, is . . . universal military training."

Canadian Official Leaves, 'Definitely Satisfied' by Talks

By the United Press

Canadian Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent left by train for Ottawa yesterday after discussing United States-Canadian problems during a two-day visit to Washington.

St. Laurent told reporters at the station that he was "very definitely satisfied" by his talks with President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson.

The Prime Minister met with the President and Acheson at Blair House Saturday and conferred again with the secretary at a luncheon meeting yesterday.

St. Laurent took the occasion to deny reports that "high-level" talks are under way on a proposal to ring the North American continent with a sensitive radar screen capable of detecting possible hostile aircraft from 150 to 300 miles away.

He said there had been "studies" by military planners, but he added that the cost would be much more than Canada could bear.

Although he said he did not know the identities of the radar screen planners, he indicated the "studies" were jointly discussed by Canadian and American defense strategists.

He said Mr. Truman "saw my point of view" regarding the desirability of developing the St. Lawrence River as both a seaway and a hydroelectric power project.

A Catholic, he attended high mass at St. Matthew's Cathedral yesterday morning.

Earlier plans for him to fly home were canceled because of "very dangerous" flying conditions in the vicinity of the Canadian capital.

A House Armed Services Subcommittee authorized the Air Force to spend 161 million dollars as its share of the radar network on Saturday. Before acting, it heard warnings that the present air alarm system is almost useless.

Under the proposed plan, Canada would pay its full share to construct and operate the radar chain.

Gen. Gaither to Leave Trieste Post in June

Trieste, Feb. 13 (AP).—Gen. Ridgely Gaither of Harwood, Md., deputy commander of Trieste United States troops, will leave his command in June, it was announced today.

Gaither also is general director of civil affairs of the Allied Military Government in the Trieste free territory. He has been assigned to the Eighty-second Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., the announcement said. Brig. Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman, now deputy commander of the staff college at Norfolk, Va., will succeed Gaither as deputy commander.

Reds' Captives Put at 250,000

Berlin, Feb. 13 (AP).—German anti-Communists charged today the Russians have thrown approximately 250,000 Germans into concentration camps since the war. More than 100,000 have died, they declared.

The statistics were announced by the "Fighting Group Against Inhumanity," which has a bureau to trace persons reported missing in the Russian zone of Germany and to aid persons who escape from Soviet confinement.

At the same time, American authorities here said that during January about 1500 Russian zone Germans had arrived in western Berlin, claiming they were refugees from the Communists.

The "inhumanity" bureau said its statistics, obtained from former camp inmates, established that the Russians and their German Communist allies had operated 16 concentration camps in eastern Germany.

These were said to have been reduced now to two major camps—Buchenwald and Sachsenhausen. Both were former Nazi concentration camps.

Experts Say U.S. May Not Have Single Assembled Atom Bomb

By the United Press

People demanding to know how many atomic bombs this country has "stockpiled" are ignoring the strong possibility that not one single assembled atomic weapon is in existence, atomic experts said yesterday.

These experts have no doubt that the United States could deliver a tremendous atomic counterblow in a hurry if any aggressor should attack. But they believe the very nature of an atomic bomb makes it unsafe to build up a stockpile of completed weapons.

Stores of Bomb Parts

Instead, they think, this country's atomic arsenal consists of separate stores of intricate bomb parts and fissionable "charges" of plutonium and uranium 235.

How many atomic bombs could be assembled from these stores, and how fast, is the real secret. And President Truman made it very plain last week that the figures will remain secret.

He firmly rejected a suggestion of Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, that the Government "consider" telling the world how many bombs the United States is prepared to hurl immediately at any country that starts a war.

Backed by Truman

Backing up the stand taken by the United States Atomic Energy Commission from the start, Mr. Truman said the size of the atomic stockpile is not a matter for public discussion.

Neither Mr. Truman nor the commission has ever said that there are any completed bombs in storage.

In fact, the commission usually takes great pains in its public reports to refer to "production of fissionable materials" rather than to "production of atomic bombs."

Its recent semiannual report to Congress, while deliberately avoiding the question of completed bombs on hand, said that production of fissionable materials and bomb parts had been stepped up.

Norway to Go Slow on Pact, Lange Says

London, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange arrived in London today for conferences on the North Atlantic pact but warned that Norway "will make haste slowly."

Diplomatic circles here and in Scandinavia hinted that Lange now is less enthusiastic about the proposed Atlantic pact than when he left for Washington. They suggested he might be swinging back to the idea of a Scandinavian alliance.

Lange said only that Norway still was approaching the whole problem gingerly.

Lange, fresh from a series of talks in Washington, will confer Monday with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Only after the talks, said Lange, will he decide what course to recommend to his government, which is under Russian pressure to keep out of the North Atlantic alliance.

Bevin, who has been in constant contact with all the Scandinavian countries, extended his talks Monday to include Turkey, the other European flank of any anti-Communist lineup.

After talking with Lange, Bevin will receive Turkish Foreign Minister Necmeddin Sadak. Sadak already has ruled out the possibility of Turkey's joining the Atlantic pact but has hinted at a possible Mediterranean alliance linked with it.

Meanwhile British authorities temporarily abandoned hope of getting Eire to join the Atlantic pact.

Eire's Foreign Minister Sean MacBride made clear in an interview today, that Eire was not ready to join such a pact until Britain agrees to a union of Northern and Southern Ireland.

This idea was rejected summarily in London. British quarters indignantly replied that they will not "sell Northern Ireland down the river."

Non-Red Affidavits Drop During January

The National Labor Relations Board reported yesterday the number of labor union officials signing non-Communist affidavits had declined 9272 between January 1 and February 1.

The drop was principally among local union officials, the board said. It reported that 178 national unions are in compliance with the Taft-Hartley law's requirements that their officers forswear communism. This total includes 96 AFL, 51 independent and 31 CIO unions.

Ship on Way

Reds Agree To Discuss China Ports

Shanghai (Monday), Feb. 14 (U.P.).—The Communist high command has agreed to a maritime conference to discuss reopening of shipping between Red-occupied ports and Nationalist China, the Communist radio said early today.

One ship, the Greater Shanghai, flying the British flag, already is en route to Communist-held Chinwanto with a load of flour to be bartered for coal.

The broadcast followed the departure on Sunday of a second unofficial Nationalist peace delegation to Peiping.

The delegation was headed by Chinese delegate to the league of Nations.

At the same time a Communist spokesman rejected any possibility of United Nations intervention in China and again accused the government of preparing for war while "feigning" an American-sponsored peace movement.

The Red spokesman commented on a proposal by Australian Foreign Minister Herbert Evatt that the Chinese dispute be laid before the U. N. and on Nationalist Premier Sun Fo's acceptance of the proposal.

The spokesman called Evatt's proposal an "insult to the Chinese people."

'Ike' Resumes Action Today

By the United Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander in Europe during the war, swings into action today as special adviser to President Truman and presiding officer over the strategy-making Joint Chiefs of Staff.

On leave from his post as president of Columbia University, he reports at the Pentagon for a seven or eight weeks' tour of duty that will give him a voice in defense matters second only to that of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal.

Among his other jobs, Eisenhower will help prepare recommendations as to the amount of military aid the United States should promise other members of the proposed North Atlantic defense pact. Unofficial estimates of the arms program have ranged from one billion dollars to two billion dollars.

Holland Expected to Accept U. N. Resolution on Indonesia

The Hague, Feb. 13 (AP).—Qualified acceptance of the United Nations Security Council's Indonesian resolution of January 28 is expected to be announced by the government to Parliament Wednesday, well-informed sources said tonight.

The informants say the declaration will be made by J. H. Van Maarseveen, minister of overseas territories.

The Security Council resolution called for setting up an interim federal regime in Indonesia by March 15, elections for a constituent assembly by October 1, and complete transfer of sovereignty from the Netherlands to a United States of Indonesia by July 1, 1950. The resolution also authorized the U. N. Commission for Indonesia to recommend the withdrawal of Dutch troops from Republican territory as it deemed necessary.

The informants said the government would accept the resolution in principle but propose amendments.

The Dutch policy was understood to provide for the release of interned Republican leaders, which the U. N. resolution demanded be done immediately, and their return to Java.

Wallace Will Reveal Progressives' Budget

The Progressive Party's national committee yesterday finished work on its proposed substitute for President Truman's budget.

It will be made public at a news conference today by the Progressives' 1948 presidential candidate, Henry A. Wallace, who attended the session.

BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR
Britain has long been the world's greatest customer, and has led the way in the export of manufactured products. By initiative in modern research, and from experience of commerce with other nations, her industrial production has become greater and more varied than ever in history.
Renowned for the quality of her work, Britain has applied new technique to her famous industries. By enterprise in fresh markets she has achieved record deliveries, and export production still expands. To keep in touch with these developments great numbers of the world's principal buyers are making visits to Britain.
Every year, from over 100 countries, trade buyers gather at the British Industries Fair. The Chamber of Commerce in Birmingham, and manufacturers from every part of Britain, join with the British Government to welcome them.
At BIF 1949, from 2–13 May, three thousand exhibitors will display the latest developments in thirty groups of allied trades. The leading men of international commerce are invited to attend the world's greatest assembly of national products.

Anathema Possible On Cardinal's Foes

Vatican City, Feb. 13 (AP).—Vatican circles said today anathema—most awesome form of excommunication in the Roman Catholic Church—conceivably may be invoked against the foes of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty at Monday's extraordinary papal consistory.

Spokesmen said they do not expect the invocation of anathema—but that it should not be ruled out as impossible. The Vatican has not disclosed its plans.

In ancient days anathema meant extermination. Under modern church law it is a grim ritual in which the person who has incurred the wrath of the Roman Catholic Church is excommunicated and condemned to "eternal fire with Satan" to save his soul on Judgment Day.

Excommunicated Now

The church already has excommunicated all those who had a part in the arrest, trial or conviction of Cardinal Mindszenty.

The secret consistory, called by Pope Pius XII in connection with the Hungarian government's trial of Cardinal Mindszenty, will open at 9:30 a. m. (3:30 a. m. EST).

Only the Pope, the cardinals in Rome and any other princes of the church who may arrive, will attend the session in the closed Consistorial hall.

All 21 Italian cardinals are expected to attend. Among the arrivals outside of Rome were Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, Archbishop of Palermo, and Elia Cardinal Della Costa, Archbishop of Florence.

The Pope may, and probably will, ask for the cardinals' opinions, informants said. And it is then that the possibility of invoking anathema could arise.

The consistory is considered here to be without parallel. Vatican spokesmen said they recall no similar one, nor similar circumstances impelling one. Never before has a prince of the church been jailed, tried and sentenced while wearing the purple of the Sacred College of Cardinals.

The nearest parallel, they said, was the arraignment in Westminster Hall June 17, 1535, of John Fisher, Bishop of Rochester, England, on treason charges after he had been named a cardinal.

The cardinal-designate already was under sentence of life imprisonment in the Tower of London for opposing the desire of Henry VIII to marry Anne Boleyn and separate the Church of England from vatical authority. He was beheaded June 22, 1535, and canonized as a saint 400 years later.

Another weapon the church has used, and might again, is the interdict.

An interdict is defined as a sentence by a competent ecclesiastical authority forbidding all celebration of public worship, the administration of some sacraments and ecclesiastical burial.

By this penalty, the church seeks to punish a population or group for the fault of some of its members who could not be reached separately.

Interdiction in ancient times was used against nations—against Scotland in 1181 by Pope Alexander III, against France in 1200 and against England in 1209 by Pope Innocent III.

Recall Asked By Hungary

ACCUSED—Lieut. Col. Peter C. Kopczak (above) is the latest American attache to be declared persona non grata by Hungary. The Communist government there told the U. S. to remove the former West Point football star before he is ordered out for alleged "clumsy behavior"

Andrew Sik had received a threatening phone call Tuesday.

Michael J. McDermott, State Department press secretary, said, "Police are keeping an eye on the place," but he added that he could not give any further information. Sik was reported out of town.

Major Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, refused to make a statement, commenting that it was up to the Department of State to talk about such matters.

demanded his withdrawal in view of its allegations against him in the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty— a demand with which the State Department did not comply.

[The United Press reported from Budapest that Chapin said he planned to leave for Washington this week. He said he had no official notification of Hungary's action until he received the message from the State Department last night.—Editor's note.]

Similarly, no haste was displayed in State Department circles to answer the question whether the United States would retaliate by declaring the Hungarian Minister, Andrew Sik, no longer welcome in Washington.

Observers commented that an outright break in relations would deprive the United States of a valuable listening post in one of the key trouble spots of the cold war.

Even with Chapin back in the United States, this Government will still have more than a dozen capable diplomatic representatives in Hungary. This is a considerably larger number than the Budapest government will have here in view of the resignations of a large proportion of its consular staff in the United States after the conviction of Cardinal Mindszenty.

A situation closely resembling that existing between the United States and Hungary appears to be taking form in Bulgaria, where another Soviet-satellite government is in power.

This was seen in the Bulgarian government's charges Saturday linking Louis C. Beck, an attache of the United States legation in Sofia, with its proceedings against 15 Protestant church leaders whom it has accused of treason. A demand for Beck's recall would cause no surprise here, with retaliatory expulsion of one or more relatively law-ranking Bulgarian diplomats from the United States expected to follow.

24-Hour Guard Set Up At Hungary Legation

A 24-hour guard has been set up by Metropolitan police at the Hungarian Legation, 2129 Leroy pl. nw., since last Wednesday, it was disclosed last night.

Three shifts of one uniformed policeman each were established the day after two legation officials resigned in letters protesting the conviction of Josef Cardinal Mindzenty in Budapest. There were reports also that Hungarian Minister

Religion-Red War On, Says Msgr. Sheen

Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 13 (U.P.)—Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen declared today that all the world must choose sides and form battle lines for the struggle between communism and religion.

Sheen spoke on the ease of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty of Hungary at a communion breakfast of the Sacred Heart Holy Name Society here.

Sheen said religious persecution by the Soviet Union is a "problem for all the world, and it is about time now that we begin to take sides, and the world is unconsciously recognizing it. There are no longer many alternatives. Now there is only one. And the struggle is beginning to come now to drawing up its final battle lines. How long the struggle will continue between the forces of Christ and anti-Christ we do not know.

"Whether swords will have to be unsheathed by nations we do not know. Whether the conflict between the forces of truth and error will be bloody or unbloody we do not know. There is only one thing that we do know, and that is, that if the truth of Christ wins, we win, and if—ah, but truth can't lose."

Sheen declared that the Communists fear the church above all else.

Sheen declared that by "dragging the Mindszentys through the dust of the world," the Communists are "paying to us the beautiful compliment of hostility, the fine compliment of the hatred of all the forces of Satan."

He termed the Hungarian cardinal "one of the great figures of the world today." He said that two years ago when he visited this country Mindszenty was the "saddest looking man I ever saw in my life" and that he said: "I'm going back to be crucified. They have marked me for death."

Couple Departs On Honeymoon, Fifty Years Late

Baltimore, Feb. 13 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Christian J. Eitemiller finally got away on their honeymoon today.

They were exactly 50 years late. But today was mighty appropriate. It was Eitemiller's seventy-fifth birthday, and Monday is St. Valentine's Day.

The Eitemillers were stymied in 1899 by a blizzard which hit Baltimore. She snow was so deep the wedding party couldn't even go 12 blocks to a church aready decorated.

The minister and the guests went to a hall for the ceremony and reception. But the couple never did have a honeymoon.

Their four children decided the omission should be corrected on the Eitemillers' golden wedding anniversary. So they arranged for the couple to fly to Miami. It was their first airplane trip.

New Counsel For DP Body

The Washington Post

NAMED—James J. McTigue (above), of 4364 N. Pershing dr., Arlington, Va., has been appointed general counsel of the Displaced Persons Commission, it is announced today bomb, but a weapon of such terrible potency that it must be under strict control. Congress, after lengthy debate three years ago, decided to place the development of atomic weapons and nuclear energy under civilian authority.

There is no reason why civilian scientists and technicians of one Government agency could not have custody of the bombs and turn them over to the Air Force instantly upon proper orders.

The law—the McMahan Act of 1946—puts development of atomic energy under the civilian AEC, and requires that the President of the United States personally issue any order to drop an A-bomb. It, however, leaves the question of custody of the stockpile up to the President's discretion.

County Farm Bureau To Hear Sen. Thomas

Vienna, Md., Feb. 13 (AP).—Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla., chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, will be the principal speaker here Tuesday at the annual Dorchester County Farm Bureau banquet.

Samuel W. Linthicum of Cambridge, president of the group, said the banquet would be held in the high school auditorium.

Area Sponsors 14 of 549 DPs Due Tuesday

A total of 549 displaced persons are scheduled to dock at New York Tuesday aboard the SS Marine Jumper, among them 14 persons sponsored by Washington area residents.

Passage for the DP's, who make up the ninth shipload of settlers to arrive in this country under the 1948 Displaced Persons Act, has been provided by the International Refugee Organization.

Among the immigrants are four members of the Spurins family, sponsored by Albert Clarson, 419 Brandywine st. se., here. Once a college professor in Latvia, husband Arturs Spurin will work as a caretaker of a large Georgetown estate. Other members of the family include Mrs. Lilija Spurins and two daughters, Dzintra, 9, and Aija, 6.

Marylanders are sporting 38 of the DP's, including Pavel Muntjan, 43, a native of Czechoslovakia. He is sponsored by his brother, Alexander Muntjan, of 9-G Research rd., Greenbelt, Md., and will work as a veterinarian's assistant in New York City.

Thirteen DP's will go to Maryland, including Janis Legers, his wife Emma, and a daughter Elga, sponsored by Jouett Shouse, of 1916 F st. nw. and Wolf Trap Farm, Vienna, Va. The Legers are farmers.

Alexandria sponsors are Anna and Jay Cassino, 538 E. Nelson ave., Alexandria. Ann Cassino will sponsor Bronius, Saliomeja, and Lukrecija Zeikus; Gediminas Zolynas; and Aleksandra Zolyniene. Jay Cassino will sponsor Pijus Zolynas and Magdalena Zolyniene.

A displaced persons bill designed to broaden Administration-sponsored legislation will be introduced today in the House by Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.), his office said yesterday.

The Javits bill provides for an over-all admission of 400,000 displaced persons. It expands on the Administration bill by providing for admission of 25,000 persons who fled to another country but remain unsettled and for caring for up to 25,000 displaced persons in Shanghai.

Meanwhile, the Displaced Persons Commission announced yesterday that James J. McTigue of Holyoke, Mass., has been appointed general counsel of the organization.

Quill Sees Transit Strike Continuing

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (AP).—Michael J. Quill, international president of the CIO's Transport Workers Union, told a cheering crowd of striking transit workers tonight that "you will be on strike Wednesday, Thursday, next Sunday and a week from next Monday."

"We will stay out," Quill shouted, "until we get a settlement that you can ratify by secret ballot."

He said there isn't "one chance in a hundred thousand that the strike will be settled tonight."

No Progress Reported

Quill addressed the executive board of Local 234 to report on the negotiating conferences which have been going on between representatives of the union and the Philadelphia Transportation Co. since the strike began Friday.

"After 20 negotiating meetings," he said, "we are just about where we started."

The union president said that "we will not take the three cents" offered by the company "to be a pattern for other unions in the country." The union is seeking a 20-cent wage increase. Meanwhile, negotiating sessions resumed shortly after 8 p. m. with Quill stating that if necessary "we will stay at it all night."

In the Nation's third largest city where all subway, bus and trolley lines which carry 3,200,000 passengers a day were shut down, the people were still walking and auto traffic was fairly heavy.

John Murray, head of the Federal conciliators mediating the negotiations, remained silent when asked for comment on the peace talks.

PTC and union officials sitting at the conference table with Federal mediators in a downtown office building this afternoon had a new sight out the window. Union pickets paraded around City Hall protesting City Council's demand for arbitration of strike differences. The union rejected arbitration.

Hudson Tube Strike Ends After 5 Days

New York, Feb. 13 (U.P.) — The five-day-old Hudson Tube strike ended today when the CIO Transport Workers Union ordered the strikers to return to work as soon as possible.

The strike did not seriously interupt service on the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad because the 400 strikers involved were non-operating personnel.

Union officials said the 49 employes dismissed by the company, the incident which instigated the strike, would report back to work tomorrow, too, because they have not yet officially received dismissal notices.

Portland Pressmen To Return to Work

Portland, Oreg., Feb. 13 (AP).—Striking AFL web pressmen voted today to return to work tomorrow morning and to continue contract negotiations with Oregonian and Oregon Journal management. The strike halted publication of both newspapers on Friday morning.

Some 110 pressroom workers are involved in the contract dispute and about 1800 nonstriking editorial and mechanical employes were laid off their jobs yesterday.

Cost-of-Living Pay Cut Opposed By UAW Local

Cleveland, Feb. 13 (AP). — The largest CIO United Automobile Workers' local in Cleveland tonight called upon international union officers to oppose a pay cut impending under a cost-of-living contract with General Motors Corp.

Local 45 at the Fisher body plant, representing more than 2000 workers, voted at a mass meeting to ask renegotiation of the GM agreement to keep pay at present levels, President Charles K. Beckman reported.

The contract provides for pay to go up and down with the cost of living, as shown in Bureau of Labor statistics reports. A cut of two and possibly three cents an hour is expected later this month—the first downward revision under the contract signed last year. GM workers have received five cents an hour increases under the sliding scale.

Local 45 acted after hearing a negotiating committee report that General Motors profits were "highest of any corporation in the world and are going up."

Once a Landing Craft . . .

FACELIFT—This natty cabin cruiser was once a landing craft. Fred Woydick, of 610 22d st. nw., converted the vessel in his spare time

The Washington Post

TASK—Woydick works on the motor of the landing craft he converted into a cruiser

Old Landing Craft Turned Into a Yacht

Fred Woydick is a temperate man, and because he is, a battered wartime landing craft has become a handsome cabin cruiser.

Woydick, a 56-year-old Federal Works Agency engineer, converted the spoon-bowed landing boat into a 37-foot yacht, complete with cabin, galley, washroom, and berths.

He thinks he'll christen the craft Marylin, after his niece's baby.

Wanted Own Boat

The Marylin's story began several summers ago, when Woydick joined some strangers to fish on Chesapeake Bay in a chartered boat.

"They didn't fish—all they did was drink," Woydick says, adding firmly: "When I want to fish, I want to fish."

So Woydick, who admits he likes a beer now and then "but not too many," decided he needed his own boat. He bought the veteran LCPL craft "as is, where is," near Norfolk, Va., in May, 1947.

"The paint was peeling, her bottom was covered with barnacles, and she looked as rough-tough as a porcupine," said Woydick. "But her mahogany was sound." He paid $1000 for her.

Getting the engine into shape, Woydick, with the help of a friend, cruised up to Washington, removed machine-gun nests and ammunition lockers, and began putting his boat into shape.

War Record Unknown

He found "40 or 50" oak plugs scattered about the boat which he thinks were standard on landing craft in combat areas to plug up bullet holes. But he knows nothing of his boat's war record.

The reconditioning process took 15 months and about $2800 more, but Woydick, who says he's built "a dozen boats, a house and a barn" in his time, took it in stride.

For Woydick, a bachelor who lives at 610 22d st. nw., the converted landing craft is hobby, recreation and family, all rolled into one 37-foot package.

Best of all, he can pick his fishing companions.

pected to be transacted on the Senate floor.

Senator Russell announced that he has called a meeting today of Southern colleagues who oppose the filibuster curb proposal to draw up strategy plans to fight the change. The rule change resolution—providing for limiting debate by a two-thirds Senate vote—is expected to be placed on the Senate calendar Thursday.

Southern Senators feel that once the right to filibuster is taken from them the way will be paved for passage of strong civil rights legislation. While the rules change is not expected to be called up for debate immediately, the Southern meeting probably will prepare plans to filibuster at length against the antifilibuster proposal.

Lively Debate Forecast

In the House, lively debate was forecast over a 300-million-dollar deficiency appropriation bill—scheduled to be debated Tuesday—to finance several agencies until the end of the fiscal year on June 30. Major dissension is expected to come over a proposal to provide the Tennessee Valley Authority with $4,500,000 to start construction of a 54-million-dollar steam-generating plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

The power plant, bitterly opposed by private power interests, has been requested by TVA on grounds it is needed to guarantee a steady flow of electricity to authority customers.

Private companies contend it will mean the beginning of nationalization of the power industry, as its construction would set a precedent for Government participation in steam-generating projects. The request was defeated in the Eightieth Congress.

The House also is scheduled to vote this week on an Administration measure extending the export control law until June 30, 1951. The law gives the President power to require licenses for exports and to regulate their shipment. In its present form it expires at the end of this month.

Electrical Union Votes Shift to Auto Workers

Pittsburgh, Feb. 13 (AP).—A 1000-member local of the CIO-United Electrical Workers today voted to withdraw from that body and affiliate with the CIO's United Auto Workers.

Meanwhile, controlling right wingers in the big Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s UE Local 601 today swept into every committee chairmanship in the 16,500-member unit. Today's election of committeemen cemented the defeat of socalled left-wing representatives at the annual election last ecember.

Better Man-Made Heart Is Claimed

Paris, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—A French scientist reported today that after 12 years of work he has perfected an artificial heart which not only pumps blood but revives the blood with oxygen injections.

Andre J. Thomas, director of the Paris Experimental Cellulaire Laboratory, said the artificial heart surpassed the one invented in 1937 by Col. Charles Lindbergh and Alexis Carrel.

The "heart" is out of the experimental stage, Thomas said, and 10 similar machines are being built. It would be of great value in surgery, he said, since it could be used to sustain life while the patient's own organs were being repaired.

The machine is a large, white-enamel affair which rolls around on four wheels. Blood is forced through artificial arteries into the machine's "lungs." Blood coming out of the lungs passes through a purifier where all microbes are killed and removed. Then it goes into the artificial heart and is pumped into the subject.

The scientist speculated that one distant use of the machine might be the rejuvenation of people by putting new blood into their veins to replace the old.

AMA Offers Own Health Plan

funds for education of medical personnel.

He said that last point was "vitally significant" because "lack of personnel is an outstanding difficulty in rapid extension of medical care."

Details of Program

The AMA program follows:

1. Creation of a Federal Department of Health of Cabinet status with a secretary who is a doctor of medicine, and the coordination and integration of all Federal health activities under this department, except for the military activities of the medical services of the armed forces.

2. Promotion of medical research through a national science foundation with grants to private institutions which have facilities and personnel sufficient to carry on qualified research.

3. Further development and wider coverage by voluntary hospital and medical care plans to meet the cost of illness, with extension as rapidly as possible into rural areas. Aid through the States to the indigent and medically indigent by the utilization of voluntary hospital and medical care plans with local administration and local determination of needs.

Medical Care Authority

4. Establishment in each State of a medical care authority to receive and administer funds with proper representation of medical and consumer interest.

5. Encouragement of prompt development of diagnostic facilities, health centers and hospital services, locally originated, for rural and other areas in which the need can be shown and with local administration and control as provided by the National Hospital Survey and Construction Act or by suitable private agencies.

6. Establishment of local public health units and services and incorporation in health centers and local public health units of such services as communicable disease control, vital statistics, environmental sanitation, control of venereal diseases, maternal and child hygiene and public health laboratory services. Remuneration of health officials commensurate with their responsibility.

7. The development of a program of mental hygiene with aid to mental hygiene clinics in suitable areas.

Health Education

8. Health education programs administered through suitable State and local health and medical agencies to inform the people of the available facilities and of their own responsibilities in health care.

9. Provision and facilities for care and rehabilitation of the aged and those with chronic disease and various other groups not covered by existing proposals.

10. Integration of veterans' medical care and hospital facilities with other medical care and hospital programs, and with the maintenance of high standards of medical care, including care of the veteran in his own community by a physician of his own choice.

11. Greater emphasis on the program of industrial medicine with increased safeguards against industrial hazards and prevention of accidents occurring on the highway, in the home and on the farm.

12. Adequate support with funds free from political control, domination and regulation, of the dental and nursing schools and other institutions necessary for the training of specialized personnel required in the provision and distribution of medical care.

Lila Leeds Jail Picture Scorned By British Paper

London, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—The Sunday Pictorial today ran a photograph of Actress Lila Leeds polishing a garbage can in Los Angeles County Jail with the caption, "A D—— Silly Picture."

The newspaper said that apparently the actress' 60-day sentence for possessing marijuana would not be "much of an ordeal" since the jailers had not taken away her lipstick and eye pencil.

"What a farce this ludicrous posturing makes of a prison sentence," the Sunday Pictorial said. "It could not, thank goodness, happen here.

"Whatever defects British prisons have, they do at least accord jailbirds one privilege—decent privacy."

Cotton Price Fall Ignored

Plane Exhibit Here Tuesday

MANY FIRSTS—Among the aviation "firsts" to be on exhibit at the Curtiss-Wright air show at the Hotel Washington here Tuesday will be Curtiss-Wright's chief test pilot, Herbert O. Fisher (above). He is the first pilot to reverse all four propellers of an airliner in flight to demonstrate a fast landing procedure. The displays range from one of the Wright Whirlwind engines which Admiral Byrd used over the North Pole to a 100-blade Typhoon gas-turbine of 8350 horsepower. The exhibit is open to the public from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Republicans Map All-Out Fight Against Truman's Health Bill

By The Associated Press

Republicans yesterday charted an all-out fight on President Truman's call for universal medical care insurance.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) told a reporter he expects the Senate Labor Committee to take up the health insurance question after it has acted on a substitute for the Taft-Hartley labor law.

The Senator said he will be ready with his own version, under which the Federal Government would help States finance voluntary health insurance programs.

The form of President Truman's proposals may be known soon, when he sends a message to Congress.

He put a 15-million-dollar item in the budget to start off a medical insurance system. He may give more details at a White House conference with House Ways and Means Committee members Tuesday.

Split wide apart on some issues, Republicans apparently are solidly determined to fight what they call a proposal for "socialized medicine."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York teed off on the question here last week. He called the pending Murray-Wagner-Dingell bill for universal health insurance an "evil invention" which "would reduce our doctors to servitude."

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said in a Detroit speech that "socialized medicine" would "produce wholesale mediocrity in the skills which serve the sick and saddle us with a new and appalling bureaucracy."

He said he expects Republicans to support a voluntary plan for medical care insurance.

Fire Set by Angry Swain Kills One, Injures Seven

New York, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—A 22-year-old youth who had quarreled with his sweetheart set fire to the apartment house where she lived early today. The resulting blaze killed one person and injured seven, police reported.

Police said Martin Drescher, a printer, confessed setting the fire because his girl friend was not sufficiently affectionate and because her mother asked when he planned to marry her daughter.

Drescher's sweetheart, Rebecca, 25, and her mother, Mrs. Abraham Meltzer, 62, were hospitalized with third-degree burns.

Robert Fiendola, 70, died from burns and smoke poisoning. His wife was critically burned.

De Gaulle Cites 'Terrible Means' To Back Liberty

Lille, France, Feb. 13 (AP).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle said today "there are terrible means which may be employed on the side of justice and liberty by ourselves and our friends if unhappily these ever are put to the test."

He did not outline what "terrible means" he was thinking about.

The general, concluding a conference of his party, Rally of the French People, which indorsed the Atlantic Pact, said that while there were menaces in the world to liberty-loving peoples, "there are in the world a large number of free men who intend to remain free."

Million-Dollar Home, Now a School, Burns

Lenox, Mass., Feb. 13 (U.P.).—The one-million-dollar summer home built by the late New York banker, Giraud Foster, and now a Catholic preparatory school was destroyed early today by a fire that drove out 4 priests and 10 students.

The Society of the Fathers of Mercy of Brooklyn, N. Y., bought the mansion in 1947 and dedicated it last September as Our Lady of Mercy Preparatory School.

178,659 Horses Eaten In Britain in 4 Years

London, Feb. 13 (AP).—Four members of the House of Commons say that 178,659 horses have been slaughtered and eaten in Britain in the last four years.

A few more years of this, they told Food Minister John Strachey, and some horse breeds will be extinct. Strachey said he would take the matter up with the Ministry of Agriculture.

Ersatz Meat Developed in West Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 13 (AP).—Allied and German scientists have developed an ersatz meat which will sell in western Germany for less than the real article, but it is meeting opposition from German politicians.

This was disclosed today by American officials who said the synthetic product tastes much like real meat and probably will be added to the German meat ration next month.

The political leaders were pressing for increased imports of grain fodder to develop depleted livestock resources. American and British taxpayers now finance West German food imports.

The scientists have also developed a milk substitute which is now being sold in the British zone, Gwynn Garnett, deputy chief of the Anglo-American bipartite food office, said.

Of the milk substitute, he said it had been found children who drank it "were as well off as with whole milk."

The ersatz milk is a dry product made of vegetable proteins. Garnett said it is manufactured in liquid form and dried, then mixed with water.

A lot of Washingtonians have noted that the Union Trust pays 1½% on savings deposits up to $2,500 and 1% on sums over $2,500—and have brought their money to us. They think it's only prudent to take advantage of the extra $10 to $25, or more, added each year in interest to the accounts of regular Union Trust savers.
They find this bank a convenient and friendly place to keep their checking accounts, too. There's a minimum of waiting at our new, efficient teller counters at the 15th and H Streets office—and our two locations in the heart of downtown Washington are easy to reach.
Why not drop in today and let us tell you of the many ways in which the Union Trust Company can serve you?
2 WAYS TO HAVE MORE MONEY IN THE BANK...
1. Develop the habit of saving something out of each pay check you receive.
2. Keep your savings at the Union Trust, where your money earns 1½% up to $2,500—1% over this amount.

Sermons Stress Brotherhood Need

Truman Sits At Sermon on Christianity

President Truman yesterday walked from Blair House to First Baptist Church at 16th and O sts. nw., and heard the pastor conclude a sermon he began when the President attended the church three Sundays ago.

In the first sermon, the Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of the church, spoke on the mysteries of Christianity. Yesterday he spoke on the secrets which are revealed to Christians.

Dr. Pruden said he did not know the President would be in the congregation for either service. He said that after the first sermon he decided to go a second one on the same general theme, but skipped a week because Communion Sunday was held on February 6.

The President heard Dr. Pruden pray to God to "bless those who today are being unjustly accused in distant lands and who are standing before courts from which they know they will not receive justice. Help them to recognize that they are standing in a noble succession to those who in the long ago were unjustly accused and who were called upon to suffer for their faith."

The junior choir, all the members of which are under 12 years of age, sang at the service. Dr. Pruden congratulated the children for their singing, and pointed out that they had the privilege of singing before the President before they were 12, but he had been over 40 when he first preached for the President.

As Mr. Truman left the sanctuary he paused to greet the crowds waiting for the second service and to tell them how happy he was to see them. Dr. Pruden and the Rev. R. Edward Dowdy, assisted pastor, accompanied the President to the White House car, which took him back to Blair House.

Forum Discussion

A forum discussion on the question, "Should We Have One Personnel System for the Federal Service?" will be presented by the Society for Personnel Administration Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Archives Auditorium, 8th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Race Relations Sunday should prick the conscience of every American, the Rev. Thomas A. Fraser said yesterday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Duke and South Pitt sts., Alexandria.

It should remind all that life is not cheap, that the individual is important, and that man is the creation of God, he said. The Alexandria clergyman called for penitence on the part of all Christian people because "we profess brotherhood and yet we divide and segregate on every possible excuse."

Mr. Frazer asserted that the case of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, has become "confused and lost in religious and international politics."

Cites Attitude, Methods of Man

"The real point," he said, "is that whether it is Mindszenty in Hungary, Protestants in Bulgaria, a Jew in Berlin, a Negro in Georgia, or a coolie in China, a human body into which God breathed life is being destroyed by the cheap attitudes and methods of pagan man."

At Gunton-Temple Presbyterian Church, 16th and Newton sts. nw., the Rev. Dr. Bernard Braskamp said that Brotherhood Week should awaken in us a sense of social responsibility. The Biblical question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" should be answered conclusively in the affirmative, he declared.

If we get rid of the spirit of intolerance, prejudice, suspicion and hatred, which he termed the "dogs of war," we will live in a happier relationship with our neighbors and the world, he said.

The Rev. C. Stanley Lowell, pastor of Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw., said that what impressed him in reading autobiographies of Negroes was the spiritual torture they had been forced to undergo. "Time and time again the red-hot dart of racial snobbery had been thrust clear to the quick into tender souls," he said.

Stresses Christian Theme

Christianity should open our eyes to our common humanity, Mr. Lowell continued. "The Negro is our brother; he belongs with us and we with him," he said.

The Rev. L. Maynard Catchings, of Plymouth Congregational Church, and the Rev. Carl Heath Kopf, of First Congregational Church, exchanged pulpits for the day. At First Church, Mr. Catchings called for a living faith which is broad and deep and goes beyond the barriers of class, race and nation. We are in need of those who will stand and suffer, if necessary, for the right if we are to know again the dynamic power of the early Christian faith, he said.

The trials of Lutheran Bishop Lajos Ordass six months ago and of Cardinal Mindszenty bring into "bold relief" the fact that there can be no compromise between Christianity and Communism, the Rev. Oscar F. Blackwelder said in a talk on Christianity and Communism at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st.

He asserted that Communism claims control over the whole of life, and that concessions to the churches in Russia are "party politics and not the recognition of a fundamental right." Dr. Blackwelder said a free church and a free government in a free society is "perhaps America's most distinctive contribution to the science of government."

Hits Mindszenty Trial

At Saints Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, 6th and C sts. sw., the Rev. Thomas Daniels asserted that the trials of Cardinal Mindszenty and Archbishop Stepanic of Yugoslavia were "mere criminal mockeries of unprecedented vulgarity."

He called upon all Christian churches to "oppose as one man" Communism which aims "mainly at religion and the church of Jesus Christ." Indifference to the situation would be "similar to complicity," and "even synonymous to crime," he said. The church adopted a resolution proposed by Father Daniels expressing sympathy for Cardinal Mindszenty and all clergymen persecuted by the Communists.

Canon Williams Is Elected Springfield Cathedral Dean

The Rev. Merritt F. Williams, a canon of the Washington Cathedral since 1941, has been elected dean of Christ Church Cathedral, Springfield, Mass., the Right Rev. William Appleton Lawrence, Bishop of the Diocese of Western Massachusetts, announced yesterday.

Rev. Williams

Canon Williams, who is a member of the Cathedral Chapter, expects to begin his work in Springfield in the spring. In addition to his regular duties at the Washington Cathedral, he has served as associate chairman of the cathedral building fund campaign.

During World War I Canon Williams served in the Naval Reserve as a quartermaster. After his graduation from Washington University, St. Louis, and from theological seminary, he was for three years a missionary in Alaska. In 1935 he became rector of St. Philip's Church, Charleston, N. C., and served there until his appointment as cathedral canon.

Canon Williams was chaplain on the U. S. S. Wasp and was serving on the carrier when it was sunk by the Japanese. He holds the Bronze Star, the Purple Heart, American, Asiatic, Pacific, Philippine Liberation and Victory Medals. During 1947-48 he was national chaplain of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Damage in Church Fire $100,000

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 13 (AP).—Damages to the Park Place Methodist Church by the fire Saturday night were estimated today at approximately $100,000 by Norfolk Fire Chief R. L. Woolard and K. J. Fawcett, chairman of the church's board of stewards.

A continuous line of spectators filed in and out of the church today to take a look at the damage in the main auditorium. Police officers were posted to keep them out of the areas where there was danger from falling glass of the shattered rotunda dome. Woolard explained that the fire was probably caused by defective wiring and got its start beneath the organ in the rear of the chancel.

Unprecedented Drought Cripples Spain Industry

Madrid, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—A persistent drought throughout Spain had almost paralyzed industry today and forced the government to take drastic action.

Cloudless skies Saturday prompted the government to impose severe restrictions on use of power in factories, shops and homes. In the Aragon region, industry has been cut back to one work day weekly.

Nenni to Visit Wallace

Rome, Feb. 13 (AP).—Italy's pro-Communist Socialists announced today their leader, Pietro Nenni, has accepted an invitation from Henry Wallace to visit the United States next month.

The Communist newspaper, L'Unita said Nenni would be joined in his trip to the United States by French Socialist Pierre Cot and British Labor Party Left-winger Konni Zilliacus.

Labor-Law Maneuvering

The political phase of the struggle over repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act is coming to an end, and Congress is preparing to deal with the formidable task of writing a new labor law. It is already apparent that a large number of Democrats will not support the Administration's labor bill without substantial modification. Consequently, if any labor legislation that the President would be willing to sign is to be passed at the session, the Administration will have to make concessions to propitiate congressional opponents. Already it is reported to be willing to withdraw demands for return of the Conciliation Service to the Labor Department and to write into the new labor bill a provision for the use of injunctions to break national emergency strikes. This is a major retreat from an extreme position, and it greatly improves the chances for eventual enactment of a satisfactory labor bill.

An uncompromising stand on the part of the President in regard to Taft-Hartley Act provisions that have proved their worth and workability might result in no legislation at all. For, as Robert Albright pointed out in The Washington Post on Sunday, if Congress were to send to the White House a labor bill loaded down with amendments reinstating many provisions of the present law, it would no doubt be vetoed. And if, as seems likely, Congress should sustain the veto, the Taft-Hartley Act would remain on the statute books in its present form. That would satisfy no one, except a small group that is blind to the imperfections of the existing law. Even Senator Taft concedes that amendments to the act which bears his name are needed.

To avoid the dangers of a stalemate it is essential that the Congress and the Administration compromise their differences and concentrate on the essentially nonpolitical task of fashioning a new labor law that will redress labor's legitimate grievances without weakening safeguards designed for the protection of the public as well as workers. A lot of hard work lies ahead before such a working program can be evolved. But Administration overtures are a move in the right direction.

Diplomatic Warfare

Hungary's request for the recall of the United States Minister in Budapest is probably a direct result of unrest over the railroading of Cardinal Mindszenty to conviction for alleged activities against the state. Having embarked upon the perilous course of condemning the Primate of Hungary for what is apparently nothing more than exercising the guaranteed right of freedom of religion, the Budapest regime is trying to give a semblance of reality to the "plot" it alleges, by ousting the American Minister. The idea that Minister Chapin was in any way involved in the case is fantastic. We may assume that he was filled with disgust by the farcical nature of the trial, as virtually all other Americans were. It may be that in part he is being punished for the candid reactions of President Truman and the State Department to the trial; but we strongly suspect that the chief motive is closely related to internal propaganda.

If Mr. Chapin had been interfering in the internal affairs of Hungary in any manner not warranted by the peace treaty with that country, Budapest would have ample cause to ask for his recall. On several occasions the United States has acted against representatives of other countries who butted into our domestic affairs. Only last summer the State Department asked Moscow to recall Jacob Lomakin after his outrageous challenge to American sovereignty in the Kasenkina case. The trouble is that the Kremlin-dominated governments cannot be trusted to apply a similar test to the representatives of other countries. For they have no regard for facts, truth, justice or freedom. Their policy is to strike at any individual who may cause them embarrassment, even if he is the representative of a foreign government. In pursuit of their terroristic policy the ruthless men in control at Budapest have asked for the recall of four American diplomats in two weeks.

Under these conditions any well reasoned and tolerant policy of diplomatic representation is likely to be turned against us. This newspaper suggested last August that the State Department would have to insist on reciprocity in the number of representatives exchanged between this country and the Soviet. It may be necessary to apply that rule to specific diplomatic positions and to make it operative against all Communist-dominated governments. Where reason and justice have no standing, even the principle of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth is better than one-sided, arbitrary action taken by the Communists to suit their own purposes.

Now In Bulgaria

The accusations brought against the 15 Protestant clergymen by the Communist government of Bulgaria follow so closely the pattern pursued in the prosecution of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty by the Communist government of Bulgaria that it is hardly possible to suppose that a single directing intelligence has not been at work in both cases. One difference, however, between the two cases may be remarked. Cardinal Mindszenty is the representative of the religion which is followed by the majority of the Hungarian people. In Bulgaria the Protestants are a small minority, the bulk of the population being of the Orthodox faith. But if we remember that in Hungary, the arrest and prosecution of the Lutheran Bishop, Lajos Ordass, also the representative of a religious minority, preceded the Mindszenty case, we may have an important key to the tactics of the Communist campaign against the Christian churches of the satellite countries. Communist propaganda has been insistent that this campaign is not being directed against "religion as such," but involves matters having nothing to do with religion, such as punishment of active treason, the suppression of black marketing operations, the redistribution of land, government control of schools, and so on.

Beneath this cynical sophism may lie a certain stratum of fact. That eradication of all religions, except the Gospel of Marx, Lenin and Stalin, is one of the ultimate aims of revolutionary communism, no reader of the party scriptures can doubt. During the period of the class struggle, however—and particularly during the period of military conflict with the capitalist world, which the party theologians insist is an inevitable phase of historical evolution—an organized church, if it commands a large popular respect and obedience and if it can be made wholly subservient to the dictatorship, becomes a useful instrument of Communist aims and propaganda. This has been demonstrated in the revival of the Russian Orthodoxy under Stalin's patronage and protection. It may be recalled that in the early phase of the Bolshevist revolution, when the Soviet government undertook to destroy the power and influence of the Orthodox Church in Russia, it organized and supported a schismatic body known as the Living Church.

To achieve the servile relationship of church to state in the satellite countries the destruction of all church leaders who remain obdurate and the intimidation of the rest are, of course, necessary. Thus the fact that in Hungary and Bulgaria the first moves of the Communist regimes have been against religious minorities may be explained as part of the process of intimidating the religious majorities. Doubtless the Catholic prelates and clergy of Hungary were expected to take warning from the fate of Bishop Ordass; the Orthodox bishops and clergy of Bulgaria from the example of the Evangelical ministers.

The next logical step would be the separation of the Latin churches of Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia from communion with the churches of the west, and the separation of Orthodox churches behind the Iron Curtain from those which are outside, such as the churches in Greece and the Near East. The separation of a national church from the Roman communion was actually achieved in the case of the Uniate Church of the Ukraine, which, under Communist pressures, transferred its allegiance to the puppet Patriarchate of Moscow, but not, apparently, until most of the Uniate bishops had been sent to prison camps.

If this interpretation of the campaign is correct, it follows that the work is much too important to be left to the plug-uglies and crude careerists who constitute the Communist regimes of the satellite countries. As we say, the campaign against the churches begins to show evidences of expert direction. And we suspect it was by something more than coincidence that Comrade Vishinsky, celebrated impresario of propaganda trials, turned up recently in Prague, a point of easy access to both Budapest and Sofia.

Legislative Budget

Both House and Senate have approved a resolution shifting the deadline for submission of the legislative budget from February 15 to May 1. Even in a normal year the February 15 date is too early to permit Congress to make reliable estimates of receipts and expenditures for the next fiscal year. At present the task is especially difficult because of the instability of prices and incomes resulting from economic conditions and uncertainty regarding the volume of defense outlays. By the beginning of May it should be possible to gauge more exactly the yield of taxes in the fiscal year 1949-'50 and the cost of legislative spending programs.

The major purpose of a legislative budget is to provide Congress with an over-all survey of receipts and expenditures that focuses attention on the cost of government and the necessity of providing sufficient taxes for financing governmental outlays. Such a survey should be most useful in imposing a check on nonessential expenditures and spurring congressional efforts to economize. Unfortunately, the results of legislative budgeting to date have been most disappointing, not only because of the early date set for introduction of the budget, but also because the experiment was launched under highly unfavorable conditions. Moreover, political friction has prevented Congress from cooperating with the Administration in working out a spending-taxing program that both could support.

Changes in procedural methods, such as postponing the date for submission of the legislative budget, will help to establish it as a useful check on (or revision of) the executive budget. But to establish it as a really valuable legislative spending-and-taxing guide it is essential for leaders of Congress to maintain close working contacts with the executive branch of Government in order to make sure that the legislative budget is based on careful appraisals of the costs of the legislative programs it is prepared to support. It is to be hoped that the legislative budget will now be given a chance to function as was intended.

Virginia's Kitty

Members of the Fairfax County School Emergency Committee claim to have made the discovery that the State of Virginia, despite its protests of poverty, has amassed a kitty of nearly 85 million dollars. Some of this, they say, could be used for new schools. Defenders of the Virginia accounting system retort that this not a find at all, that most of the money has been appropriated for important State projects. There seems to be no dispute, however, that in addition to the 1948 budget surplus of $5,300,000, the State has on hand some $79,500,000 in unexpended appropriations for capital outlays. Moreover, higher taxes promise to bring in a substantial surplus during the current biennium.

The reasons this money has not been spent seem to us valid for the most part. During the war building materials were unavailable, and currently construction costs are high. Many of the projects for which money has been voted, such as mental hospitals, are undoubtedly desirable. The question is, however, whether there should not be a reappraisal of relative needs. If these projects have waited several years already, could not some of them be put off a little longer? Is the need for a Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, at a cost of one million dollars, greater than the need to do something about schools bursting at the seams? It seems ridiculous to think that all the money on hand will be spent during the current biennium, since the amount is approximately eight times the sum spent during any previous two-year period.

If Virginia authorities are serious in their stated concern for remedying the State's educational deficiencies, there should be no objection to calling a special session of the Legislature to reallocate these idle funds. The need for new school buildings is acute. In Fairfax County, for example, population growth has strained all facilities, and in the absence of a Negro high school some students must travel nearly 100 miles a day to and from Manassas. These are merely symptomatic of conditions elsewhere in the State. Impoverished counties attempting to meet school equalization orders are in a particularly critical position. Some of the unexpended money diverted to the literary loan fund, which now is depleted to the point of uselessness, would be of immeasurable help in enabling such areas to provide educational necessities for their children.

Money To Spend

Decisive evidence that the recent sag in prices is not attributable to the drying up of consumer purchasing power is afforded by the latest statistics of income released by the Department of Commerce. Last December personal income was running at an annual rate of 220.8 billion dollars—an increase of 900 million dollars over the annual rate of the preceding month. For the year as a whole personal income reached a level of 214 billion dollars—an increase of 18 billion dollars over the preceding year. The fact that this rise was coincident with a weakening of inflationary pressure points to a change in buying habits. This is due to a variety of causes, among them the increased disposition to save, reflected in a marked increased in sales of United States savings bonds.

The Treasury reports that the 1948 savings bond program brought sales to a record peacetime total of 7.3 billion dollars—a gain of 9 per cent over 1947. Moreover, cash sales of series E, F and G bonds exceeded redemptions by 2.7 billion dollars—a gain of 33 per cent over the preceding year. The redemption record in respect of the series E bonds that are popular with small savers is particularly impressive. Since the end of the war large amounts of these bonds have been offered for redemption by holders needing ready cash to supplement wages and salaries.

In 1946 for example, despite large E bond sales, in excess of the 1948 total, redemptions exceeded sales by 957 million dollars, whereas last year sales exceeded redemptions by 495 million dollars. In other words, the savings bond program has resulted in substantial net additions to savings, indicating that the program has become a really established institution, not merely a temporary harborage for funds regarded by savings bonds buyers as the equivalent of a cash reserve available for spending at any time.

DEPARTURE

If there were some word to be said for the gray broken water,
The weary gulls under a bleak steel-colored sky,
And a new song heard today that I shall hear forever,
That unfortunately will never die . . .

If there were some farewell that meant something final,
Something that could be severed to let me go,
To shatter memory as the image in a mirror is shattered—
But I am afraid it is not so:

The gulls will be always weaving here over the pierhead
And the song I would forget will echo in my mind,
And I shall ever see a gesture unmade, hear a word unspoken;
Ever, though I were deaf, though I were blind.

"Acheson Vs. Bevin"

In his February 10 column, published under the heading "Acheson vs. Bevin," Drew Pearson discloses the "inside story" about some alleged exchanges on Palestine between Secretary of State Acheson and British Foreign Minister Bevin. The whole story is based on the premise that, before the House of Commons debate on January 26, Mr. Bevin was "worried sick that the Labor Party might be defeated and have to resign." All the evidence shows that he was not.

The opposition had put out a "three-line whip," or call, to muster its supporters, but the government had sent out only a routine "two-line whip." It was not until the January 26 debate in the House of Commons had started, and had revealed the vehemence of the attack on Mr. Bevin and the unanimity among his critics, that the government leaders became concerned for their majority.

Then, and not till then, did the government seriously start to muster its followers: Mr. Attlee intervened and appealed to government supporters to make the vote a matter of confidence; the government whips made urgent calls to members within reach; and of the 59 ministers in the Commons all, except one who was ill, came in to vote for the government.

Mr. Bevin did not become unduly concerned about his support in the Palestine debate until after the debate had started.

Rights And Segregation

In a letter headed "Segregation Status Quo," in your issue of February 10, there is one more of many uses of the argument that racial segregation should be ended because it is contrary to our democratic principles.

The founding fathers established our democracy on a society which practiced slavery. Slavery existed even in the Northern States when our Constitution was written, and that instrument contains direct references to and provisions regarding slavery, though the word is not used. Moreover, a pretty good sort of democracy resulted, even upon that basis.

The slaves of the South were freed as a step in winning the war between the States. The Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, making the freed slaves citizens, with all of the rights of citizenship, including that of suffrage, were adopted to punish and humiliate the defeated South, not as natural extensions to the ex-slaves of their inherent rights under our democracy. Neither by direct provision nor intent does our great charter of democracy—the Constitution—afford support for the arguments of those who oppose segregation on the ground that it is undemocratic.

Incidentally, why do not those who have suddenly become so greatly exercised over the civil rights of the Negroes concern themselves as well with the much more vicious segregation and denial of civil rights of which the Indians are victims? Could it be that the Indian vote is too small to be worth cultivating?

Ships And ERP

I feel that it is essential that the significance of the Bland bill now before the House Merchant Marine Committee in terms of the future success of the Marshall Plan be thoroughly understood, and a careful diagnosis made of what the bill will mean to certain European countries whose future prosperity the great majority of us desire. This bill as it now stands provides that 50 per cent of the gross tonnage of all commodities procured with ERP dollars would have to travel in United States vessels to Europe.

Several European countries, notably Great Britain, Norway, France and Italy, have always relied heavily upon the proceeds derived from shipping services to other nations to achieve a balance of payments. Today, European vessels provide transportation far more cheaply than do United States bottoms ($4.50 per ton of coal cheaper, or about $7000 per voyage), and so the objection to the Bland bill on this count is twofold: needed ECA dollars would be spent in paying extra shipping costs, and the restoration of the prewar level of European merchant fleets so essential to their economies would be thwarted.

Secondly, if European vessels are forced off the ECA transatlantic run, they will simply move operations to other areas of the world, where they would compete with our shipping just as strenuously. After all, ECA exports are less than one third of our total exports. Moreover, this competition would be more detrimental to United States interests in the long run; should the ERP end as now planned in 1952, our shipping will then have to face trade lanes in other parts of the world which will be all but monopolized by this displaced European transportation.

Thirdly, by checking the dollar earnings of foreign countries, we decrease their ability to purchase from us.

These facts, not to mention the more apparent considerations that such a bill would contradict our stated policy of freedom of world trade and the principles of the International Trade Organization, and that such action would give impetus to the further raising of tariff barriers in retaliation, indicate the scope of the backward step that we would be taking, should Congress pass the Bland bill.

Cancer Clinic

I was shocked to read in your issue of February 6 that the cancer detection clinic at Gallinger Hospital, the only such facility in Washington for those who are unable to pay, may be forced to close for lack of personnel.

Not only should cancer detection work not be curtailed, but it should be greatly expanded and publicized. There was, before the last session of Congress, a bill to provide millions for cancer research. This bill failed to pass. It is to be hoped that the new Congress will pass a bill restoring the abolished nurses' positions and make funds available for carrying on free clinical cancer detection work.

Washington on Rent

Congress might well observe Washington's birthday by adopting his formula for rent control. There was a severe housing shortage in the "Federal City" in 1799, and Washington built two expensive houses near the present union station to accommodate the lawmakers. It is true that he offered no bargain on the basis of 7½ per cent of an actual cost of $13,451, or about $950 a year.

That odd figure is significant, for one condition of Washington's formula was that the detailed cost of the house to the last dollar be shown on the open books to the tenant. Other conditions were that the tenant pay the taxes and cost of repairs.

Washington revealed his rent control ideas in a letter to a prospective tenant, John Francis, on August 14, 1799, four months before his death. He wrote "It is not my intention to ask an unreasonable rent . . . I find that none are inclined to let their property in Federal City, or anywhere else indeed, for less than 7½ per cent of the whole expenditure, to which they may add taxes thereon, and that of insurance against fire. You may become an occupant of my lots and the improvements thereon in Federal City, keeping them in repair as is customary . . . The whole amount of the cost can and shall be shown to the minutest fraction." Then followed a page of items for the perusal of the applicant.

Unions And The New Labor Law

The recent statement by the National Small Business Association is profoundly disturbing. It gives 17 reasons (in the guise of queries to Messrs. Green and Murray) for retaining the Taft-Hartley Act—and what they reveal of the state of the Nation!

Ten of these 17 reasons blandly dispute the vital principle of democracy (and growth) that enfranchised people should look after themselves or take the consequences. Fifteen of these reasons, like the one relating to the closed shop, would have become unimportant if those now fighting to retain the act had been willing to face the realities of practical operation and of the needs of the human spirit and to help unions develop normally and usefully.

The alleged basis for the Taft-Hartley Act is that the union officials have seized and misused power, ignoring the interests of their members. But it has been plain since the publication of The Modern Corporation and Private Property (1932), that this is chargeable to the employers of labor, that, indeed, we have here a spreading and unresolved maladjustment.

To a heightened degree it is true of peak associations like the NSBA. Such associations do not represent America's enterprisers, big or small, as union leaders know from first-hand experience. They know many thousands of enterprisers who realize that they are not dealing with uneducated, uncritical, unresponsive and apathetic employes; or if the employes are of that kind they have learned to blame themselves for it. These employers, like the practical men they are, are learning to enlist the cooperation of their employes with the cordial help of the unions.

It is because union leaders know all this that they find it ironical that the funds of these business men should be used to spread this charge that the unions are abusing their power. Perpetually conscious of the need to retain support from their members, labor leaders find this charge ludicrous. Perhaps this explains why they have not provided a sound and scientific analysis of the weaknesses of the act; they cannot avoid the conviction that they are engaged in a naked test of power—not of sweet reasoning.

The proposed legislation merits unhurried consideration, not of the blundering statements by false-front officials, but by the employers who know the real problems. As both Dr. William M. Leiserson and Dean Lloyd K. Garrison have long since urged, it is high time for a national policy on labor. But it will not come out of a dog fight.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Pax Anglo-Americana

LONDON.—One of Ernest Bevin's favorite complaints is that Britain's postwar economic weakness has prevented him from doing "a proper job" as Foreign Minister. Behind his ruminative grumbling lies an important fact. For the last three years, while attempting to play her habitual part as a great power, Britain has really lacked the means to sustain that position. It has been the old and very human story of fallen fortunes concealed behind a bold front.

The bold front has failed, however, to deceive the planners and policy-makers in the Kremlin and other capitals. Britain's inner weakness has been a central element in all calculations of the world balance of power. Many prophets have forecast that this weakness could never be overcome. Thus the superb British recovery of the last year, with its promise that with any luck the British people will be standing entirely on their own feet by 1952, is a major development of world politics.

If the British people go on as they have been going, in fact, the prophets are going to have to eat their prophecies, and the calculations of the world power balance will have to be made all over again. This process of calculation is already going on here. The tentative results should deeply interest Americans.

IN BRIEF, the highly practical British know that even with the greatest dexterity, ingenuity and self-denial, they cannot hope to regain the dominance they once enjoyed by sheer weight of wealth and strength. New giant powers have emerged, in America and Russia, which would make such an attempt foolhardy. The British solution, therefore, is to replace the "Pax Britannica" of the nineteenth century with a "Pax Anglo-Americana" in the twentieth. The partnership of the two nations is to do the job that Britain once did alone.

The position accorded to the United States in this partnership can be grasped from two simple facts. Behind the French acceptance of Field Marshal Montgomery as Western Union Chief of Staff lay and still lies a secret understanding with the British. Both parties spontaneously agreed that in the event of the outbreak of war in Europe, the United States would be invited to name an American officer to supplant Montgomery in the supreme command.

Again, in the course of the sordid Italian colonies dispute, the British have repeatedly pressed the proposal that the United States accept trusteeship of Tripolitania. The desire was that an American base should be built in Tripolitania, hard by the projected British base in Cyrenacia, thus further strengthening the partnership's position in the Mediterranean. The project may yet come to partial fruit. Although Washington at first reacted very coldly, the possibility cannot be discarded that Americans will be invited into Tripoli as a third party, to see fair play between Arabs and Italians.

THE ACCEPTANCE of the need for an American commander in a European war, the effort to reinforce American influence in the Mediterranean region where Britain once sought to reign alone, together tell their own story. The story is annotated further by certain recent doings of the American and British military staffs. One such was the cooperative "Pandora" operation designed by the United States Air Force and the Royal Air Force to test the effectiveness of long-range strategic bombardment. Another has been the constant scurrying of the American and British planners between London and Washington. The once moribund Combined Chiefs of Staff have been taking on a new life.

All of these are straws in the wind of prime significance. Their meaning is underlined by another fact of great interest. Where the Atlantic Pact alone is unlikely to restore a full sense of security in Europe proper, this formal commitment by the United States will go far toward soothing the lurking fears for their own future which even the rather stolid British have occasionally felt. The whole development that is thus foreshadowed will, if not halted by misfortune, strongly tend to shape the political future of the next decades.

Such a development has long been hoped for in Washington by such wise policy-makers as George Kennan, who recognize that Anglo-American partnership rests on the best of all foundations—almost complete community of interest. But for the safe of efficiency, and as a matter of public policy, it would seem desirable for the leaders of both nations to be a bit more articulate about this great though rather formless process that is now going forward.

Consistency On Oleo

When I read Mr. Charles Ellsworth's February 1 letter regarding his fear of eating Federally approved and controlled oleomargarine instead of butter in a restaurant, I couldn't help wondering if he is as consistent in demanding that pure hog fat lard be used for cooking all his fried food and in all his bakery products. I'll warrant he thoroughly enjoys eating the many products that are now almost invariably prepared with well-known brands of pure vegetable shortening.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The American Theory Of Europe

LAST WEEK Mr. Acheson, who nearly two years ago made the first official suggestion of the Marshall Plan, came back to Congress and restated its basic purpose. "There is a great natural wish," he said, "on the part of many of the people of other countries to have such things as a wholesome diet, warm clothing, adequate shelter and an opportunity to work. But that is not our moving purpose. Our moving purpose is not material: it is to make it possible for people who want to live a decent, orderly and just and free life to do so again."

Lippmann

The theory of our economic aid to Europe, then, is that it is not possible for nations to enjoy political and moral freedom if they do not have a decent standard of life. This is a far-reaching theory, and considering the immense destitution of the people of Asia, it suggests how long and rocky is the road to one world of free and democratic nations. But applied to Europe the theory is illuminating in that it helps us to define the real problem, and to put in a truer perspective many of the anxieties and difficulties of our epoch.

THE NATIONS of the European continent may be divided into three groups.

First, western Europe, which includes France, Belgium, the Netherlands, the three Scandinavian countries, Austria and Switzerland. They are, with some allowances for Austria, the recognized democracies.

Second, eastern Europe, which includes Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Poland, Yugoslavia—and by force of circumstances, but not otherwise, as I shall point out later, Czechoslovakia and Finland. These are now the satellite nations under Communist dictatorship. It cannot be said that free institutions have ever effectively been made to work in any of them except in Czechoslovakia and Finland.

Third, Mediterranean Europe, which includes Spain, Portugal, Italy, Greece and Turkey. All have been under autocratic governments: among them only Italy, after her 20 years of fascism, is now maintaining free institutions.

IT IS interesting to compare the economic position of these three groups of nations. I am using figures, which I have regrouped, compiled by the Economic Commission for Europe. These figures are for the period between the two world wars—that is to say before the Russian incursion into the European continent. The figures show, therefore, the comparative wealth and poverty of the three groups at a time when Russian communism was still contained behind the Soviet frontier.

TAKE first, real income per person working in 1930. If the average for Europe as a whole was $469, the average for eastern Europe (minus Czechoslovakia and Finland) was $314. For Mediterranean Europe it was $370. For western Europe, including Germany, it was $694. For western Europe, minus Germany, it was $700.

Take second, the percentage of the population dependent on agriculture and fishing—in effect the proportion of the peasantry to the rest of the population. For Europe as a whole the average was 51 per cent. For eastern Europe (again minus Czechoslovakia and Finland) it was 71 per cent. For western Europe (both with and without Germany) it was 29 per cent. For Mediterranean Europe it was 59 per cent.

Thus in eastern Europe seven out of ten, in Mediterranean Europe six out of ten, lived on the land. Now, third, take what the peasants got out of the land. If the index of production for Europe as a whole per person dependent on agriculture is rated at 100, eastern Europe (minus Czechoslovakia and Finland) was 52; western Europe was about 200; Mediterranean Europe about 59. This means that a peasant in western Europe got four times the yield that an eastern European peasant got. If we compare yield per hectare of land, then in western Europe it was 228, in eastern Europe it was 76, in Mediterranean Europe it was 66. Thus, as compared with western Europe, the countries which have been having fascism and communism for 20 years have had much more than twice as large a part of their people living on the land, and they got from the land about one-quarter as much yield.

One more measure will be useful, that of power (coal, oil, water) consumed per capita. The European average for 1938 was 1541 million calories. For western Europe (including Germany) it was 3059—or twice the average for Europe as a whole. For eastern Europe (minus Czechoslovakia and Finland) it was 637—only a little more than a fifth of western Europe. For the Mediterranean countries it was a little more than a sixth (528) of western Europe.

THESE figures tend to confirm Mr. Acheson's theory that free institutions and a reasonably high standard of life are related. Czechoslovakia and Finland, though in eastern Europe, offer additional proof. By almost every economic measure they were much more like western Europe than like eastern Europe. Also they were unquestionably the two eastern countries where free institutions were most solidly established in the hearts and minds of the people.

This analysis indicates further that if free institutions are to become established in eastern Europe and in the Mediterranean, it will not be enough to expel the Russians and to suppress the Communists. It will be necessary to foster the development of these underdeveloped and economically backward areas of Europe. For if that is not done, though the Russians go, though the Communists are defeated, they will nevertheless not long remain democratic and free.

London Thinks Russia May Denounce Alliances With West

London, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—Officials in the Foreign Office expressed belief today that Russia might denounce her alliances with Britain and France as her answer to the Atlantic pact.

Officials said that if the Russians have aggressive aims, the 1942 Anglo-Russian military alliance and the proposed Atlantic pact are incompatible.

"But if the Russians are not aggressors, and have no aggressive plans, they have nothing to fear from the Atlantic pact," and informant explained.

Russia charges that the North Atlantic pact is designed to create a western coalition aimed at her. The western countries say it is a defense pact. They hold that what they call Russia's wilful refusal to cooperate in international bodies has made it necessary.

The Anglo-Russian pact for a 20-year alliance and collaboration was signed in 1942, shortly after Germany's attack on Russia. Its seventh article says: "Each high contracting party undertakes not to conclude any alliance, and not to take part in any alliance, directed against the other high contracting parties."

The Franco-Soviet pact, likewise for 20 years, was signed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the wartime Free France, in the fall of 1942. Its article 5 pledges the signatories not to "conclude alliances or enter coalitions aimed against one or the other of them."

Russia's campaign to stop the Atlantic pact has been under way for months. It reached a peak early this month with diplomatic and propaganda pressure aimed at scaring Scandinavian countries, especially Norway, out of the pact.

Last week the Moscow Radio turned propaganda pressure on France. It warned that the French-Soviet pact would be "trampled on" if France joined the Atlantic pact. The French Foreign Office rejected this by saying through a spokesman that there was no contradiction between the two treaties.

Marshall Plan Won't Solve Social Unrest, Report Warns

Confidence in the Marshall Plan was expressed in two reports issued yesterday by the National Planning Association which at the same time, warned against expecting too confidently that economic stability would lead to political and social stability in Europe.

One report, a "Joint Statement on the Marshall Plan," was approved by 48 members of the association's board of trustees and of its agriculture, business, labor and international committee members. The other, prepared by Dr. John Kenneth Galbraith and called "Beyond the Marshall Plan," was indorsed by the association's international committee. Dr. Galbraith is professor of economics at Harvard University.

The reports agreed that the Marshall Plan was succeeding in its purpose of aiding European economic recovery. But, cautioned the joint statement:

"The achievement of physical recovery is not the only problem of western Europe, nor can it be the only objective of American foreign policy, with respect to the free nations. Western Europe has problems which economic recovery will not solve, but which, if freedom and stability are to be assured, must be solved."

Dr. Galbraith's report said there was a chance that economic recovery would check the tendency toward concentration of political strength in Europe toward the left or right, which he termed "polarization." However, he added, "it would be idle to count on it. The trend is not a superficial one; it is deeply rooted in the economic and social life of Europe and antedates the war."

Five Questions Posed

Last Friday Secretary of State Dean Acheson told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that Marshall Plan aid would not be used to club European nations into political unity. Political decisions, he said, would be left to the nations themselves.

Five problems which lie beyond the Marshall Plan were put forward by both reports as calling for present consideration and early solution. These were political and social reforms, American tolerance of European political experiments, European economic unity and economic development beyond the Marshall Plan.

Of reform, the joint statement said:

"In a number of Marshall Plan countries democracy, in any meaningful sense of the term, is still incomplete. Differences in wealth and well-being are great; the costs of government bear heavily on the poorest of the people; ancient aspirations of workers to protect their own welfare and of peasants to own the land they farm remain frustrated; basic problems of the relation of the population to resources are yet to be resolved."

"Reform Means Surrender"

Dr. Galbraith points out that reform has been "relatively painless" in the United States, it is different in Europe. There, he said, "reform means a surrender by the haves to the have-nots and it is partly for this reason that European political life tends to extreme and uncompromising positions." Political and social tensions accompanying reform, he said, should be realized to avoid disappointment.

As for tolerance of economic experiments in Europe, the joint statement points out that "one of the privileges of freedom is the freedom to innovate in economic organization." It warns that failure to exercise tolerance might result in "acceleration of the drift to extreme positions in European politics."

On the same subject, Dr. Galbraith says he does not suggest that the United States associate itself with moderate socialists but that it not smother them by opposition to their policies. Except in Britain and Scandinavia, he remarks, the strength of these parties has markedly declined.

Nationalism Offers Difficulties

Both reports underscore the difficulties placed in the way of economic unity by extreme nationalism in Europe. Dr. Galbraith insists that customs unions, while important, are not enough and that action should be directed beyond these if unity is to be attained.

Again, on the question of future economic development, both reports agree that the road lies beyond the Marshall Plan itself. The joint statement points to the need for new relationships between western Europe and undeveloped areas which can supply both raw materials and markets. It terms President Truman's inaugural speech recommending technological help in this direction as of particular importance.

Dr. Galbraith says it might well be asking too much of the Marshall Plan to assume that it could solve fundamental trade problems. Economic recovery, he says, must go beyond physical recovery to "the ability to balance accounts with other governments—to be self-supporting."

Michigan Governor, 7 Others Safe in Crash

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 13 (AP).—Gov. G. Mennen Williams, his wife and six others narrowly escaped death or serious injury tonight when a National Guard plane crashed at the Lansing Airport.

The two-engine plane missed a runway, crashed into threee small private planes and clipped a wing from a fourth.

The plane's occupants were reported shaken up, but all climbed out without assistance.

Greek Reds Launch Attack on Phlorina

Athens, Feb. 13 (AP).—Communist rebels fought with increased fury today to capture Phlorina, in northern Greece, apparently with the idea of making it their capital.

The Greek general staff said 4000 of the guerillas' best fighters came down out of the Vitsi Mountains yesterday and launched their assault on the city. Phlorina lies just south of the juncture of the Greek, Albanian and Yugoslav frontiers.

Mosley Sympathizers Parade in London

London, Feb. 13 (AP).—Some 200 followers of Sir Oswald Mosley, head of the former British Union of Fascists, trooped, cheered and sang through the streets of East London tonight—but their leader did not show up.

It was the first such march by Mosley sympathizers since before the war. It was also the first such political parading in London since a ban on it was lifted a week ago.

Mosley now heads the British Union Movement, which he has described as "patriotic."

Scientists Condemn 'Press Trial' of Condon

measure of the hazard to which a citizen's good name may be exposed through the medium of the press when a committee of Congress fails to observe the elementary rules of fair play which protect his rights in all other procedures under our common law system of justice," they said.

Condon, chief of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Standards, was accused by an Un-American Activities Subcommittee of being "one of the weakest links" in the Nation's chain of atomic security.

He flatly denied the charge and repeatedly demanded, but never was given an opportunity to answer in person. Condon later was approved by the Atomic Energy Commission for access to top-secret information.

The Democrats recently reorganized the House committee after political control of Congress changed hands. Chairman John S. Woods (D., Ga.), has pledged that all persons haled before the committee will get a fair hearing. He has indicated Condon will get that privilege.

The scientists said the results showed the committee's "reckless, vague and unsupported" charges got far more space than statements in Condon's defense by his colleagues and "distinguished and responsible individuals."

"Dr. Condon has never been permitted by the committee to testify in his own defense," they said. "Thus the committee brought and prosecuted its charges against Dr. Condon exclusively through the medium of the press."

They said the committee's charges were almost the only basis for 90 per cent of the stories "damaging" to Condon.

"These reckless assertions, carrying the weight of congressional authority, received not only wide but repeated publications; no less than 57 per cent of the derogatory materials appearing in the news columns consisted in mere repetition of the committee's baseless charges."

Damaging Stories Stressed

They said that five of nine New York papers gave damaging stories about Condon far more emphasis than stories in his defense.

"Significantly, these five newspapers outweigh the other four in circulation by nearly 3 to 1," they commented. "That the smear stuck is indicated by the continued high ratio of derogatory statement which attaches to Dr. Condon's name in the latter par. of the period studied, long after his official clearance by the Atomic Energy Commission. . . ."

They pointed out that, as a result of the old committee's activities, Congress has before it legislation which would establish rules covering the procedures of investigating committees without limiting their authority.

The legislation would give an accused person a chance to present his side of the case, to call his own witnesses, and to cross-examine witnesses testifying against him. Witnesses also would be entitled to legal counsel.

It also would bar news photographers, newsreel and television cameras and wire recorders while witnesses were testifying.

"These principles," the scientists said, "would seem to constitute a minimum charter of rights for the protection of persons whose reputations would otherwise be seriously damaged by the publicity which attends a congressional investigation.

"We strongly urge that these proceedings be adopted by Congress in the present session to guide the future conduct of investigations by the committees of the House and Senate."

N. Y. Papers Gave Preponderance of Space To Statements Presenting Physicist In Favorable Light, Survey Discloses

New York newspaper statements were preponderantly favorable to Dr. Edward U. Condon in spite of a barrage of derogatory material issuing from the House Committee on Un-American Activities, 90 per cent of which consisted of vague and unsupported charges.

These are among the findings of a content analysis study of the New York City press by Columbia University Bureau of Applied Social Research published in the current issue of Scientific American.

The bureau studied press reports on the case for and against the Bureau of Standards scientist published from March 1 to October 31, 1948. It covered a period commencing with the first charges of the committee to three months after the Atomic Energy Commission had cleared Dr. Condon.

Taking the New York press as a whole statements favorable to the accused scientist were most numerous. Of 3909 statements analyzed, 745 or 19 per cent were unsympathetic to Condon and 971 or 25 per cent were sympathetic. Notable was the wide range of difference from newspaper to newspaper. This is shown on the table published by Scientific American.

	Pro	Con
Times	65	35
Herald Tribune	64	36
Star	63	37
Post	57	43
World-Telegram	50	50
News	49	51
Mirror	47	53
Sun	43	57
Journal American	18	82

The space analysis made no attempt to ascertain what proportion of pro and con statements would have adequately reflected the news about Condon originating in all sources during the period. It was expressly stated that "the fact that a paper may have reported more unfavorable than favorable events is not in itself necessarily a sign of bias."

Newspaper methods of reprinting initial charges in such cases worked against Dr. Condon, the bureau found. If statements on Condon had been limited to new material (without any background reviving initial charges) the pro and con score would have been 416 to 301 instead of the actual score of 695 to 631 in the nine papers.

Calculated on IBM Cards

The summary of the study emphaiszed (1) variation in proportion of pro and con statements from one to another paper; (2) Condon support was most adequately reported in Times, Tribune, Star and Post and given little attention in the other papers; (3) reviving background material had the effect of building up the case against Dr. Condon but did not build up defense; (4) papers reported the committee's promise to give Condon a fair hearing more frequently than they reported failure to do so.

The study was made by taking all press stories in the nine New York newspapers. They were then broken down into independent statements about the case. Then the strictly neutral statements were eliminated from analysis. The rest were put into various pro and con categories. This permitted the number of statements to be calculated rapidly on IBM cards.

The study was limited to news content and confined to text statements alone. There was no appraisal of the effect of headlines or position. The bureau did not undertake to ascertain the effect of morning or afternoon publication which might have influenced the recency of the studied statements.

Filibuster Held Bulwark Against Totalitarianism

By The Associated Press

The filibuster and the Constitution Senator Stennis (D., Miss.) said yesterday, are the "two great bulwarks" against any totalitarian threat in the United States.

Cut out unlimited debate in the Senate and "we would certainly open the avenue that would make" such a threat "much more probable," he added. Stennis said that "extension of the present rule of cloture" would lead inevitably to letting a mere majority cut off debate on all matters.

And then, he said during a radio interview (WPIK), some future leader could "get entire control of the machinery of the Government, and under pressure of the moment force through most any measure he may desire."

Berlin Women React Coolly To Temporary Marriage Idea

Berlin, Feb. 13 (AP).—Only the men, it seems, approve of a campaign to allow surplus German women to take temporary husbands to father their children.

Women Berliners interviewed today expressed almost unanimous opposition to the proposal advanced by twice-married, 52-year-old Dorothea Klage of Kiel.

However, the women advocated trial marriages to stem Germany's rising divorce rate.

Men Outnumbered By 7 Million

Frau Klage petitioned Western Germany's constituent assembly, now meeting at Bonn, to allow temporary marriages so that women with no hope of getting a permanent husband might bear children "to save our culture."

In Germany there are seven million more women than men. In Berlin the women outnumber men by 600,000. And in the 19-to-45 age group there are four women for every man.

Gerda Nuschke, 23, and unmarried, bitterly attacked the Klage proposal. She said she had no objection to getting a temporary husband or even a permanent one. She just thought the scheme would not work out.

"The pretty girls will get all the temporary husbands," she said. "They'll be married time after time, and the girls who aren't attractive enough to get a permanent husband now won't be able to get a temporary husband either."

Lisellotte Kuhlmann, a 35-year-old divorcee, said she would welcome a "trial husband" but wanted no part of a temporary one. She attributed her own martial unhappiness to her husband's following the Klage scheme some five years before Frau Klage formulated it.

Ruth Gregor, 18, beautiful and engaged, said temporary marirages would result in decadence and degeneration. She said if she wanted a child and couldn't find a husband she would adopt a baby.

An Evengelical clergyman said of the plan, "it is out of the question for Christians."

—With Shirley Povich

SO YOU want to be a sports writer?

There, I've gone and done it—I hope; what Mr. Stanley Woodward may be pleased to call a "an arresting lead" with which to charm the initial interest of the regular sports page reader or even the subscriber who might have fumble-thumbed his way into the sports section by accident.

It's just one of the little trade secrets that Woodward betrays under the aegis of the Messrs. Simon and Schuster, publishers, in the first of his work to be put between hard covers. His "Sports Page" is being led into the book stalls today.

POVICH

The sports editor of the New York Herald Tribune, 1938-48, takes the reader behind the scenes of the business of writing, editing and compounding the metropolitan daily section. For the multitudes who hear "the call" to be a sports writer, he harps on the important do's and don'ts.

Through it all he manages to maintain a drum-fire of the high importance of the sports pages, and glums that too often it is the circulation manager, not the funds-controlling publisher or managing editor, who have the proper appreciation of the sports' sections' ability to sell newspapers.

AGAINST THE publishers' practice of devoting only 12 to 15 per cent of the editorial space in a modern daily newspaper to sports, Woodward pits his circulation managers' survey that 25 per cent of the readers buy the paper principally for sports. The sports pages, Woodward found, generally ranked second or third as the most important department, frequently behind the comics and special commentary, only occasionally behind the editorial page.

Sports' Golden Era of the Twenties, when Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Man o' War, Walter Hagen, Bill Tilden and Bobby Jones, produced the first high frenzy of interest in the sports pages, was not complemented b ythe high-caliber sports writing of later days, including the modern, opines Woodward.

He revolts at the florid sports-writing prose of those times when the story of what took place was lost among the homeric descripions of golden sunlights and thundering feet and the tendency to drag in similes involving Troy and the Biblical heroes. Objectivity was not a high asset of that day in sports writing. For a fact their stuff did read like a fellow trying to say a mouthful, with a full month.

THE SUCCEEDING years, he writes, have brought a revolution in the sports departments, once the catch-all for city-room incompetents and haven of the illiterate wit hsports background. And the yen to be a sports writer is no longer the open-sesame to a job. Publishers, managing editors and sports editors have become particular.

Only rarely is there any substitute for city-room training, Woodward counsels the young man seeking a sports writing job. It is on general assignments that the reporter is grounded in the sports department functions of getting a story and writing it in a manner to meet the new realism of sports editors, who chuckle now at the incompetence of their predecessors in the century's earlier years.

"Young applicants for jobs come in five a week. They are all interested in sports and they all know the batting averages . . . some of them are startled when you tell them the way to get into the newspaper business is to become a newspaperman, not to start in some specialized department like sports."

WOODWARD HAS a nod for such giants of the past as Bill McGeehan, Grantland Rice and Westbrook Pegler, and though he faults their lack of forthrightness in story-writing, he admits each gave something to today's school of writing. "Rice contributed rhythm and euphony; Pegler, a grumpy and grudging curiosity for fact; and McGeehan, a certain twist, in the likeness of Anatole France, which could make an ordinary sentence interesting."

But Woodward is better pleased now with the shelving of the unholy jargon of the earlier days, when the tendency to call things by names other than their own, was the label of a high-striving sports writer. "It is now becoming fashionable to call teams by their right names. The horrendous clashes of fearsome Tigers and snarling Wolverines, usually concluded in purple sunsets, are now taboo in the better sports departments."

And on another count, he writes, the sports editor must be ever-watchful. It is with respect to the baseball writer covering the Brooklyn club. "For some reason they always develop a great attachment for the Brooklyn club if long exposed to it. You should watch a Brooklyn writer for symptoms of the madness, and before he becomes too virulent, shift him to the Yankees, or to golf or tennis."

Mikan Has It, Too

All You Need Is That Touch Fulks Says

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

ALTHOUGH HE MAKES it seem that way, Joe Fulks says shooting a basketball through a hoop isn't quite as simple as shooting fish in a barrel.

"But it isn't hard to be a good shooter," the Philadelphia Warrior hotshot explained. "It's sort of like typing or playing the piano—you've got to have that certain touch. You either have that touch or you don't. I've got it."

Not only does the highest scorer in professional basketball have "that certain touch," but he's got finger-tip control, too.

When he puts a basketball in those big hams of his which serve as hands, he does tricks with it. He's got more shots than an automatic rifle and seems to be forever firing them—jump shots, hook shots, one handers and two handers.

He's so good that he ripped 63 points through the nets the other night to set a pro basketball record, but he doesn't believe the mark will hold up.

"Either me or George Mikan will top it," drawled the Kuttawa, Ky., court king. "We've got that touch. It isn't much harder to score 73 points than it is to score 63, if you've got that 'touch'."

AND WHAT does he mean by And what does he mean by that "touch."?

"It's just a certain feeling you get when you shoot, a feeling that when the ball leaves your hands it's going in the basket. I felt it the night I racked up 63 points."

You just simply don't go out and acquire that "touch" overnight, Mr. 6 feet 6 inch Fulks continued.

"It takes practice, plenty of it. A good pianist doesn't have to look for the keys on the piano and a typist doesn't look at the keyboard. He's been playing the piano or typing so long he's got the 'touch.'

"My high school coach took me out on the court once and said: 'Joe, that hoop up there with the net on it is where you want to put the ball. There's another one at the other end of the court and you do the same thing there. The more basketballs you can shoot through that hoop the better player you'll be.' And I've been following his advice ever since."

Joe also gives his Warrior teammates a generous boost "because they set me up."

He thinks ole Bones McKinney does about as good a job guarding him as anybody. "Never have gotten more than 30 points off Bones," he added. "Yeah, ole Bones, he's a good 'un."

Fulks averages 25 points per game, which gives him a season's total for 60 games of 1500 points. He makes $10,000 from the Warriors, or, if you prefer, a little over $6 a point.

So you see, basketball is a soft touch, if you've got that touch."

Post Bowling Tourney Starts at 27 Alleys

The Washington Post today inaugurates its Third Annual Bowling Tournament for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club and nearby District boys' recreational activities, with 27 area alleys joining in the handicap competition.

At a rally held yesterday at the fashionable Walnut Hill estate of Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Police Boys Club, some 100 men and women pledged their all-out support for the tournament.

The Washington Post is sponsoring the event in cooperation with the Metropolitan Washington Duckpin Bowling Operators Association.

Approximately 50 women of the auxiliary have been mobilized to assist in securing entries at the District bowling alleys, while those in the outlying sections have enlisted the support of the other women's organizations to help foster the boys' work in their sections.

Among those who addressed the women and urged their cooperation in the hope that the entry list of this year will double that of the past two seasons were Superinendent of Police Robert J. Barrett, honorary chairman of the drive; Robert C. Simmons, president of the Police Boys Club board; John A. Remon, past president; Max Farrington, executive secretary of the Police Boys Club and director of athletics at George Washington University; Wash B. Williams, general campaign chairman; Bus Ham, sports editor of The Washington Post; Hap Newman, Eddie Winslow and Evelyn Gay of the Bowling Operators' Committee, and Mrs. C. Chester Caywood and Mrs. Arnold of the Auxiliary Bowling Committee.

The bowling operators pointed out that there are between 80,000 and 90,000 league bowlers among more than 500 leagues, who are eligible for the tournament and in view of the fact that this season's competition has been extended to two weeks, a record field is anticipated.

Among others attending the rally besides the auxiliary group were Chris Heurich, Ralph Pittman and Dr. Hugh House and Dr. John Basseches, ardent members of the Police Boys Club board.

Special ceremonies kicking off the tournament will be held at 6:30 tonight at the Chevy Chase Ice Palace, where Major Barrett, Captain Fondahl, commanding officer of the Eighth Precinct, and Mrs. Arnold, will be present.

The 70-piece Metropolitan Police Boys Club Band under the direction of Maj. Leon Brusiloff, will also be in attendance.

The rules of the tournament have been simplified:

Scoring basis scratch for men will be 128 and for women 118. Full handicaps will be in effect. Entry fee, lowest of any major bowling event in this area, will be 50 cents, with 25 cents going to the Police Boys' Club, and the other 25 cents into the prize fund.

There will be prizes for high game and high set. All bowlers must have rolled at least 15

Mikan Loafs, Scores Only 17 In Laker Win

Minneapolis, Feb. 13 (AP).—George Mikan took it easy with 17 points and Jim Pollard led the Minneapolis Lakers to a 91 to 74 win over Baltimore in a Basketball Association of America game before 5641 fans here tonight.

Pollard tallied 32 points as Minneapolis coasted to its thirty-first victory in 43 games. The Lakers at one time maintained a margin of 29 points with only Connie Simmons, who dropped seven baskets from the field offering any opposition.

Touchdowners Hold 'Feerick' Luncheon Today

The Touchdown Club honors Bob Feerick, captain of the Washington Caps, at its weekly 12:30 luncheon today.

The club has extended an invitation to the public to attend promising that many sports notables will be on hand including Maurice Podoloff, president of the Basketball Association of America, and representatives of the Nats, Redskins and area colleges.

Profits realized from the dinner will go into a fund for a present for Feerick, who will be honored in a special night, next Saturday when the Caps entertain the Baltimore Bullets at Uline Arena.

Elizabeth Barger Wins Gulli Tourney

Elizabeth Barger of Baltimore won the annual Lorraine Gulli bowling tournament yesterday with a score of 1257. Miss Gulli finished fourth with 1221.

The only other Washingtonians in the first six at the Lucky Strike Alleys was Lucy Rose, who rolled 1233.

Bobsledding Off

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP).—The ill-fated world bobsled championships, plagued by unfavorable weather and accidents, are now scheduled to get under way Tuesday over Mount Van Hovenberg's treacherous icy run.

Zale Will Fight Cerdan In Chicago

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Instead of retiring, veteran Tony Zale will attempt to recapture the world middleweight title for the second time in April or May in a Chicago title fight with Champion Marcel Cerdan, it was learned tonight.

Matchmaker Chickie Bogad, of the Tournament of Champions announced tonight that Zale had sent official notification to the T. of C. that his contract for a return bout with Cerdan of Morocco must be carried out.

Bogad said he didn't know where or when the return scrap would be held. However, it was learned from other sources that the T. of C. has decided to stage it at the Chicago Stadium, in cooperation with the stadium promoters.

T. of C. brass hats want the Cerdan-Zale tilt in April or May so that the winner can defend during the summer against the winner of a nontitle bout between Ray (Sugar) Robinson, welterweight champion, and Middleweight Steve Belloise. Belloise and Robinson are tentatively scheduled to fight at Cleveland on March 30 under joint promotion of Larry Atkins of Cleveland and the T. of C.

Zale Rejects Retirement Hints

Officials of the T. of C. are confident that the summer battle of winners will be held in New York, for they have nearly completed negotiations to take over a metropolitan ball field.

Incidentally, the T. of C. has Cerdan under contract for two title fights.

Bogad's announcement tonight means that Zale, who will be 35 in May, had rejected suggestions of retirement from Abe J. Greene, commissioner of the National Boxing Association, and of his co-managers, Sam Pian and Art Winch.

Pian and Winch wanted Zale to retire because the former steel worker appeared to be "washed up" last September 21 when he was stopped in the twelfth round by Cerdan in their title fight

Douglas' 268 Beats Out Snead by Stroke

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 13 (AP).—Lanky Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del., found the pot at the end of the rainbow today—in the $10,000 Texas open with a score of 268 for 72 holes.

Douglas, who had won only $55.00 along the winter tournament trail until today, shot a 6-under-par 65 over Brackenridge Park's par 71, 6400-yard course to capture first money of $2000.

The tall fellow shaded Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., by a stroke in a dramatic finish that had the largest gallery in the history of the Texas open crowding around the eighteenth green.

Douglas drove onto the green and was 15 feet from the pin. He stroked it to 2 feet and sank it, then clasped his hands and grinned broadly.

Snead had just canned a 12-inch putt for a birdie on the hole and would have tied Douglas had the latter missed his second putt. Snead shot a 66 on the final 18.

Douglas has played in three tournaments this year—Phoenix, Tucson and here. He won last money of $55.00 at Tucson. His last tournament victory until today was the Orlando, Fla., open in 1947.

Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., finished in a tie for third place with 270. Each had a 67 on the final 18 holes. Palmer had a 6—two over par—on No. 16 or he would have tied for first place. He hit a tree, chipped short and three-putted from 5 feet out.

Metz came into No. 18 with a chance to go five under par and put him at 269. His putt stopped on the rim of the cup. He waited a minute thinking it might drop in but it didn't.

Tied for fifth place were E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock and Jimmie Demaret of Ojai, Calif., who had the greatest round of the tournament—a blazing 64 today. Both wound up with 273. Demaret went into the water on No. 18 and was one over on the hole or he might have tied his competitive course record for Brackenridge, set at 62 in 1947.

Tied for seventh place were Al Brosch of Garden City, N. Y., Jimmie Walkup of Midlothian, Ill., and Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans.

Snead's second place was worth $1,000 to him. Metz and Palmer each got $900.

Demaret won $650, which put him back as the leading money winner of the year. He now has earned $5,862.50.

Turner's Offers Four Feature Bouts Tonight

They'll say it with uppercuts and jabs instead of flowers at tonight's Turner's Arena Valentine Day boxing show.

This evening's card is another package job with no less than eight (count 'em) main eventers pitted in four eight-round tiffs.

In what should be the feature, Washington's Johnny Arduini, who's lost only 2 of his 24 pro fights, takes on Art Llanos, classy Puerto Rican who is the winner of all 14 of his featherweight bouts as a pro and unbeaten as an amateur.

Danny Petro, the Southwest bad boy, tees off against Corky Rogers, New York featherweight rated by the January Ring Magazine as "Fighter of the Month."

Herbie Jones, District lightweight, is expected to have his hands full against Johnny Johniken, another New Yorker. Jones won his last two Turner's Arena fights by kayos.

Garland Edwards and Holly Mims, local welters, meet in a return eight. This is their third meeting, the previous bouts being draws.

Kentucky May Swing Over to NIT

By Murray Rose

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Tournament time is approaching and from now on every game will have an important bearing on bids and conference basketball championships.

The field is beginning to shape up for the two major tourneys, the National Invitation Tournament and NCAA meet.

Right now we would say the following teams figure in the NIT running: Kentucky (19-1), St. Louis (16-1), and Oklahoma A. & M. (15-3), the one-two-three college teams of the Nation in order; Western Kentucky (19-3), Tulane (19-2), San Francisco (19-4), Chicago Loyola (16-4), Utah (18-5), Villanova (15-3), Bowling Green (15-6), Holy Cross (12-6), Butler (15-3), Duquesne (14-3), De Paul (13-7), CCNY (13-4), North Carolina State (17-8), La Salle (16-4), Yale (16-4), Texas (14-5), Bradley (22-4), and possibly Hamline (17-1).

Only eight quintets are picked for the NIT. Last year the eight named were New York U., Texas, De Paul, North Carolina State, Western Kentucky, LaSalle, St. Louis and Bowling Green. St. Louis won the title by defeating NYU which seems out of the running this reason.

Several of the possibilities for the NIT will figure in the NCAA running. Several of them usually prefer to cast their lot with the NCAA if given a choice.

Kentucky, which won the NCAA crown last year, probably will swing over to the New York NIT in order to get a crack at St. Louis if the Billikens go East.

Here are the present conference leaders in the van for the majority of the eight NCAA berths (with their league records):

Southern—North Carolina State, 10-1.

Southeastern—Kentucky, 8-0; Tulane, 10-2.

Big Nine—Illinois, 7-1; Minnesota, 7-2.

Missouri Valley—Oklahoma A. and M., 5-0; St. Louis, 4-1.

Big Seven—Nebraska, 5-0; Oklahoma, 5-1.

Southwest—Arkansas, 6-2; Baylor and Rice, 5-2 each.

Border—Arizona, 8-2.

Big Six—Wyoming, 9-3; Utah, 8-4.

Pacific Coast—South, Southern California and UCLA, 4-2 each; Stanford, 3-3. North, Washington State and Oregon State, 7-3 each.

Tom's Auto Clinches Loop Playoff Berth

Tom's Auto routed Myron Cowell, 60-37, last night at Montgomery Blair High to clinch a playoff spot in the Montgomery County Park Basketball League. Ollie Kennedy paced the winners with 20 points.

PREPPING FOR THE BIG SHOW—Paul Perkins, one of Washington's top bowlers; Doris Land (center) and Mrs. Lorraine Werlla got in a few practice games last night in preparation for the opening of The Washington Post's third annual tournament which starts today. Proceeds from the big tourney go to the Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs

Interhighs Compete for 3 Playoff Spots

The area high schools have 65 basketball games carded this week, during which it will decide which three teams will join Wilson (8-0) in the Interhigh playoffs.

Eastern (5-1), Coolidge (5-2) and Central (5-2) have the best chance to win the remaining berths. McKinley Tech (4-3) and Western (3-4) still hover in the background with mathematical chances of crashing into the titular round-robin February 22 and 26 at the Armory.

Eastern has an excellent opportunity to tighten its hold on second place at the expense of cellar-dwelling Bell Vocational this afternoon at 3:30 at Eastern.

Coolidge also plays a second-division team, Anacostia, today in the first game of a 3:30 doubleheader at the Armory. In the second game, Western meets seventh-place Roosevelt. Western must win today or be eliminated.

Tonight at the Kensington Armory, the top cut of the Tri-State League collide. Priory, in first place with 7-0, meets Devitt Prep, the second place club, with 6-1. The winner can practically wrap up the pennant.

Uline Wrestling Varied Tonight

A Tarzan, an "Orchid Boy," a Green Hornet (clad in green), a reformed Red Terror, and a special women's match comprise the dramatis personnae tonight on the Uline Arena wrestling card.

And to top it off, the promoters promise "the hearts and flowers of Valentine's Day will be tossed aside" when Therese Theis, former ice skating queen, and Dot Dotson of Miami conduct themselves in an unladylike manner.

St. John's High Trounces St. Paul's

St. John's High trounced St. Paul's, 72 to 28, last night at the Merrick gym. Bob McDonald was high for the winners with 15 points and Bill Mattingly had 14.

In the preliminary game, St. John's junior varsity routed the St. Paul Jayvees, 60 to 21.

Soccer Results

OSIA remained undefeated in the second half of the Washington and Suburban Soccer League yesterday, beating Pan-American, 2-1. In other games Maryland Sports Club whipped Columbia, 1-0, and Charles County beat Rockville, 2-0. In a Rowland Cup game Martin's Bakery turned back Washington French, 2-0.

CYO Results

Blessed Sacrament topped St. Martin's, 34-17, yesterday to close out its season unbeaten in eight games and capture both rounds of the senior competition of the Catholic Youth Organization Girls Basketball League.

Sheila Hessler paced the champions with 22 points. In the other senior game, at St. Martin's gym, Nativity defeated St. Francis de Sales, 30-26.

In intermediate games at Merrick, St. Martin's upset St. Peter's, first-round titlist, 22-13, with Patricia scoring 11 points; St. Joseph's, second-round winner, downed St. Anthony's 28-15, and St. Gabriel's beat Holy Comforter, 22-15.

CYO Boys Results

St. Michael's clinched a playoff spot in the Catholic Youth Organization boys junior competition yesterday, beating out St. Anthony's, 30-28, at Nativity gym.

Tony Anastasia provided the margin of victory for St. Michael's when he stole the ball and dribbled the length of the court to score with less than a minute remaining.

Girl, 11, Wins Honor With Self-Portrait

Feminine artists who go in for self-portraits should choose their clothes carefully when they "sit" for themselves, if they wish to profit from the experience of an Alexandria (Va.) painter.

This artist, who has been painting in oils during the last quarter of her life, did a portrait of herself in a favorite plaid dress.

The self-portrait won first honorable mention at the Washington Square Outdoor Annual Art Competition last year in New York—but she never wore the plaid dress again.

Wearied of Dress

It seems it took her so long to paint the picture and she got so sick of studying the lines and colors of the plaid that she "couldn't bear" to put it on again afterward.

The painter, whose experience will provide food for thought to other artists of her sex, was Joanne Anderson of 205 E. Glebe rd., Alexandria, all of 11 years old and one of three children who have won awards at a current exhibition of Children's oils at the Fairfax-Gilpin Studio, 106 Prince st., Alexandria.

With apparent regard for the vanities of her sex, Joanne didn't come right out yesterday and say that feminine artists should paint themselves in unflattering clothes so a favorite dress won't be lost forever. But she indicated that perhaps it is well not to don a "favorite, favorite" dress.

In Sixth Grade

The daughter of Joe Anderson, District policeman, Joanne is in the sixth grade of the Mount Vernon School. Flowers are her favorite painting subjects, and the picture which Mrs. Jeane Fowler Roberts of the Fairfax-Gilpin Studio selected for second award is entitled "Flower Cart."

First award winner in the exhibition, which will be open to the public until March 1, was Harrison McConnell, 13, 510 Wolfe st., Alexandria. His "Clipper Ship," like a dozen other paintings he has done on the subject, was drawn from a study of pictures and drawings and his own imagination, for he has never seen this type of ship, he explained yesterday.

Harrison, the son of Mrs. Zerelda McConnell of 510 Wolfe st., Alexandria, not only paints ships, but makes ship models. A coin collector as well, he also enjoys such outdoor sports as swimming and baseball with his eighth grade classmates at George Washington High School.

Fifth Grader Stresses Flowers

Eleven-year-old Mildred Tyler Rupley, whose colorful "Fruit and Flower Shop" was also recognized as outstanding in the current children's exhibit, won first prize in the Rawlette art contest in Alexandria when she was only 9. She showed talent when she began art classes the year before that, and won an honorable mention in the Washington Square show last year.

A fifth grade student in the Felicity School in McLean, Va., Mildred-Tyler likes to paint flowers best of all. When she began, with crayons, she didn't know you could use paint to make pictures, she recalled yesterday. She is the daughter of Arthur R. Rupley, real estate man, and Mrs. Rupley, of 1018 10th st., Alexandria.

Snyder Is Cool To Reminder of Vivien Kellems

By the United Press

Miss Vivien Kellems, who refuses to pay Government withholding taxes for her employes, yesterday reminded Secretary of the Treasury Snyder that this is their "anniversary."

But Treasury sources said the gentleman isn't even interested. He will deal with the Westport (Conn.) cable grip manufacturer, when "the time comes."

And the time may come, they hinted, about March 15.

Miss Kellems, who once had her bankroll frozen under similar circumstances, sent a telegram to Snyder remining him it was just a year ago that she took the peldge not to withhold Federal taxes from her workers' pay envelopes.

Since then, she said, "I have not collected one thin dime."

"Why don't you punish me?" she demanded. "Are you just negligent of your duty? Or is it because you know the (withholding) law is unconstitutional?"

Invitation to Negro To Address Miami Church Canceled

Miami, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP).—An invitation to a Negro minister to address the Miami Shores Community Church was withdrawn today and a meeting scheduled to vote on whether to retain the regular minister.

The Rev. Donald Douds, minister of the inter-denominational church, had asked the Rev. Edward Graham of Mount Zion Baptist Church to speak tonight as part of Brotherhood Week.

The church board tentatively approved the action Thursday and said it would put the question up to the 700-member congregation.

But last night crosses were burned in front of the two churches and Mr. Douds said he received anonymous telephone calls and "threats of violence."

Late today L. F. Ward, chairman of the board of trustees of the community church, said the talk had been canceled and a meeting of members of the church called on February 22 to vote on whether to retain Mr. Douds.

Expansion Calls For Gas Industry To Spend 3 Billion

The National Security Resources Board said yesterday a survey indicates the gas industry will spend more than three billion dollars by 1942 in connection with a vast expansion program.

Edward Falck, NSRB chief consultant on power and utilities, said more than 80 per cent of that amount would be spent for natural gas facilities.

The results of the survey have been submitted to John R. Steelman, presidential assistant who is acting chairman of the NSRB.

The report said completion of facilities for handling gas cannot keep pace with demands because of a lack of pipeline steel.

The survey of the industry indicated sales of gas of all types by American utilities are expected to show a five-year increase of 50 per cent by the end of 1952.

New Publication To Cover Atomic Business Field

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Business opportunities offered by atomic energy will be covered by a new publication, "Atomic Energy Newsletter." Its editors announced today the start of the "nontechnical, beweekly" paper.

They said it will be the first publication "devoted exclusively to the business side of the atom" and will attempt to help industry "identify the opportunities that atomic energy holds for it."

Robert M. Sherman, who heads the paper's staff, said the publication is the result of a request by James W. Parker, general manager and president of the Detroit Edison Co., for "greater atomic energy information for industry."

Pulaski Man, 53, Found Dead In Cistern With Throat Cut

Pulaski, Va., Feb. 13 (AP).—A 53-year-old man with his throat cut was found dead today in the concrete cistern in the backyard of his new three-room cottage near here.

A gory trail led from the kitchen to the body in the well. Authorities went to the house only to investigate reports received from a badly beaten woman that "Charlie McFall did it."

Police found the body of Charles L. McFall in the cistern.

Sheriff L. R. Summers said the top was on the cistern making it pretty plain that McFall hadn't taken his own life.

He expressed a belief, too, that the injured woman, Mrs. Myrtle Stoots Orange, would have been physically unable to have done it.

At the McFall house police found a stained two-pound axe, red stains on the kitchen floor and wall and the trail leading to the cistern. A quantity of empty beer cans and several whisky bottles were in the house. On the table were remnants of a pork chop dinner.

Sheriff Summers said that a neighbor, Lee Wright, reported he had seen McFall about 9:30 a. m. in front of the house talking with a man in a brown-striped suit. That was the only information he could add, the sheriff said.

Red Newspaper Hits U. S. Airmen For Wartime Raid

Prague, Feb. 13 (NYHT..).—American airmen were charged here today with intentionally killing hundreds of Czechs during a raid on Prague four years ago.

They were accused by the Communist Party organ Rudo Prava of committing wanton murder here and elsewhere in Europe during World War II.

The paper said that the "inefficiency" of American fliers was not enough to explain the fact that 701 Czech civilians were killed and 1184 wounded when heavy bombers of the "Fifteenth Air Force" destroyed 93 houses in Prague on February 14, 1945, while they were supposed to be carrying out a raid on the capital's railway communications. The paper said the results of the raid could only be explained as "an intentional act."

13 New Liners to Use New York as Home Port

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Thirteen new American-flag passenger liners—which will use New York as a home port—are either nearing completion or in the planning stages.

The figure was reported by Frank J. Taylor, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute, in a statement prepared for a radio program, "Adventures in Industry," over station WMCA tonight.

Stab in Throat Kills Woman; Sister Is Held

A 46-year-old woman died early yesterday at Casualty Hospital, less than six hours after she was stabbed in the throat with a butcher knife.

Police identified the victim as Oaddie Taylor, who lived at 1017 Browning pl. ne. Police said they are holding her sister, Mary Ellen Wrenn, 37, of the Browning st. address, for a coroner's inquest, to be held today at 11:30 a. m.

Police said Mary Ellen Wrenn told them she was in the kitchen peeling potatoes with the knife, when the sister came home shortly after 10 p. m. Saturday. The sister had been drinking and began nagging her, police quoted Mary Ellen Wrenn.

Without realizing that her sister was standing directly behind her, she raised the knife up over her shoulder, striking her sister in the left side of the throat, police were told. Oaddie Taylor was taken by ambulance to Casualty Hospital, where she died at 5:45 a. m.

Railroads Report '48 Safety Record Is Best in 12 Years

The railroad industry said yesterday its passenger safety record in 1948 was the best in 12 years.

Fatalities to employes on duty, the Association of American Railroads said, dropped last year to the lowest point in the half century in which accurate records have been kept.

The statements were made in connection with preliminary statistics compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission which showed 19 passengers killed in train collisions or derailments last year as compared with 34 the year before. The ICC listed 23 other passengers as having lost their lives in other mishaps involving train operations in 1948, against 31 in 1947.

There were 566 fatalities to employes on duty compared with 709 in the previous 12 months.

The ICC data showed 1378 trespassers killed by trains last year, a drop of 22 from the year before; and a total of 1608 deaths of non-train-riders in rail-highway grade crossing accidents. Nonrider grade crossing deaths in 1947 totaled 1790.

Foundation Elects Rep. Herter President

Election of Representative Herter (R., Mass.) as president of the Foreign Service Educational Foundation was announced yesterday by the foundation trustees.

Philip H. Watts of Washington, who has been serving as treasurer, was named vice president.

Lochridge Team Wins N. Y. Bridge Tourney

New York, Feb. 13 (NYHT).—The C. S. Lochridge four won the Vanderbilt Cup national knockout team-of-four championship tonight at the Hotel Pierre at the completion of the six-day tournament.

The team, whose other members were Lee Hazen, Morrie Elis, Harry J. Fishbein and Larry Hirsch, all of New York, led the runners-up by the small margin of 200 points. Their opponents were the team of Mrs. Helen Sobel, B. Jay Becker and Myron Field, of New York; Charles H. Goren, of Philadelphia, and Oswald Jacoby, of Dallas, Tex.

The Lochridge team provided the tournament's high spot of excitement. On Thursday night at the half-way mark it was 1510 points behind but finished the match 70 points ahead. Behind 1790 points at the half-way mark the next night, it made another recovery to win by 250 points. In Saturday night's semi-finals the team was trailing by 1100 points at the half, climbed to a 30-point lead at the end of the third quarter and finished ahead by 270 points.

The team-of-four tournament followed the life master and senior master individual competitions. George Rapee, of New York, won the former. The second was won by Clagett Bowie, of Towson, Md.

Signal Corps Evolves Parachute Teletype

Fort Monmouth, N. J., Feb. 13 (U.P.).—The Army has developed a portable teletypewriter so light that one man can carry it on a parachute jump, the Signal Corps announced today.

The new teletypewriter weighs only 45 pounds, will operate on both wire and radio circuits and is waterproof.

Military vs. Civilian Control of Services Causes Pentagon Uproar

Excitement was high among the top Defense command at the Pentagon the other day. The cause of it all was that age-old controversy—military vs. civilian control of the armed services.

It's an open secret that the Hoover Commission will urge far greater civilian control over the military agencies in a report to be issued soon. The No. 1 civilian in the Pentgon is Defense Secretary Forrestal who is also a hard-working member of the Hoover Commission.

Forrestal made some of the suggestions to give civilians more authority over the military up to a point—but that point wasn't as far as some of his commission colleagues argued for. When compromises were reached, he tipped off several of his top military advisers on what they would be—and they will be rather sweeping in the civilian direction.

An advance copy of the defense report arrived at the Pentagon several days ago. Several of Forrestal's assistants who studied it agreed that its recommendations for civilian control over the military went much further than they had been warned in advance by the Secretary. Forrestal hit the ceiling when he read the controversial sections.

The Secretary acted swiftly. It's reported on good authority that he called in his Hoover Commission workers to demand that the defense report be rewritten at once to carry out what he understood to be their prior agreements or else, he hinted, he would:

(1) Publicly denounce the commission when the report was issued, and (2) resign from the commission.

Now that the storm has subsided, the Pentagon officials now believe the whole incident was the result of a misunderstanding. But they will be relieved when the report is rewritten and issued officially to conform to their understanding.

SALARIES: The salary recommendations in the Hoover report will place leaders of big employe groups squarely on the hot spot.

Federal workers themselves are certain to be split down the middle on the recommendation to have local wage boards fix and adjust their salaries. The big city members where cost of living is high, as in the Capital, will be inclined to support the suggestion as a way toward higher salaries.

On the other hand, employes in rural areas where the cost of living and prevailing wage rates are lower will wage an all-out fight against the Hoover plan. To support it, they argue, will be to invite a wage slash.

The No. 1 object of the wage plan, a Hoover Commission member explains, is to give employes equal buying power for equal work. For example, a $3000 salary here is worth a lot more in my small home town in Missouri than it's worth here. And in Missouri, that salary would be worth less in cities such as St. Louis and Kansas City.

The second object is to find a system that will be more responsive to economic trends. Classified and postal salaries must be fixed by Congress. As everyone now realizes, salary boosts for these people have lagged far behind the cost of living and they are still behind for most employes.

On the other hand, pay raises for many of the 600,000 per diems whose salaries are fixed by local wage boards were made long before the classified and postal employes were boosted.

Salaries geared to such a formula are fine for any group of workers while the cost of living is rising. But living costs appear to have reached their peak and a turndown is now evident. As the downward trend continues, the Hoover pay plan will draw more and more employe opposition.

FCEA: A chapter of The Federal Career Employes Association has been organized here. Its officers are John S. Bartlett, president; J. Harold Anderson, vice president; Adam E. Underwood, treasurer, and Velma Crank, secretary. Said Bartlett

"The immediate objective of the association will be to negotiate the placement of certain career employes, who have been displaced through no fault of their own, in jobs now held by temporary and war service appointees. This is part of a long-range program to uphold the merit system in Federal employment and thus make it more attractive to desirable recruits by offering them at least some degree of job security."

NAVY: A job referral service will be established today in the Main Navy Building and at the Naval Gun Factory here. Applicants for any Navy job in the classified service should go to Room 1213 of the Main Navy Building. Applicants for skilled and unskilled jobs are to go to the Gun Factory at 11th and N sts. se.

NOTES: Paul Oppernann has resigned as urban planning officer of the Federal Works Agency to take a better-paying job as city planner for San Francisco . . . Arthur Flemming will discuss the report of the Hoover Commission at a meeting tomorrow night of the American Society for Public Administration. The session will be held at 8 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium. No reservations required . . . State Department employes will hold another fellowship breakfast Wednesday morning.

Lincoln Held Inspiration to All Generations

Sen. Chapman, Others Eulogize Memory on Birthday Anniversary

"Abraham Lincoln was not an abolitionist, he was an emancipationist," Senator Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.) said yesterday.

Chapman, eulogizing the memory of the martyred President in a birthday anniversary program held by the Lincoln Group of the District of Columbia in co-operation with the National Park Service, said Lincoln was "an emancipationist as Jefferson was an emancipationist and as was the peerless Robert Edward Lee."

Speaking as one whose "every drop of blood is Southern blood, and who is a Southern Democrat," Chapman said, "I give thanks that the Union was saved. Lincoln was the best friend the South had. He was a Southerner himself.

Constitutional Issue Cited

"He knew, as all historians knew, that it was a war over a constitutional question."

Chapman said the Reconstruction period would have been much easier for the South "if Abraham Lincoln had lived to continue as President of our Nation."

Representative Barratt O'Hara (D., Ill.) was chairman of the meeting held in the Lincoln Museum, formerly Ford's Theater, at 511 10th st. nw. More than 350 persons were present.

Life Always Inspiring

O'Hara, recalling that Lincoln while a Congressman during the period of the war with Mexico in 1847 "didn't believe it was altogether justified," said Lincoln's opposition to a popular cause then could still be a source of inspiration for independent thinking.

"His life gives inspiration generation after generation," O'Hara said, and described Lincoln as having been given by Kentucky to Illinois, and by Illinois to the world.

A special feature of the program were the songs by the Department of Agriculture Choristers. The Rev. John C. Palmer gave the invocation, and the American Legion provided a color guard.

Knights Templar Holding Easter Sunrise Services

Thousands of Knights Templar from over the Nation will converge on the Capital April 17 to join the five Washington cammandaries in the Easter sunrise services in the amphitheater at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Richard E. Titlow, 5512 Sonoma rd., Alta Vitsa, Md., past grand commander of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, said yesterday that the program is nearing completion and that a nationally known clergyman has been invited to deliver the sermon.

Titlow indicated that as in the past the services would be broadcast on a Nation-wide hookup and shortwaved around the world.

The Conference of Masonic Grand Lodge Secretaries will open next Monday morning in the Pan-American Room of the Hotel Statler. This conference will be followed by a session of the Grand Masters and the annual meeting of the George Washington Masonic Masters and the annual meeting of the George Washington Masonic Memorial Association in the Memorial Temple at Alexandria on February 22.

St. Valentine Day Quatrains Inspired by Old Roman Swains

Because, on this day, way back when the Caesars were running things, Roman romeos lined up their dates to watch the priests sacrifice some goats and dogs, you may find in your mailbox some inspired quatrain like:

If monks and stinkies in the zoo,
If birds and bees and bull frogs, too,
Go 'round in pairs the way they do,
Why not I and you?

And you'll probably love it, fractured lambs and all. Because it's St. Valentine's Day and any old scansion will do as long as it's dunked in enough treacle.

It needn't at all be confined to the rigid formalism of a single rhyme scheme, as in the deathless plaint quoted above. You may feel a warm, rapturous glow perusing something slightly less monotonous, prosodically, like:

The good old-fashioned Valentine
Had lots of frills and lace,
But nowadays . . . This plainer kind
You'll find is in its place

This sedate missive comes enfolded in a cover which depicts a glinting blue bird parked on a flaming red heart—but no frills anywhere on the burning surface.

And all this evolved from the old Roman goat-butchering shindigs. The Feast of Lupercalia, they called it, and while the Luperci or priests whetted their razors, the swains got out their little black books.

All the names went into a box and the boys took pot luck, marching to the abattoir arm in arm with the girl whose name they plucked out.

Lover Boy . . .

For some reason, possibly because of uninspired research on the part of unromantic encyclopedists, it has never been precisely determined where and how St. Valentine got into the act.

One story with the proper love tie-in persists, however, about the young Roman priest, Valentine, who was martyred on February 14, 270. The reigning monarch at the time was one Claudius, a trouble-maker who apparently couldn't keep out of wars.

In those days, marriage was a rather close tie, and it seemed that husbands were loathe to leave their hearths to go fight wars. When this fact dawned on Claudius, he simply forbid marriage. Working on the sly, Valentine defiantly kept on making husbands out of men, was caught at it and liquidated.

But, alas, what disillusionment would St. Valentine have suffered had he visited Washington's downtown drugstores last night and seen that about the only Valentine cards left unsold were those consigned to "My Dear Husband."

Parley to Hear Paul A. Porter

Paul A. Porter, attorney and former OPA administrator, will address the opening session of the second National Citizens Conference on Civil Liberties at 9:30 Tuesday morning in the YWCA Building, 17th and K sts. nw.

Porter will speak on "Government and Civil Liberties." Sponsored by the Civil Liberties Clearing House, the conference will hold study and discussion periods all day Tuesday and Wednesday.

Also scheduled to speak Tuesday on various aspects of civil liberties are Dr. Ernest O. Melby, dean of the school of education, New York University; Duward W. Sandifer, deputy director of the State Department's Office of United Nations Affairs, and Mrs. Harper Sibley, president of the United Council of Church Women.

2910th Cavalry to Meet

Police Probe Incomplete on Cabbie Beating

Police investigation into the Thomas Circle beating of Cab Driver James Rowell, 30 days ago has not been completed yet, they reported yesterday.

No reasons were given for the delay either by superintendent of police, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, or Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, in charge of the investigation.

Rowell was brutally assaulted on January 14.

Police did not start their investigation until January 30.

On February 9, Barrett said the police probe would be completed "by the end of this week," which was yesterday.

Results of the police investigation will be turned over to the United States attorney's office, Barrett has said.

Rowell suffered a broken left arm and bruised ribs, and lost three teeth in the early morning attack, when he says he was jumped by two unknown men. Rowell said he had stopped for headache powders at a Thomas Circle drugstore. He said he saw his assailants beating another person, and when he left the drugstore was assaulted by them.

He declared yesterday he is still unable to use his left arm, and will not be able to drive his taxi for at least 10 days.

Police Surprise Boy Looting Safe

Police last night surprise 16-year-old youth removing bills from a safe in the office of the Lincoln Cab Co., 701 K st. se.

A Fifth Precinct scout car, manned by Pvts. Lee G. Scripture and John R. Bowles, answered a call by neighbors who saw the boy at work.

Police said he had hacked a hole in the top of the safe with a hammer and chisel and was extracting the money when they arrived. There was about $250 in the safe, according to police.

The boy was sent to the Receiving Home to await action by juvenile authorities.

Woman, 75, Found Dying At Bus Stop

Hit by CTC Vehicle, Policemen Report; Victim Succumbs On Reaching Hospital

D. C. traffic deaths 1949.... 9
Deaths this date last year... 10
Total traffic deaths 1948.....67

An elderly woman was found fatally injured in the street near 13th and H sts. ne. at 7 o'clock last night.

Police said she had been struck by a Capital Transit bus whose driver apparently knew nothing of the accident until policemen found bits of flesh between the right wheel's dual tires and inside the fender well, about 35 minutes after the accident.

Found Near Bus Stop

The victim was identified as Annie Cook, about 75, of 1336 E st. ne. She was found in 13th st. near a bus stop about 75 feet south of H st., by Pvts. E. M. Carroll and W. K. Gilbert of the Accident Investigation Unit, after an unidentified informant had telephone police that a woman was lying in the street there. The woman died in Casualty Hospital 35 minutes later.

The two policemen figured the injuries must have been caused either by an automobile or a bus. On the chance it might have been a bus, they followed the bus route which uses that thoroughfare toward the end of the line at Bladensburg rd. and South Dakota ave. ne. The first bus they hailed was driven by Charles J. LaRue, 44, of 334 8th st. se.

Bus They Sought

Examination showed it was the bus they were looking for, they reported. They said LaRue recalled taking on 14 passengers and letting several off at the stop near where the woman was found. But he did not remember seeing such a woman, nor did he know anything of an accident, the policemen said he told them.

They said LaRue would be taken to the Morgue to see if he could recognize the woman's body, then would be released in custody of Capital Transit officials pending a coroner's inquest.

The woman's death brought the total traffic fatalities in the District so far this year to nine. Eight of them were pedestrians. Of the nine traffic deaths here at this time last year, seven were pedestrians, and of the total of 67 traffic deaths here last year, 52 were pedestrians.

Hit Car, Police Say

An Arlington motorist was accused yesterday of plowing into a parked police scout car and injuring a policeman investigating two earlier accidents at the same spot. The driver was charged with driving while drunk.

Arlington police said Wilbur W. Kauffman, 24, of 2125 S. Fern st., disregarded flares and the scout car's red warning lights when his auto struck the scout car "at high speed" at 4:47 a. m. on Jefferson Davis hwy. at S. 18th st.

Police Pvt. Bernard Lunsford, who was in the scout car, was treated for chest injuries at Anderson Clinic.

Earlier, at 3:30 a. m., a sedan driven by William H. Allphine, 23, of 514 S. 26th st., Arlington, struck and felled a telephone pole at the same intersection after Allphine said another car forced him off the road.

Another Crash

Seconds later another sedan driven by Ralph W. Belt, 32, of 22 N. Custis ave., Alexandria, ran into the fallen telephone wires. An estimated $150 damages was caused to the car. Neither Allphine nor Belt was hurt.

In another early morning accident, District police reported that Carey K. Quinn, 26, of 1301 Vermont ave. nw., sideswiped a parked car in the 4300 block of Reno rd. nw., then careened over the curb and struck two trees.

Quinn, an electrician goods salesman, was treated at Emergency Hospital for shoulder injuries. Also treated for face cuts was his wife, Mrs. Mary L. Quinn, 27.

Chances Better

Rector Boy To Get New Skin Graft

Michael Rector, 4-year-old victim of third-degree burns covering 70 per cent of his body, yesterday began his fourth month at Casualty Hospital with "a little better than a 50-50 chance" of living, his physician said.

His fourth skin graft operation, which he underwent on January 29, was "very successful," the doctor found when the wounds were dressed recently. However, a low blood condition necessitated giving plasma and two blood transfusions last week.

The plucky youngster, who was believed to have had less than 24 hours to live when he was taken to the hospital November 12, will need two more grafts of skin taken from other persons. If these are successful, some skin will be grafted from unburned parts of his own body, the doctor said.

Tentative plans are to make the next graft on Wednesday, from one of the several volunteers who have offered their skin to help the boy's gallant fight for life.

The 11 grafts which have been made in four operations have totaled more than 300 square inches of skin, some taken from the boy's father, Everett Rector, 35-year-old auto mechanic, and the remainder from two volunteers, George Becraft and Marine Sergt. John T. Rapp.

Possible toxic effects on the boy's liver, kidneys and brain are still a danger.

Disappearance Of P. C. Smith Still Mystery

3 of 4 Businesses Liquidated Since He Vanished Dec. 6

The disappearance more than two months ago of Percy C. Smith, 50-year-old Washington businessman, was still an unsolved mystery yesterday, according to his wife and police.

P. C. Smith

Three of the four businesses Smith was operating, when he left notes hinting at suicide and vanished last December 6, have been liquidated, the wife from whom he was estranged, Mrs. Edna Schwartz Smith, 1474 Columbia rd. nw., said.

The fourth, the Carlane Beauty Salon, 308 Cedar st. nw., is still in operation under the supervision of Eugene E. Roberts, 1457 Park rd. nw., temporary receiver for Smith's estate appointed by District Court on petition of Mrs. Smith. Roberts, vice president of Smith's (no relation) Transfer & Storage Co., 1313 U st. nw., was a close friend of the missing man.

Smith's former holdings in the Carlane Gift Shop, 1424 Park rd. nw.; Columbia Auditing Co., and the Structural Steel Painting Co., both of the Tivoli Building, 14th st. and Park rd. nw., have been disposed of.

Smith's parents, two brothers and a sister living in or near New Orleans and two brothers in Mississippi have had no word from him and are as mystified as she is, Mrs. Smith declared yesterday.

"I don't know whether he is alive or dead," she said, "and I have no theory. Sometimes I feel he must be alive because his body has not been found. But then he had a serious heart condition and had suffered a severe nervous strain, with difficulties in financing his businesses, and it seems as though he could not have survived."

One of two notes left by Smith when he disappeared said: "I have made plans for my body, as I would rather my people remember me as I was, and not as I am." Both notes mentioned financial difficulties.

At the Police Missing Persons Bureau yesterday, Pvt. Richard J. Latona said no reports concerning Smith nor clews to his fate have been received since his disappearance was first reported.

Fort Myer MP Charged With Five Burglaries

Caught in Arlington Store, Police State; Soldier Locked Up For Hearing Today

Arlington police yesterday arrested a Fort Myer military policeman and accused him of breaking into five county business places, all on Glebe rd., within the past week.

Charged with five counts of breaking and entering is Army Pfc. John Maxwell Havens, 19. Police said he had signed a statement admitting all five jobs.

Havens was arrested early yesterday after persons living in the vicinity of Dowd's Radio & Electric Co., 254 N. Glebe rd., telephoned police they had heard a store window break.

A five-man police squad, headed by Sergt. Lynn Smith, surrounded the store and reported they found Havens inside. They said he threw a loaded .45-caliber automatic in the men's washroom as police entered.

Also burglarized, police said, was Malcolm's Esso Station, 301 S. Glebe rd, where the safe dial had been knocked off but the safe was not opened; the Community Esso Station, 67 N. Glebe rd., where police said the .45 automatic was stolen; the Spudnut Doughnut Store at 76 N. Glebe rd., from which $25 in cash was taken, and the Greystone Restaurant, 650 N. Glebe rd. from which about $75 in cash was missing.

Havens was held in Arlington jail pending a hearing today in Arlington County Court.

Washington police reported yesterday an armed man accosted three women and two others had their purses snatched Saturday night and early Sunday.

Purse Thefts Reported

Mrs. Isabelle Lieberman, 823 Quincy st. nw., said that she and her daughter, Mrs. Bernice Sess, 26, and a friend, Mrs. Fannie Raine, were walking in the 900 block of Spring rd. nw., early yesterday when a man came up behind them, pointing a blue-steel revolver. He took Mrs. Lieberman's pocketbook with $25 and her daughter's containing $22, they said.

But police said the man did not take Mrs. Raine's bag containing $155.

In another case, Miss Jane L. Murphy, 22, an employe of The Washington Post (classified section), was walking up the steps of her apartment house at 1440 Meridian pl. nw., when a man, who had followed her, seized her pocketbook containing $10 and fled.

Frances E. Kennedy, 452 Massachusetts ave. nw., was within one block of her home Saturday night when a man grabbed her pocketbook and ran. She hung onto the strap of the bag, but it broke when the thief started up an alley. He dropped the purse, which was later recovered with $7 intact.

Early yesterday, a couple parked in a car at 41st and East Capitol sts., turned over a wallet with $5 to a man who approached the car wielding a revolver and demanding their money.

The wallet belonged to Miss Evangeline Knight, 18, of 4005 Ames st. ne. But her companion, Moses C. Durham, 24, of Route 2, Silver Spring, Md., kept his own wallet with $60 in it.

Church Club to Hear Dr. Seth R. Brooks

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, minister of the Universalist National Memorial Church, will speak to the men's club of Adas Israel Congregation Tuesday, at 8:30 p. m. in the observance of Brotherhood Week. Dr. Brooks is a member of the clergy committee of the National Council of Christians and Jews.

Phone Operator, Listening In, Saves Marine From Suicide

The 21-year-old Marine slouched into a phone booth at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad terminal in Silver Spring at 7:09 p. m.

In tears, he placed an emergency long-distance call to his mother. The number was in Youngstown, Ohio. Albert, it appeared, intended the call to be his last act before he hurled himself in front of an incoming train.

But his trembling voice and the word "emergency" alerted telephone operator Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, 39, of 8035 Eastern ave., Silver Spring.

She placed the call. She half listened until it became apparent this really was an emergency.

The Marine told his mother that he was going to commit suicide, that he and his wife had had "more trouble," and that his life was no longer worth living.

Mrs. Johnson immediately notified her service operator, Rowena Pitcherello. Within a minute, Pvt. Kelley Magee at Silver Spring Police Headquarters had the story and had dispatched Pvts. Albert Jackson and James Eddis to the station.

The Marine's mother was herself crying, imploring her son not to take his life, urging him to reconsider, and begging him to give himself another chance.

For an almost incredible 19 minutes the conversation continued. Finally, the youth hung up, still dedicated to self-destruction. The police had not yet arrived.

But just when the Marine left the phone booth, the police entered the station. Each was at first unaware of the other's presence.

Then the two officers spotted the Marine, took him quickly into custody, and a life was saved.

At police headquarters the youth was persuaded to call his mother again, and inform her that he was all right.

He was then turned over to the Shore Patrol.

Area News in Brief

Lights Go Haywire; Traffic Scrambled

Everybody went every which way for a time in downtown Washington yesterday morning.

Motorists charged through Northwest intersections with reckless abandon. Pedestrians held their hats as they tired of waiting and raced across streets dodging trucks and buses.

Trolleys spent anxious minutes nosing into streams of onrushing traffic. All because the traffic signals along 13th, 14th, 17th, E, F, G and Harvard sts. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. went on the blink at 8:30 a. m.

Six engineers from the Potomac Electric Power Co., soon found the trouble in the 1200 block of New York ave. nw., where the cable had burned.

A section 85 feet long was renewed by the linemen and the lights were generally back in operation by 10:30. And traffic moved at its normal Sunday way.

On Critical List

James J. Antinori, 50, of 3312 18th st. ne., received a possible skull fracture yesterday afternoon when he fell backward into a grease pit at a gasoline service station in the 700 block of Rhode Island ave. ne., police reported.

He was admitted to Casualty Hospital where his condition was reported to be critical. Police said he fell a distance of about 6 feet into the pit.

To Hear Israel Music

Eliahu Epstein, Minister of Israel to the United States, and his wife will be honor guests at a "Music of Israel" presentation in Cafritz Auditorium, Jewish Community Center, Wednesday night under auspices of the East-West Association and the center.

The program will feature three Israeli artists, Miss Hanna Kipnis, mezzo-soprano; Zvi Zeitlin, Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra first violinist, and Robert Starer, pianist and composer. Tickets are available at the center, 16th and Q sts. nw.

Lawrence G. Stelzle

Funeral services will be held today for Lawrence G. Stelzle, 74, a Washington native who left here in 1904 and became a manufacturer of motor truck bodies and snow plows in Queens County, New York.

Mr. Stelzle died unexpectedly of a heart attack Thursday at his home, 444 Central Park W., New York City. Private services will be held at 2 p.m. at the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. nw.

Mr. Stelzle is survived by his wife, Ann W. Stelzle, of New York City, and a sister, Mrs. Pauline Knudsen, 146 13th st. se.

Dr. Lleras to Speak

Dr. Alberto Lleras, secretary general of the Organization of American States of the Pan American Union and a former President of the Republic of Colombia, will address a Latin American night dinner of the Rotary Club of College Park, Md., at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday in the University of Maryland dining hall. He will be introduced by Dean S. S. Steinberg of the College of Engineering.

Badly Hurt in Fall

William D. Webb, 41, of 1228 Eye st. se., was reported in serious condition yesterday at Casualty Hospital, with a possible fracture, which he received Saturday afternoon when he fell down the basement stairs in his home, according to police.

Iran Talk Scheduled

Simmons College Alumnae Club of Boston will hear an address on the customs and government of Iran by Wallace S. Murray, former United States Ambassador to that country, at 8 o'clock tonight in the Willard Hotel. Miss Lois Hendrick, Arlington, is club president.

Law Group to Hear Flakice Corp. Official

Crosby Field, president of the Flakice Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., will be the guest speaker at the annual dinner of the American Patent Law Association Tuesday evening at the Hotel Statler. His subject will be "Invention Through the Ages."

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, members of Federal Courts in Washington, members of the House Judiciary Committee and officials of the Patent Office have accepted invitations to attend the dinner.

Conference Planned Soon on Stiffening License Rules for Baby-Sitter Agencies

By Judy Spivak
Post Reporter

Tighter regulations of professional baby-sitting agencies here are in prospect under impetus of general agreement among District officials that such regulations are overdue.

A conference on stiffening license requirements for the agencies will be called "within the next month," Chatham T. Nottingham, District superintendent of licenses, disclosed yesterday.

No regulations are now provided in the District specifically for the sitters' agencies, a business born during the late years of World War II, he said.

As "private employment agencies," the sitters' agencies, which charge their baby-minders a fee for placement, must pay $100 for an operating license under a District License Act amendment passed in 1932, Nottingham said.

A would-be operator of an employment agency receives a careful character inyestigation from the Police Department's Women's Bureau before his license is approved, and must, in addition, post $1000 bond.

But agencies are not required, under the present law, to make the thorough investigation of their sitters which the Women's Bureau feels is necessary.

The License Act states only that agencies must keep a registry of job applicants' names and addresses, with, "whenever possible," the names and addresses of former employers or character references.

The act then requires the agency "whenever possible to communicate orally or in writing with at least one of the persons mentioned as references for every applicant" and add: that "results of such investigation shall be kept on file."

Just Aren't Adequate

These requirements, drawn up to cover businesses like secretarial and domestic employment agencies, just aren't adequate for the sitters' registries, officials agree. These agencies, they point out, place persons who often have no advance contact with their employers, in complete charge of small children, frequently in homes full of valuableJ—and portable—property.

"The amazing thing is that we haven't had anything terrible happen," Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken, of the Police Department Women's Bureau, commented in discussing inadequacy of present license requirements for professional sitters' agencies.

The two professional sitters' agencies now operating under license here investigate their sitters, Captain Milliken said. But she pointed out that the District has no power to refuse or revoke a license under the present regulations, if a less reputable agency should fail to take such precautions.

Also in favor of tougher regulations for agencies is Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, director of the Bureau of Maternity and Child Welfare for the District Health Department, who termed regulation of baby-sitters "a very real problem that needs t obe tackled." She said an assistant is now investigating the matter.

Fined for Beating Infant

Pointing up the need for regulating the "sitters" is a recent Municipal Court case in which a 58-year-old professional sitter was fined $25 on an assault charge for beating a 6½-month-old infant.

Tighter licensing regulations, if approved, would affect only sitters enrolled with professional agencies, most of whom are older women. The two sitter firms in the District have a total registry of 300 sitters.

Exempt from any change in license requirements would be the large group of sitters who secure their jobs through school or club registries which charge no fee and are, therefore, exempt from the License Act.

A work census among junior, senior and vocational high school students in the fall of 1947 disclosed that 903 teen-agers "sat" with varying frequency, according to Miss Mildred Percy, chief counselor for the District's white high schools. In 1946, the census revealed only 470 youngsters who said they took such jobs, Miss Percy said.

A hard-to-estimate number of adult free-lance sitters would also be exempt from the regulations. Recent court cases have involved two such sitters, including a 46-year-old woman fined $25 last summer in Municipal Court for spanking her year-old charge, and a 28-year-old Air Force sergeant who recently came up before a District Court grand jury on a charge of committing indecent acts on a 5-year-old boy he was minding. The grand jury has not announced its decision in the case.

Urge Care Be Exercised

As to the nonprofessional sitters, officials urged parents to exercise considerable care in checking first on the free-lance baby-minder's references. Teen-agers under 16 should not be left with children unless adult help is available nearby in case of an emergency, they said.

As possible additions to the present law, Captain Milliken suggested the following stiffer regulations might be provided for the professional baby sitting agencies:

That agencies must require and investigate work and character references of sitters on their rolls.

That agencies must require their sitters to undergo periodic TB X-ray checks, and possibly Wasserman tests for syphillis.

That agencies must require evidence from sitters that they can change and feed a small child.

That agencies must require "fairly specific" information from applicants on their past history.

That agencies must hire no sitters under 16 years of age.

That agency owners applying for licenses be required to undergo fingerprint checks.

Captain Milliken added that the Women's Bureau has offered to aid the agencies by checking names of new sitting applicants against the police records.

The two professional sitters' agencies now operating in the District are Courtesy Associates, owned by Miss Jane Marilley, and an organization listed under two titles—Baby Sitters' Registry and Part-Time Mothers—owned by Mrs. Laura Christy Webster.

Both agency owners said they are entirely willing to see tougher license requirements go into effect.

130 Airport Projects Finished With U. S. Aid

Civil Aeronautics Administration D. W. Rentzel reported to Congress yesterday that 130 airport projects have been completed under the Federal aid airport program. Cost to the Government was $4,621,897.

Another $11,200,000 has been spent and $30,260,000 earmarked for 336 projects not yet completed.

1st Gray Man Is Graduated By Red Cross

A Washington real estate broker, who wanted to bring other men into District Red Cross hospital work, yesterday was graduated the District's first "Gray Man" in a class of 27 new Gray Ladies.

Ramon Hernandez, describing himself as "about 50," lives at 1765 R st. nw. He offered to give his time to the service when his wife, Mrs. Marianne Hernandez, decided to take the District Red Cross's course for Gray Ladies, early last fall.

Graduation ceremonies were held yesterday at the Red Cross house, Walter Reed Hospital. Mrs. A. S. J. Atkinson, Gray Lady chairman for the District told the class:

"In Boston there is a unit of Gray Men, and I understand the patients look forward to the visits of these male Red Cross recreation men. We have needed men in hospitals here to run movie projectors for the patients. There are many other roles for which I should think male workers in the Gray Lady Service would be particularly suited."

Mrs. Atkinson added that there is at present no special uniform for the Gray Man, as compared with the regulation Red Cross veil of gray and the gray frock worn by the Gray Ladies. Eligible to wear a gray coat, Hernandez, however, will use an arm band as his insignia until the local unit obtains the coat.

Citizens Seek Removal of Gingko Trees

The gingko tree has run into trouble lately with vociferous local citizens who say it smells.

It seems the fruit of the female gingko tree when ripe has an odor varyingly described as "very offensive" "obnoxious," and "nauseating," by expert laymen alike.

Confirming complaints about the tree is the World Book Encyclopedia which states unpleasantly that the gingko's fruit is "a fleshy drupe with a putrid odor like rotting meat."

Chief gripes about the gingko have come from residents of the Anacostia and Brightwood areas, where citizens' associations have launched campaigns to have the trees removed. Youngsters tramp on the fallen fruit, which looks much like a persimmon, and carry the odor home on their shoes to stamp it permanently into the rugs, the citizens say with annoyance.

Springing at once to the gingko's defense, however, was District Superintendent of Trees and Parking John W. Batson.

The gingko, said Batson chivalrously, has "a pretty shape, a pretty leaf, and is really a beautiful tree."

What's more, he added, it attracts no insects, catches no diseases, and very seldom ever needs trimming.

There are about 10,000 gingkoes planted throughout the city's streets, Batson estimated, including inoffensive male as well as odoriferous female trees. Most of the tall, slender trees were planted in the 1880's, he guessed, and all have proved "ideal" for street planting, especially along narrow streets.

Asked if he would consider removing any of the gingkoes, so bitterly complained of by Brightwood and Anacostia citizens, Batson produced a rousing "No." He added that he would "fight this thing through from one end to the other" if pressure continued.

To comfort those who spurn the gingko's odor, Batson produced the hopeful news that Agriculture Department specialists are working hard now on a hormone spray which will kill the blossoms and prevent the smelly fruit from ripening. Meanwhile, he noted, crews are sent around the city during the fall ripening session of the gingko, to shake down and remove the offending plum-size fruits.

Further kind words for the much-maligned gingko came from William A. Frederick, landscape architect and horticulturist in the Office of the Architect of the Capitol.

It's a "very lovely" tree, Frederick said, adding that it only smells bad about two or three weeks during the year, while the fruit ripens.

Besides, he continued, the gingko is one of the oldest living species of tree in the world. Specimens of the gingko have been found in fossilized areas going back to the Mezoziac Age, he said, noting that the gingko made the famed redwood look like a comparative youngster.

Reburial Rites Set for Three D. C. Soldiers

Reburial rites for three Washington soldiers, killed in World War II, will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m., at Arlington Cemetery.

Pvt. Bainbridge

The soldiers are Pvt. Arthur D. Bainbridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Bainbridge, 5527 4th st. nw.; Pvt. 1/c Elijah Gadson, son of Mrs. Essye Gadson, 110 49th st.ne.; and Pvt. Percy J. Lowe, grandson of Mrs. Lulu Lowe, 621 3½ st. ne.

Private Bainbridge, 20, was killed on New Guinea, August 4, 1944. A native of Norfolk, Va., he was graduated from the Adams School here. He enlisted in the Army in June, 1942. He was a member of the Washington Painters Union, Local No. 368. Besides his parents, Private Bainbridge is also survived by a brother, William Walter Bainbridge, jr., of 1535 17th st. nw.

Private First Class Gadson's death was reported in a Army Department release dated May 19, 1943. A native Washingtonian, he attended Armstrong High School here and worked as a guard with Sears Roebuck Co. before entering service in August, 1942. Following training at Fort Bragg, N. C., he left for duty in New Guinea in May, 1943.

Besides his mother, Private First Class Gadson is survived by seven brothers and three sisters.

Mr. Garner leaves his wife, F. Pauline Teter Garner; two brothers, Ernest W. Garner, a member of the Metropolitan Police Force, and W. Frank Garner, United States Navy, and three sisters, Mrs. Bessie Naylor, Mrs. Evelyn Noord and Miss Olyve Garner.

Mrs. Flora E. Stutesman

Mrs. Flora Ellen Stutesman, 81, the former Flora Ellen Hastings, died yesterday of heart trouble at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. L. Gibbons, 1331 Belmont st. nw.

Mrs. Stutesman, who lived in Brooklyn, N. Y., had been visiting her daughter since December 9, 1948. Previously she had lived with her daughter here for a short time.

Born in Hadley, Ind., Mrs. Stutesman was the wife of the late William Stutesman, a builder and contractor who died in 1918. In addition to her daughter, Mrs. Stutesman is survived by a son, Elmer J. Stutesman, Kecoughtan, Va.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the S. H. Hines Co. funeral home, 2901 14th st., nw. Burial will be private.

Mrs. T. H. Bunch

Mrs. Tilghman Howard Bunch, of Millwood, Va., died in Winchester Memorial Hospital yesterday after a short illness.

The former Laura Lewis, she is survived by a son, Tilghman Howard Bunch of the University Club, Washington, and a daughter, Miss Laura Crease Bunch, a member of the faculty of Holton Arms School, 2125 S st. nw.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today at the Long Branch, Va., chapel. Burial will be in the chapel cemetery.

Firemen Save Unconscious Owner When Fire Follows Stove Explosion in Cabin Cruiser

The Washington Post

WATERFRONT—Members of Engine Company 13 are shown fighting a fire aboard a 44-foot cabin cruiser moored at 1300 Maine ave. sw., early yesterday after they pulled John Bilby unconscious from a berth in the boat. Smoke was so thick masks were needed

Firemen yesterday rescued John Bilby unconscious from his burning 44-foot cabin cruiser in which he lives alongside the mooring at the foot of the 1300 block, Maine ave. sw.

Bilby, 40, was resuscitated on the wharf at 2:15 a. m., after flames and smoke had engulfed the boat "Big-Pi," following an explosion.

The blaze apparently started from explosion of an overheated oil stove, firemen reported. An unidentified passerby heard the blast and turned in an alarm.

Smoke was so dense that firemen were forced to wear masks. Much of the cruiser's interior was damaged before the flames were extinguished, firemen from Engine Company 13 said.

Bilby said he did not hear the explosion and could give no details of the fire.

Lucas Keeps Check On Committees To Speed Program

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas is running a daily check on Senate committees to expedite the Administration's program, it was revealed yesterday.

He has asked committe chairman to put Administration bills ahead and is following through in the Senate Democratic Policy Committee of which he is chairman.

"I have staffed the policy committee with experts and lawyers and instructed them to give me reports on how the committees are coming along," the Illinois Democrats said in an interview.

"The committes are cooperating beautifully and, despite what the Republicans say about delays, we will enact a large part of the President's program before we adjourn next summer."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Reared in Luxury, Ignored by Both Parents, Who Had Twin Sons and Other Interests, Girl Is Married Now and Punching Bag for Mother

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My father was completely absorbed in business and my mother didn't want me, because I interfered with her social life, when I was born 26 years ago—19 years after my twin brothers.

Consequently my childhood was spent in the care of nurses and governesses; and, after 11, in "good" boarding schools and summer camps. At 17 I was given a lavish debut and shipped off to college across the continent. There, a year later, I met an Air Force officer and within six months we married.

George had been a pilot in the RAF before the United States entered the war; and while in London had an affair with an English girl, broken off before he transferred to the United States Army. This he told me before we married. Our marriage has been very happy. We have four wonderful children and are expecting a fifth soon.

Husband a Target of Mother's Malice

THE PROBLEM is my mother, who, after ignoring me for 26 years, has suddenly developed what she calls an interest in my welfare. Some months ago, after father's death, she moved here, where my brothers also live. She lavishes love on them and thinks her daughters-in-law are perfect. But she is "concerned" about me, and her concern consists in criticizing my clothes, the way I manage my home, bring up my children, etc.—in fact, everything about me, including my husband.

Through an English friend who knows the girl, she recently learned of George's wartime affair and has taken it up as a war cry, insisting that George has resumed the affair—inasmuch as he has made several business trips to England recently. George tells me he has seen Francesca again, at a party given by one of his RAF buddies; she was coming in as he was leaving; and that's all there is to it. But mother mentions her to me, and George too, at every opportunity. It's got to a point where I shrink from the telephone or doorbell.

I can't understand mother's behavior and I'm not overly fond of her, as I scarcely know her and her recent attitude isn't endearing. I realize my feeling isn't healthy or proper; but rightly or wrongly, I simply can't stand her any longer. Her nagging is driving me almost crazy; and as she is old and has a weak heart, I hate to do anything to upset her, but I've got to do something. Please advise me. C. K.

Antipathy the Key Word Here

DEAR C. K.: Antipathy exists between you and your mother; and it began before you were born—in your mother's annoyance at facing once more the discomforts, risks and duties attached to child bearing, when she had supposed she was done with all that, and wanted to be free to stay young with her sons and enjoy social life. It carried over into "rejection" of you during your infancy, childhood and youth.

Although she left you to others' care, nevertheless you were a thorn in her side, because you were a responsibility that "weighed" on her even while she shirked it; and she resented that. And with the illogic of infantile, pretentious, incense-seeking egoists—who won't "see" themselves—she beamed her fret at you, as if you were the cause of it. She became fixed in antipathy.

Helplessly, inescapably, you absorbed her feelings like a sponge (as infants and children do) and involuntarily you return them in kind. Thus you clash when together, for "first" conditioning, between mother and child, always carries over into their adult relations—unless, in the case of negative conditioning, the "unconscious" is purged of rancor, either by religious experience and spiritual growth, or by analytic therapy that introduces clear understanding leading to good readjustment.

Anxiety Fueled by Many Factors

SO, GRANTING that your distaste for your mother isn't healthy or proper, let's face the fact that she authored it; and, as of now, is fueling it intolerably, running true to form by picking you to pieces—because antipathy engenders "contrariety" of feeling, usually expressed in "attack" criticism. She is trying to say that you haven't turned out to "suit" her, but it's hardly to be expected that you would; and if you are happy with George, that ought to be sufficient.

As for her weak heart, all mothers of her type seem to have that card up their sleeve, to spring if the victim rebels, thus I have no sympathy with it, and you shouldn't let it keep you under. George's love life is none of her business if you don't mind; but if you fully trusted him you wouldn't be so edgy. You are anxious about Francesca, and translating dismay into indignation at your mother's gouging of the sore spot. All in all, your psychological distress is very involved, fed by many factors, and requires deep treatment at first-hand to bring your head above water. M. H.

The NEW Chase & Sanborn A New Secret Blend —"Selecciones"

Belts Say Adieu Again at Pepper's Farewell Fete

By Marie McNair

The Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt in a surge of farewell parties, take each one with a grace and deep appreciation of well wishing friends.

Yesterday afternoon Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper entertained in their honor at cocktail time and as the hour drew near for Representative Frances Bolton's dinner, guests were still straggling in.

Coming in at the tail end were Secretary of Defense and Mrs. James Forrestal and with them Mme. Martins, wife of the former Brazilian Ambassador to Washington, who is here from New York and will soon be returning to Paris where Carlos Martins is now his country's chief of mission.

Young Guillermo Belt had stood all afternoon with his pretty Senora at his side, "Cuca" de Belt, exuberant as a school girl, and looking just as fetching in a simple black frock, a red bowler and a cluster of violets tucked in at the waist. Mrs. Pepper wore violets too, at the deep rounded neckline of her dark green satin gown.

Diplomats There

The Chilean Ambassador, Felix Nieto del Rio, stood by on the sidelines, glass in hand; the Dominican Ambassador, Luis de Thomen, with tiny Senora de Thomen made the rounds, Senora de Thomen telling me in passing that she's just had her tonsils out.

Senator William Langer was bussed by blonde Fay Lewishon who came with her cousin, Mrs. Martin Vogel, the two of them in smart black costumes. With Senator and Mrs. Langer was pretty Louise Steinman, her back frock accented with a flutering blue chiffon scarf.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Julius Krug, came in with Mrs. Krug wearing orchids pinned at her lapel. The Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark stayed on, so did the Ecuador Ambassador and Senora de Dillon, whose tangerine colored hat with glycerined ostrich sprays topped a black frock made with pleated skirt.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet took their leave rather early; the Luxembourg Minister and Mme. Le Gallais and the Secretary of the Senate and Mrs. Leslie Biffle were late arrivals.

Representative George Smathers from Florida and Mrs. Smathers were there and also from up on "the Hill" I saw Representative Abert Thomas and Mrs. Thomas, and Senator and Mrs. Lister Hill.

Said "how-de-do" to Mr. and Mrs. McKinney Hunt, who are the Peppers, neighbors in the same building, and was glad to see again, Senora de Quintanilla, wife of the Mexican Ambassador to the Pan American Union, who spends much of her time in Mexico at the farm which she bought after giving up her broad acres in Pennsylvania.

Fritz Schick There

Chatted with Capt. William H. Watson, and Mrs. Watson who wore an enchanting hat of white net with a green sequin or two in the folds. The Frank Widemans were there and Fritz Schick, Czechoslovakian by birth who lived in China a long time and has been filling in his Washington days by doing the town.

Then there were Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken, Frazier A. Bailey, Miss Emma Perley Lincoln and Jack Greer.

Dinner at 8 at Representative Frances Bolton's home on Wyoming ave. found Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton, Senator and Mrs. J. William Fulbright and the Lebanese Minister and Mme. Malik seated around the flower-decked table. Other guests were the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. George Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippman, and Mr. Moose.

ONE OF THE pleasantest of farewell parties for the retiring Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt was the cocktail party yesterday given by Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper. Hosts and guests of honor are, left to right, Senator Pepper, Mrs. Pepper, Senora de Belt and Ambassador Belt

Weekend Guests From Canada Are Entertained

Weekend visitors from Canada kept official Washington "on the go" socially during the past few days. Canada's Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, the British High Commissioner to Canada, were both in town.

Mr. St. Laurent, who left last evening after a two-day stay in the Captial at the invitation of President Truman, was the guest in whose honor Secretary of State Dean Acheson entertained at a luncheon yesterday at his home on P st.

The United States Ambassador to Canada, Laurence Steinhardt, and Jack Pickersgill, the Prime Minister's special assistant, were also at the luncheon. Both flew down from Ottawa with Mr. St. Laurent. And the other guests were ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission David Lilienthal, Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong, former United States Ambassador to Canada, Ray Atherton and Assistant Secretary of State James Webb.

Mr. Truman Is Host

The Prime Minister spent a greater part of his day Saturday attending parties in his honor.

President Truman honored him at a luncheon at Blair House.

Then later in the day Ambassador and Mrs. Wrong entertained at a large embassy reception for the Prime Minister. Guests there—totaling nearly 200—included Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Fred Vinson, Cabinet and Congressional official and their wives and several representatives from Embassy Row.

Dinner Last Night

Following the reception Canadian Minister and Mrs. Thomas Stone gave a dinner for Mr. St. Laurent. The British Ambassador and Lady Franks, Ambassador and Mrs. Wrong and their daughter, Miss June Wrong and Mrs. Acheson completed the list.

Sir Clutterbuck shared honors with the Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau at the dinner last evening given by British Ambassador and Lady Franks at the embassy. The other guests were Ambassador and Mrs. Wrong, the Ceylonese Ambassador and Mrs. Corea, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Glover, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyer Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Satterthwaite.

Gala Evening in Sight at Newswomen's Benefit Ball

John Steelman, Assistant to the President, and Miss Grace McGerr, president of the American Newspaper Women's Club, will greet President and Mrs. Truman when they arrive at the club's Valentine Ball this evening at the Statler Hotel. Mr. Steelman is chairman of the floor committee. The Marine Band will strike up "Hail to the Chief" when the presidential party arrives.

Clifford K. Berryman, noted cartoonist, has designed the program cover, showing his famous teddy bear in white tie and tails, with the title, "I'm going to strut for my best girl."

With some of the club's associate members as models, "A Fantasy in Furs" will be shown during the evening. Mrs. Gladstone Williams and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, jr., will be commentators.

Miss Patricia McGerr is chairman of invitations and Miss Margaret Germond is chairman of tickets. Other committee members are Mrs. Robert Freer, models; Mrs. James W. Boyer, souvenir programs; Miss Betty Beale, and John Steelman, floor committee; Miss Peggy Boyer, debutante committee; Mrs. Cloyd Heck Martin, boxes; Mrs. Joseph Farrington, door prizes; Mrs. Gladstone Williams and Mrs. W. R. Hearst, jr., fashion show; Miss Ann Cline and Mrs. Ruth Crane, door prize distribution; and Miss Katharine Brooks and Miss Betsy Winter, publicity.

Proceeds of the ball will go to the club's building fund. Subscription, is by invitation only and tickets may be had by calling North 6532 from 10:30 to 5:30 today.

Those who will be awarded the Special Naval Merit are Rear Admiral James H. Foskett, Read Admiral Clifford A. Swanson and Capt. Francis Ulen.

Order of the Aztec Eagle will go to Mrs. Helen L. Clagett, Morris L. Cooke, Clarence R. Decker, William E. Kemp, Jim McCord, Commissioner Guy Mason, Edgar Morris, F. S. S. Northrup, Mayor William O'Dwyer, Nelson Rockefeller, Mrs. Helen Rogers Reid, Arthur Hays Sulzberger, all of New York; Hugh P. Wasson, former Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles Grover Whelan of New York and Commissioner John Russell Young.

Rings on Their Fingers

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scheinbok of Chevy Chase announce the engagement of their daughter, Eunice Sybil, to Benjamin Welber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Welber of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Scheinbok is in her senior year at Radcliffe College. Her fiance was graduated from Yeshiva College, and he received his master's degree and doctorate in physics from Columbia University. Mr. Welber is now employed by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. The wedding has been set for early summer.

Stransky—Silver

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Vincent G. Stransky of Avondale, Md., of the engagement of their daughter, Lillian, to Charles Bartol Silver, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bartol Silver of Havre de Grace, Md.

Miss Stransky attended Bob Jones University, Greenville, S. C., and the University of Maryland, where she was a member of Alpha Xi Delta Sorority. Her fiance is an alumnus of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Maryland. At the latter he belonged to Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity. The wedding date has been set for April 30.

Denison—Roach

The engagement of Miss Dorothy Louise Denison to Russell David Roach, jr., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Denison.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Sibley Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, is employed by the Veterans' Hospital at Perry Point, Md. Her fiance, a Navy veteran, is the son of Mrs. Richard A. Peed of this city. He is now employed at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds. The wedding will take place in May.

Gray—Conover

Thomas Gray announces the engagement of his daughter, Dorothy, to Lewis G. Conover, son of Mrs. Kathleen Conover of Absecon, N. J.

Miss Gray attended Cambria-Rowe Business College in Johnstown, Pa., and George Washington University. Mr. Conover was graduated from Rutgers University and the School of Advanced International Studies. Both he and his fiancee served with the State Department foreign service in Stuttgart, Germany. The wedding is planned for June.

Weber—Black

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Charlotte Elizabeth Weber to Sterling Foster Black is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Weber of Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Black is the son of Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Hugo L. Black of Alexandria, Va. He attended Dartmouth College, George Washington University and the University of Arizona. He will be graduated in May from Columbia University Law School. He served during the war as a captain in the Army Air Force.

Miss Weber, a graduate of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, has lived in Washington for the past three and a half years. She is a correspondent for the Washington Bureau of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency and she is also associated with the Washington Bureau of the Overseas News Agency. She is a member of the State Department Correspondents Association.

The wedding is to take place in Washington in March.

Weekend Visitors See Old Friends At Party Series

Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley Garnett entertained at cocktails yesterday for Mr. and Mrs. Mathews Dick of Newport, who were weekend guests of Mrs. Sidney Kent Legare.

Other weekend visitors who were feted yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cochrane Forbes of Boston, here to see Mrs. Forbes' mother, Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins. Mrs. Robbins gave a small luncheon for them.

Mrs. Rosalie Altemus of Newport, on a brief visit to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Claggett, jr., was guest of honor at a cocktail party and buffet supper last evening, given by Mr. and Mrs. Claggett.

Birthnight Ball Set for Feb. 21

This year the George Washington Birthnight Ball, an annual celebration sponsored by the Mount Vernon Citizens Association, will be of special significance.

The party, slated for February 21, 9 p. m. to 1 a. m., at Collingwood, marks the 150th aniversary of Washington's last birthday. It was on Washington's birthday 150 years ago that he gave his adopted daughter, Nellie Custis, in marriage to his nephew, Lawrence Lewis. The Woodlawn mansion, which the Mount Vernon Association is trying to purchase as a national shrine, was their wedding present from the general.

And the gala costume ball will share the spirit of Alexandria's bicentenial celebration. In Gadsby's Tavern in Alexandria Washington's birthday was first celebrated by his friends as a public event.

Herbert B. Newell, president of the association, has appointed Mrs. Bernice Carter Davis as chairman of the birthnight ball and she promises that the program will be authentic and artistic.

A pageant of the wedding of Nellie Custis will be enacted by young ladies from Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., and there will be period music under the direction of Miss Joy Cutler. A chamber ensemble will feature local artists, Mrs. Ward Allen on the flute; Mrs. Carol Benson, violin; Miss Grace Powell, viola, and Mrs. Gordon Grant, cello. The minuet and Virginia reel will be danced by a special group and there will also be several waltzes. The general dancing will be done to the music of Ralph Case's orchestra.

Members of the ball committee include Mrs. Robert J. Wilson, Mrs. Laurence Kiefer, Mrs. A. E. Columbus, Mrs. J. Denny Clark, Mrs. Harrie White, jr., Mrs. Robert Morf, Mrs. W. L. Howard, Mrs. Albert E. Schmutzer, Mrs. Joseph Lawrence, Mrs. C. Knupfer, Miss Joy Cutler, Miss Ruth Lange, Miss Mayme Parker, Lewis E. Harwood and the officers of the association.

What to Serve for Anniversary Party

Could you give me some ideas about what you would serve besides cake and punch at a twenty-fifth anniversary party? I have very large family and also my husband's family and my house isn't too large. What about invitations? Should they be written or be printed? Should these be signed by whom? I have a daughter married and four sons also. E. P.

For a reception cake, punch, mints and nuts make ample refreshments. Or, if you wish to make them more substantial, you could add dainty open-faced sandwiches.

If the party is to be a formal reception, the invitations should be engraved. However, if the party is to be a less formal family-type gathering, the invitations could be either telephoned or written in letter style on informal note paper, giving the date, time, place and occasion of the party. The invitations will be signed by the person or persons giving the party. If your daughter and (or) sons are giving it, they would send and sign the invitations.

Sometime ago there was a question in your column asking where butter flavoring is obtainable. I have been asked by the Ladies Guild of Grace Episcopal Church, Arlington, to tell you that this flavoring, as well as others, is being sold by the guild. It can be obtained by contacting Mrs. W. P. Howard, Chestnut 5059. M. Y.

I have an old-fashioned, oak dining room set which we would like to refinish. All the finish seems to be worn off. Could this be given a pickled finish? It has quite a lot of carving so it must have a simple and easy to do job as we are amateurs. R. G.

Yes, you could give it a pickled finish. On oak, this is more often referred to as limed oak. Since the effect of this finish is achieved by applying the white paint to the raw wood so it soaks into the pores, you will have a better result if you will go over the piece with a good commercial paint and varnish remover even though the finish appears worn off. When thoroughly clean, wipe with turpentine to take away all of the remover. Allow the piece to dry thoroughly and give it a coat of flat white paint, wiping the surface almost immediately so that just the pores and carving are filled with paint. Let dry a day or two and sand the flat surface smooth, then wax.

My husband wants to know how to "frost" or produce translucence in clear plate or window glass. Is there an easy way to do it at home? E. A. S.

Clean the glass thoroughly with carbon tetrachloride or something which will remove every trace of grease (ordinary soap and water won't do). When dry, cover the glass with a single sheet of white tissue paper cut to fit exactly and go over it completely with spar varnish which has been thinned with one part turpentine to three parts of varnish. The varnish will go through the tissue and stick it to the window and at the same time make it water proof. A simpler method is to pat the glass with putty which has been softened with linseed oil. Repeat after 24 hours. This coating can be washed with soap and water and removed with ammonia.

How can I remove a stain on a baby grand piano caused by alcohol spilled on the top of the piano leaving a white mark? S. L. P.

You may be able to remove the spot by wiping with turpentine or camphorated oil. If this doesn't take it away, rub it lightly with finely powdered rottenstone or pumice and oil. Use only slight pressure with the grain and confine the abrasive and oil to the stained area. When the stain is removed, take off any remaining abrasive by wiping with a cloth moistened with oil and then polish the entire piece with scratch removing polish or a good furniture polish.

We acidentally spilled camphorated oil on wallpaper. Tried the warm iron and blotter treatment to no avail. We have extra paper. Could a new section be put on since the paper is new and clean? What would be your suggestion for the best way to remedy this? J. R. C.

The least conspicuous way of restoring the paper would be to put on a new section. Before you do this, I suggest you sponge the greasy spot with carbon tetrachloride to remove enough grease so it will not soak through the new paper. When completely dry, put on the new piece which has had both margins trimmed off and is cut to exactly match the pattern over which it is to be placed.

PETUNIA!

Inflation problems?
My advice is Stretching vittles

Cuts their prices!

Good sense, Petunia! For instance, don't soak the skillet in which you've browned meat. Fill it half-full of water, add onions, celery, dried peas, and simmer for soup stock.

WHY THOUSANDS of DOCTORS prescribe pleasant tasting
PERTUSSIN FOR BAD COUGHS
(CAUSED BY COLDS)

For years — thousands of Doctors prescribed PERTUSSIN to promptly relieve bad coughs caused by colds. This is the same effective PERTUSSIN you can get today at any drugstore.

PERTUSSIN is scientifically prepared to act AT ONCE. It gently stimulates tiny glands in throat and windpipe to pour out their natural secretions. Thick phlegm is loosened and more easily 'raised'. Your throat is soothed and coughing relieved. Pleasant tasting.

PERTUSSIN is safe and mighty effective for both old and young—even small children. Inexpensive.

Postlude

Stern Gives Excellent Performance

By Richard Keith

Isaac Stern, young American violinist, gave a splendid performance yesterday afternoon of the Brahms Concerto with the National Symphony Orchestra at Constitution Hall.

Accepting the difficult assignment bravely, he charged through the music with determination and brilliance. The excellent accompaniment provided by the orchestra helped him to keep this rather ungainly piece from sagging in the middle as it usually does. His playing has an uncommon amount of variety. It is always intense, sometimes sparkling and sometimes deeply lyric.

Howard Mitchell led the orchestra during the first half of the program in the Suite Provencale by Milhaud and the Second Symphony by Borodin. Neither of these works is great music, but it was nice to hear some things out of the standard repertory.

The Milhaud suite is based on folk melodies which are treated in typical Milhaud fashion. That is, clever, often startling harmonic and rhythmic patterns.

Borodin's windy opus sounds as if he had his mind on other things when he wrote it. Musical ideas come few and far between and original musical ideas, practically never. In the absence of interesting material, he was forced to make much ado about nothing. An insignificant figur eis often introduced in some obscure section of the orchestra from whence it rapidly spreads, like the plague, to other sections until the full ensemble is beating it unmercifully into the listener's ears.

Nevertheless, it does have its moments here and there which are reminiscent of the brilliant dances from "Prince Igor."

The orchestra played well except for occasional scraping in the violin section and some off-color notes from the horns.

At National Gallery

At the National Gallery of Art last night, Richard Bales led the Gallery Orchestra in compositions by Handel-Beecham, Haydn, Prokofieff, Brahms and Bergsma.

Prokofieff's Children's Suite, "A Summer Day," was presumably composed for children, but it is hard to believe that even a 4-year-old could derive much pleasure from this insipid and certainly un-Prokofieff-like score. The program closed with "Paul Bunyan," a youthful composition of the American composer William Bergsma. It put "A Summer Day" to shame.

Baltimore Symphony At Maryland U.

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra will make its first appearance at the University of Maryland on Tuesday, when it presents a concert in Ritchie Coliseum at 8:15 p.m.

The program, to be directed by Reginald Stewart, will include music by Dvorak, Mozart, Johann Strauss, jr., Debussy, Lee Sowerby and Tchaikovsky. The appearance is one of several scheduled by the orchestra for nearby Maryland communities this season.

Maryland Group To Ask 1000-Bed Veteran Hospital

Baltimore, Feb. 13 (AP).—Mayor D'Alesandro announced today he will lead a delegation to Washington Wednesday to urge erection here of a general hospital with 1000 beds for war veterans.

The mayor and representatives of 16 Maryland veterans organizations will meet with the State congressional delegation in Senator Tydings' (D., Md.) office.

The veterans told the mayor there are only 389 beds in the general hospital at Fort Howard to care for 288,000 vets in Maryland. There also are 150 beds at the Veterans' Administration Hospital at Perry Point.

The Maryland delegation will be urged to consider erection of a 1000-bed hospital at a Baltimore site designated by the VA for a proposed 300-bed tuberculosis hospital. The veterans claim Fort Howard would be suitable for tuberculosis patients.

Labor Federation Refuses to Back Anyone for Board

Richmond, Va., Feb. 13 (AP).—The Virginia State Federation of Labor's executive board voted today "to refrain from recommending anyone" to fill the unexpired term of John Hopkins Hall, jr., retiring State labor commissioner.

Action by the board was taken in a resolution which said that Hall's appointment by Governor Tuck "implied that political loyalty was paramount." It added:

"It is our opinion that no conscientious, self-respecting representative of labor could accept the position of commissioner of labor under the present circumstances."

Announcement of the board's decision came from Jack S. Smith, president of VFL, following a weekend meeting of the executive board at Hotel Richmond.

More Turkey, Less Meat Expected to Be Eaten

The Agriculture Department estimated yesterday that civilians this year will eat 1 per cent less meat, per capita, 2 per cent fewer eggs and drink 5 per cent less milk and cream than last year.

On the other hand, it estimated consumption of turkey will increase 9 per cent and butter consumption will be up 5 per cent. Per capita consumption of cheese and chickens is expected to increase 1 per cent.

2 Funeral Processions Clash at Cemetery

Manila, Philippines (Monday), Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Two funeral processions argued for the right-of-way to a cemetery here today and two persons were injured by broken bottles in the ensuing fight.

At the height of the fighting, the cemetery watchman fired a shot into the air, causing pallbearers to scatter and abandon the corpses until order was restored.

500 Flee Safely From Movie Fire In Woodstock, Va.

Woodstock, Va., Feb. 13 (AP).—Five hundred persons attending a theater here last night made a safe exit from a building which was wrecked by fire. Seven companies from Shenandoah Valley towns fought the blaze in the building known as the old Holtzman Hotel, built in part in 1817.

Besides a theater, it housed a barber shop, restaurant and eight apartments. Damage was estimated at $20,000.

Eight families of 40 persons fled from the apartments. Among these was a 90-year-old woman.

One on the Aisle—

Leo Brady Tries To Steal Home

By Richard L. Coe

LEO BRADY has some good ideas in his latest comedy, "Grandstand Play," being acted these evenings by Catholic University's speech and drama department, but he hasn't done right by them.

All too often throughout "Grandstand Play"—more properly labeled a farce—he stops things dead in their tracks for the sake of immediate laughs. These he gets, but they have nothing to do with the characters he is trying to draw or with the story he's set out to tell.

That he has stooped to these momentary temptations is too bad. Obviously, Leo's a baseball fan and when he's spoofing the sports pages and the wonderful ways of the big league boys, he's fresh and funny. He's dreamed up a couple of broad, happy characters, but he doesn't seem to trust them enough to do [illegible] with all the stock situations and contrivances that smack of a textbook on playwrighting.

He's telling of a public relations expert's efforts to build an athletic baboon into an All-American hero. The publicity whiz wants to succeed so he'll get a fat check from the breezy dame who owns the ball club and life partnership with the pretty baseball booster who's financing the club.

Of these characters the most refreshing is the owner, Mrs. Batterton, a matter-of-fact and wonderful female who booms happily and often of her late husband, one Big Feet, whom she met years ago when he was trying to make a catch and she was selling hotdogs. Jill Leahy has this pleasing role and she does a nice job with it. Yes, Brady has something in Mrs. Betterton.

The pretty booster, played by Rosemarie Buzolits, exemplifies Brady's temptations to get off his track for the sake of momentary laughs. She's supposed to be nearsighted and in one scene without her glasses is virtually blind; not long after she's without her glasses again, but for the sake of situation, her sight's perfectly okay. These two scenes just don't belong in the same play if we're to go along with the characters.

There's more of the same. The baboon—they call him Fungo Flynn—is supposed at least to know how to hit. There's no indication that his stance is as peculiar as some visiting kids prove. Again this scene—and a wispy resurrection of Abner Doubleday—are simply dragged in for the sake of immediate laughs. As a result there's nothing to hold the gags together and the play, even as a farce, collapses.

Schoonover Scores

Apart from Miss Leahy's hearty widow and Meredith Schoonover's thoroughly able press agent, the performances are on the frantic side and exhibit skill no better than well-intended collegians. Granted this demands a style not frequently required of the university's players, one is accustomed to a higher standard than this from the department's admired actors.

Bill Callahan plays Fungo and Louis Camuti, jr., is on hand as his race track pal, Benny Totem. The author directed a cast which further includes James M. Langan, Wenona Matthews, Ed McMahon, Arch Lustberg, Terry Graumann, Frank Dolan, Bill Burke, Ronny Peters, Ben Kubasik, Charles Carey, Russell McBride and Virginia Bradley.

As a baseball farce, I'm afraid "Grandstand Play" tries to steal home without even getting to second base.

VALENTINE'S DAY means the Variety Club's tribute to Brotherhood Week at the Statler this afternoon at 12:30 . . . Eric Johnston will speak and there'll be a distinguished guest list headed by Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas, Representative and Mrs. Bernard W. Kearney, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Brylawski and Mrs. Ida Johnson, mother of the MPA chieftain . . . Chairman of the Club Welfare Committee, Fred S. Kogod, will preside, with Frank Boucher as luncheon chairman and Arnold Fine rounding up the entertainers.

Still Guessing

Village Gapes At Princess, New Friend

Mountfield, England, Feb. 13 (AP).—Inquisitive crowds jammed this Sussex village today to try to find the answer to the question that has all England agog.

Has Princess Margaret lost her heart to a wealthy commoner?

They got no answer.

The lovely younger daughter of King George VI has been spending the weekend as the guest of the parents of her "new friend"—dashing Tom Egerton, 31-year-old former captain in the swank Guards Regiment.

Today the couple attended services at the tiny 800-year-old parish church near the Egerton 22-bedroom estate.

The crowds which engulfed this normally placid village were hoping that the couple would give some sign indicating their feelings.

They were disappointed.

The 18-year-old princess and handsome bachelor arrived with his parents, Commander and Mrs. Sydney Egerton, but the princess paid no special attention to her escort.

Her smiles and waves were for the crowd which cheered the party as it drove through the streets to the church.

The church, which normally seats only 120, had extra chairs in the aisles.

Margaret wore a cerise "new look" coat trimmed with black Persian lamb, cerise hat and matching accessories.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-taker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that an application has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission requesting the written consent of the Commission to the assignment by WINX Broadcasting Company to William A. Banks of the license for standard broadcast station of authorization for two synchronous transmitters, and developmental broadcast station WZXOT.

Said application was filed pursuant to an agreement dated January 19, 1949, between WINX Broadcasting Company and William A. Banks, wherein, subject to the conditions specified therein, WINX Broadcasting Company proposes to transfer to William A. Banks the properties and equipment of said stations as described in the said application and associated documents, for a consideration of One Hundred Thirty Thousand Dollars ($130,000.00) payable in cash on the closing date specified in said agreement. The agreement further provides for the assignment to and assumption by William A. Banks of certain leases, specified contracts, etc., upon the conditions and for the purposes therein specified.

Further details concerning the terms and conditions of the proposed assignment and the arrangements in connection therewith may be obtained upon examination of the application and associated documents on file in the offices of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D. C.

Pursuant to Section 1.321 of the Rules and Regulations of the Federal Communications Commission, any person desiring to acquire the facilities upon the same terms and conditions may file an application to that effect with the Federal Communications Commission within sixty (60) days from February 3, 1949, the date of the first publication of this notice.

THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

Hacker Can Be Good or Bad Will Ambassador

—Here's a wonderful example of how an unfortunate contact with a hacker can give a visitor to Washington the wrong impression of us.

William B. Cauthen of Chambersburg, Pa., tells me that my WTOP discussions of the local taxi situation recalls this experience to his mind:

"I was a disabled war vet, just discharged from Walter Reed Hospital. The cab took us to Union Station, and the driver charged me $8 for the trip.

"I had to pay it, because my train was leaving in a few minutes. That was in 1922—more than 20 years ago. But, mister—it still rankles."

It's difficult to overemphasize the importance of the local taxi industry. Our hackers not only furnish a vital mass transportation service, but also serve as good (or bad) will ambassadors to our visitors.

NUMBER, PLEASE

Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming has the lowest Army serial number I've ever encountered—3061.

I can't help but wonder whether any District Liner has a lower number than Maj. Gen. Fleming's—and I'm equally curious as to who got the original "No. 1."

HAPPY?

Rhymster G. A. Fisher of 1442 Spring rd. nw. teams up with Cartoonist Irwin to send this column's Valentine greetings to District Liners everywhere:

A few days ago, I investigated the Valentine situation on my WTOP program, by interviewing the girls at Brentano's. They told me that greeting cards are now available for such odd occasions as May Day, Groundhog Day, and Income Tax Day.

I can hardly wait for March 15, to send out my cards bearing the legend:

"Many happy returns."

MISCELLANY

Remember that item about the "tenative" typo on income tax form 1040? Nobody at the GPO knew about it until it appeared here; then everybody wondered how it could have slipped through all those proofreaders without being caught . . . The error, incidentally, was corrected immediately, and will not appear on forms printed from now on . . . Three readers find evidence that the printers on our afternoon contemporaries are blood brothers of those who work at the Government Printing Office. Frederick P. Pickard of 2723 Jasper st. se., chuckles over: "Washington dealers and newsmen will see the new 1940 Plymouth at the Statler Friday." Kathleen Evelyn Hasselbar wonders why a local liquor dealer advertised: "Limit, six bottles to a costumer." After all, costumers make good customers, too . . . Blanche Berlin's favorite is: "Capt. Lewis N. Moeller was promoted today to the rank of real admiral" . . . Claude Watts of 1300 Clifton st. nw. says President Truman may look okay in those formal white gloves but he looked much better when he was out there on the campaign trail, swinging bare knuckles . . . Edith Becker of 5823 5th st. nw. sounds a new note—praise for "Capital Transit's fine service" . . . More invalid streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital—this time from Robert (Pat) Pattison of 2446 S. Monroe st., Arlington, Va., who found them while tearing up some old boards . . . Edwin Yourman of 11 Galveston Place sw. is still trying to figure out why it was that when he dialed WEATHER the other day he heard: "Mostly sunny this afternoon, with the highest about 40. The 1 o'clock temperature, 42."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

It's humiliating, I tell you. It's a blow to my pride.

I get the enclosed—a letter addressed to MR. H. W. Ross. Eagerly, I open it. (I'm an eager letter and package opener).

Then— pow! I find an advertisement beginning "Dear Madam."

It's humiliating, I tell you.

H. W. Ross.
616 Longfellow st. nw.

Dear Mr. Ross:

Shirley Povich says that when it happens often enough, one either becomes irascible or a philosopher. Bill.

"LOVE" ISN'T A MESSAGE, HE SAYS

I hope that you remembered to put 2-cent stamps on your unsealed Valentines, and 3-cent stamps on the ones you sealed.

Since the first of the year, the 1½-cent rate no longer applies to "circular" mail. Only to books and pamphlets of more than 24 pages.

So if you sent anybody a Valentine with only a 1½-cent stamp on it, the recipient was asked for a half cent of "postage due" by the mailman.

Such a demand could easily lead to a hot argument between the postman and his public, and might eventually drive our Nation into opposing fractions. (That's a pun, Mr. Printer; leave the "r" in.)

Incidentally, Acting Postmaster W. Gordon Bell reminds us that if we write any messages on our greeting cards, they must be mailed with 3-cent stamps, whether or not they're sealed.

A signature is not a "message," according to the rules. Neither is "love," "Will you be my Valentine?" or such standard greetings as "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year."

But anything beyond those narrow limits costs an extra penny. The postmen have to live, too.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

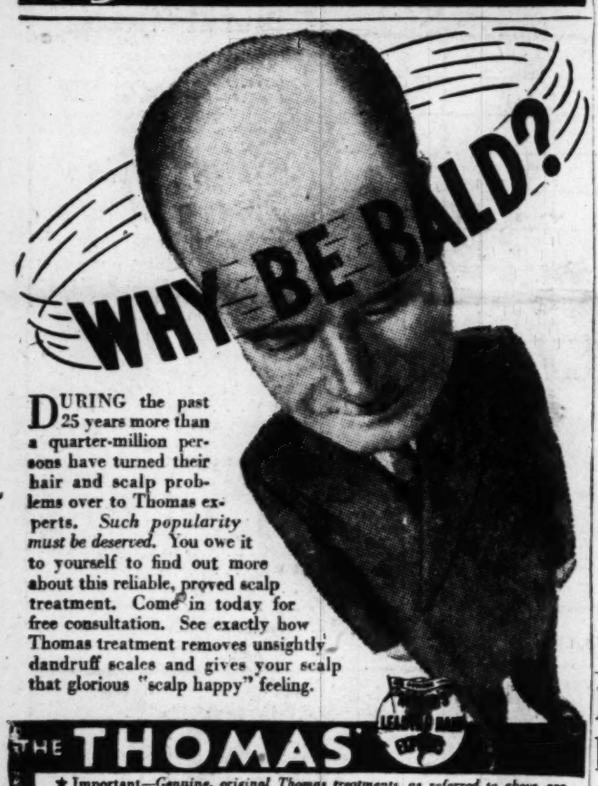
NEW YORK.—Maurice Zolotow tells of a young lady who reported to her mother that her boy-friend finally had proposed marriage. "Fine, fine," said the pleased lady. "It's time you get married. You're 26" . . . "There's a little difficulty," the young woman said. "He's being psychoanalyzed" . . . "So what?" said her mother. "These days everybody's being psychoanalyzed. It's quite fashionable" . . . "But," said the girl, "he's suffering from an Oedipus complex" . . . "Oedipus, Shmeedipus," shrugged her mother "As long as he's good to his mother."

Columbia's new sportsreel on Mildred Didrikson Zaharias, the golf champ and pro at Grossinger's, was made at Grossinger's last summer. When the filming began, she made a series of startling putts. "You ought to miss one or two, "the director suggested, "otherwise people who see the picture will think it's a fake."

Columbia Records has signed Mary Martin, who'll do an album of Forgotten Songs . . . At the 52 Association reunion, Jinx Falkenberg introduced Gen. Jimmy Doolittle as one who, during the Bob Hope tour in Europe, had amazed the GI's with his ad lib speeches. Doolittle then read his prepared speech.

Judge Jerome Frank of the Circuit Court of Appeals, whose decision in the Gardella case described the reserve-clause as "peonage," is a baseball fan and played the game when he was a boy. The only fist-fight Judge Frank ever had was in a ball game. His, incidentally, is one of the foremost legal minds in the land, and owners of ball clubs have ample cause for alarm.

On of M-G-M's top stars phoned Vicki Evans on the night of the Bob Mitchum raid and made a date to be there. But he and a friend became so engrossed in listening to the new swing records at his home that by the time they were ready to leave to visit Miss Evans, her home already had been raided . . . Former Publisher Bartley Crum will be admitted to the N. Y. bar and practice law here.



DURING the past 25 years more than a quarter-million persons have turned their hair and scalp problems over to Thomas experts. Such popularity must be deserved. You owe it to yourself to find out more about this reliable, proved scalp treatment. Merci Train Is Voice of People

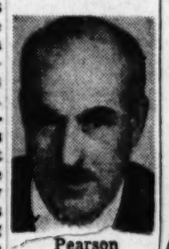
By Drew Pearson

Aboard The French Merci Train. The average Frenchman has a general knowledge of the fact that when he pays his taxes, a small portion of it goes to support the cost of a French embassy and various consulates in the USA in order to improve relations over here. But this is a vague and far-away thing, besides which, being human, he doesn't like to pay taxes.



Pearson

On the other hand, when six million French men and women voluntarily contribute a personal keepsake to the Gratitude Train for the American people, it means something far more important than ambassadors or consuls or State Department propaganda.

It means that each of those six million Frenchmen considers himself a personal ambassador, a personal promoter of good will and peace.

And when you get that kind of people-to-people relationship, it becomes increasingly difficult for unbalanced or foolhardy leaders to start wars or create friction.

In the long run, furthermore, the only way we can prevent war is by people going over the heads of their governments to get acquainted with other people.

Note—Just as the United States Government had nothing whatsoever to do with the start or organization of the Friendship Train, so the French government had nothing to do with starting the Gratitude Train, though later it gave great help in getting the boxcars to the United States.

Simple, Priceless Gifts

Some priceless gifts are aboard the Thank-You Train, such as the Taveau statute of George Washington and the flag that flew over Verdun in 1918. But almost more precious, in a sense, was the neatly wrapped paper parcel brought to the train by a Communist lady in Paris—because she gave it against all the dictates of her political party, because she placed friendship with Americans ahead of Communists.

Equally precious are thousands of other gifts which have no commercial or artistic value—simple offerings from the humbler people of France. Aboard the train, for instance, is a gift from a workman and his wife whose home was destroyed during the war and who now live in an almshouse.

"For the Gratitude Train to America," they wrote, "we have decided to send our dearest possession, our boy's full dress uniform. It went with him when he left to fight and die in France. It will now go to the United States, in token of the brotherhood between our two countries."

And there is the child's painting of a yellow heart,' with her word written beneath—"I know that Americans have hearts of gold."

Remembrance, Love

At the first the humbler people of France did not realize that they could contribute to the Gratitude Train. The train was first organized by the French railroad war veterans, but later they got help from Radio Commentator Georges Delamare, who broadcast the fact that the working people could also participate.

"We must feel, in offering our gifts," said Delamare, "that we are depriving ourselves. We must take from our personal treasure store, gifts such as only France can provide. There is no more sincere way of showing gratitude than by giving what one prizes most highly."

One of the things the American people will prize most highly is the "Treasure Book" signed by the French people who put gifts aboard the Merci Train. People flocked to the office of the newspaper Figaro for more than a week to sign this book and write a message to the American people. Some in English, most in French.

Thousands of notes also were written to accompany gifts. And it is the hope of the men and women who sent these messages, that their friends in America will read the notes and will want to reply. Members of the Women's World Fellowship worked long hours to help translate these notes of greeting sent by the "little people" of France.

Unfortunately, they were not able to translate all the messages; but perhaps French classes in American schools and colleges can continue where they left off, and thus start a chain of correspondence between the people of France and America in continuation of people-to-people diplomacy.

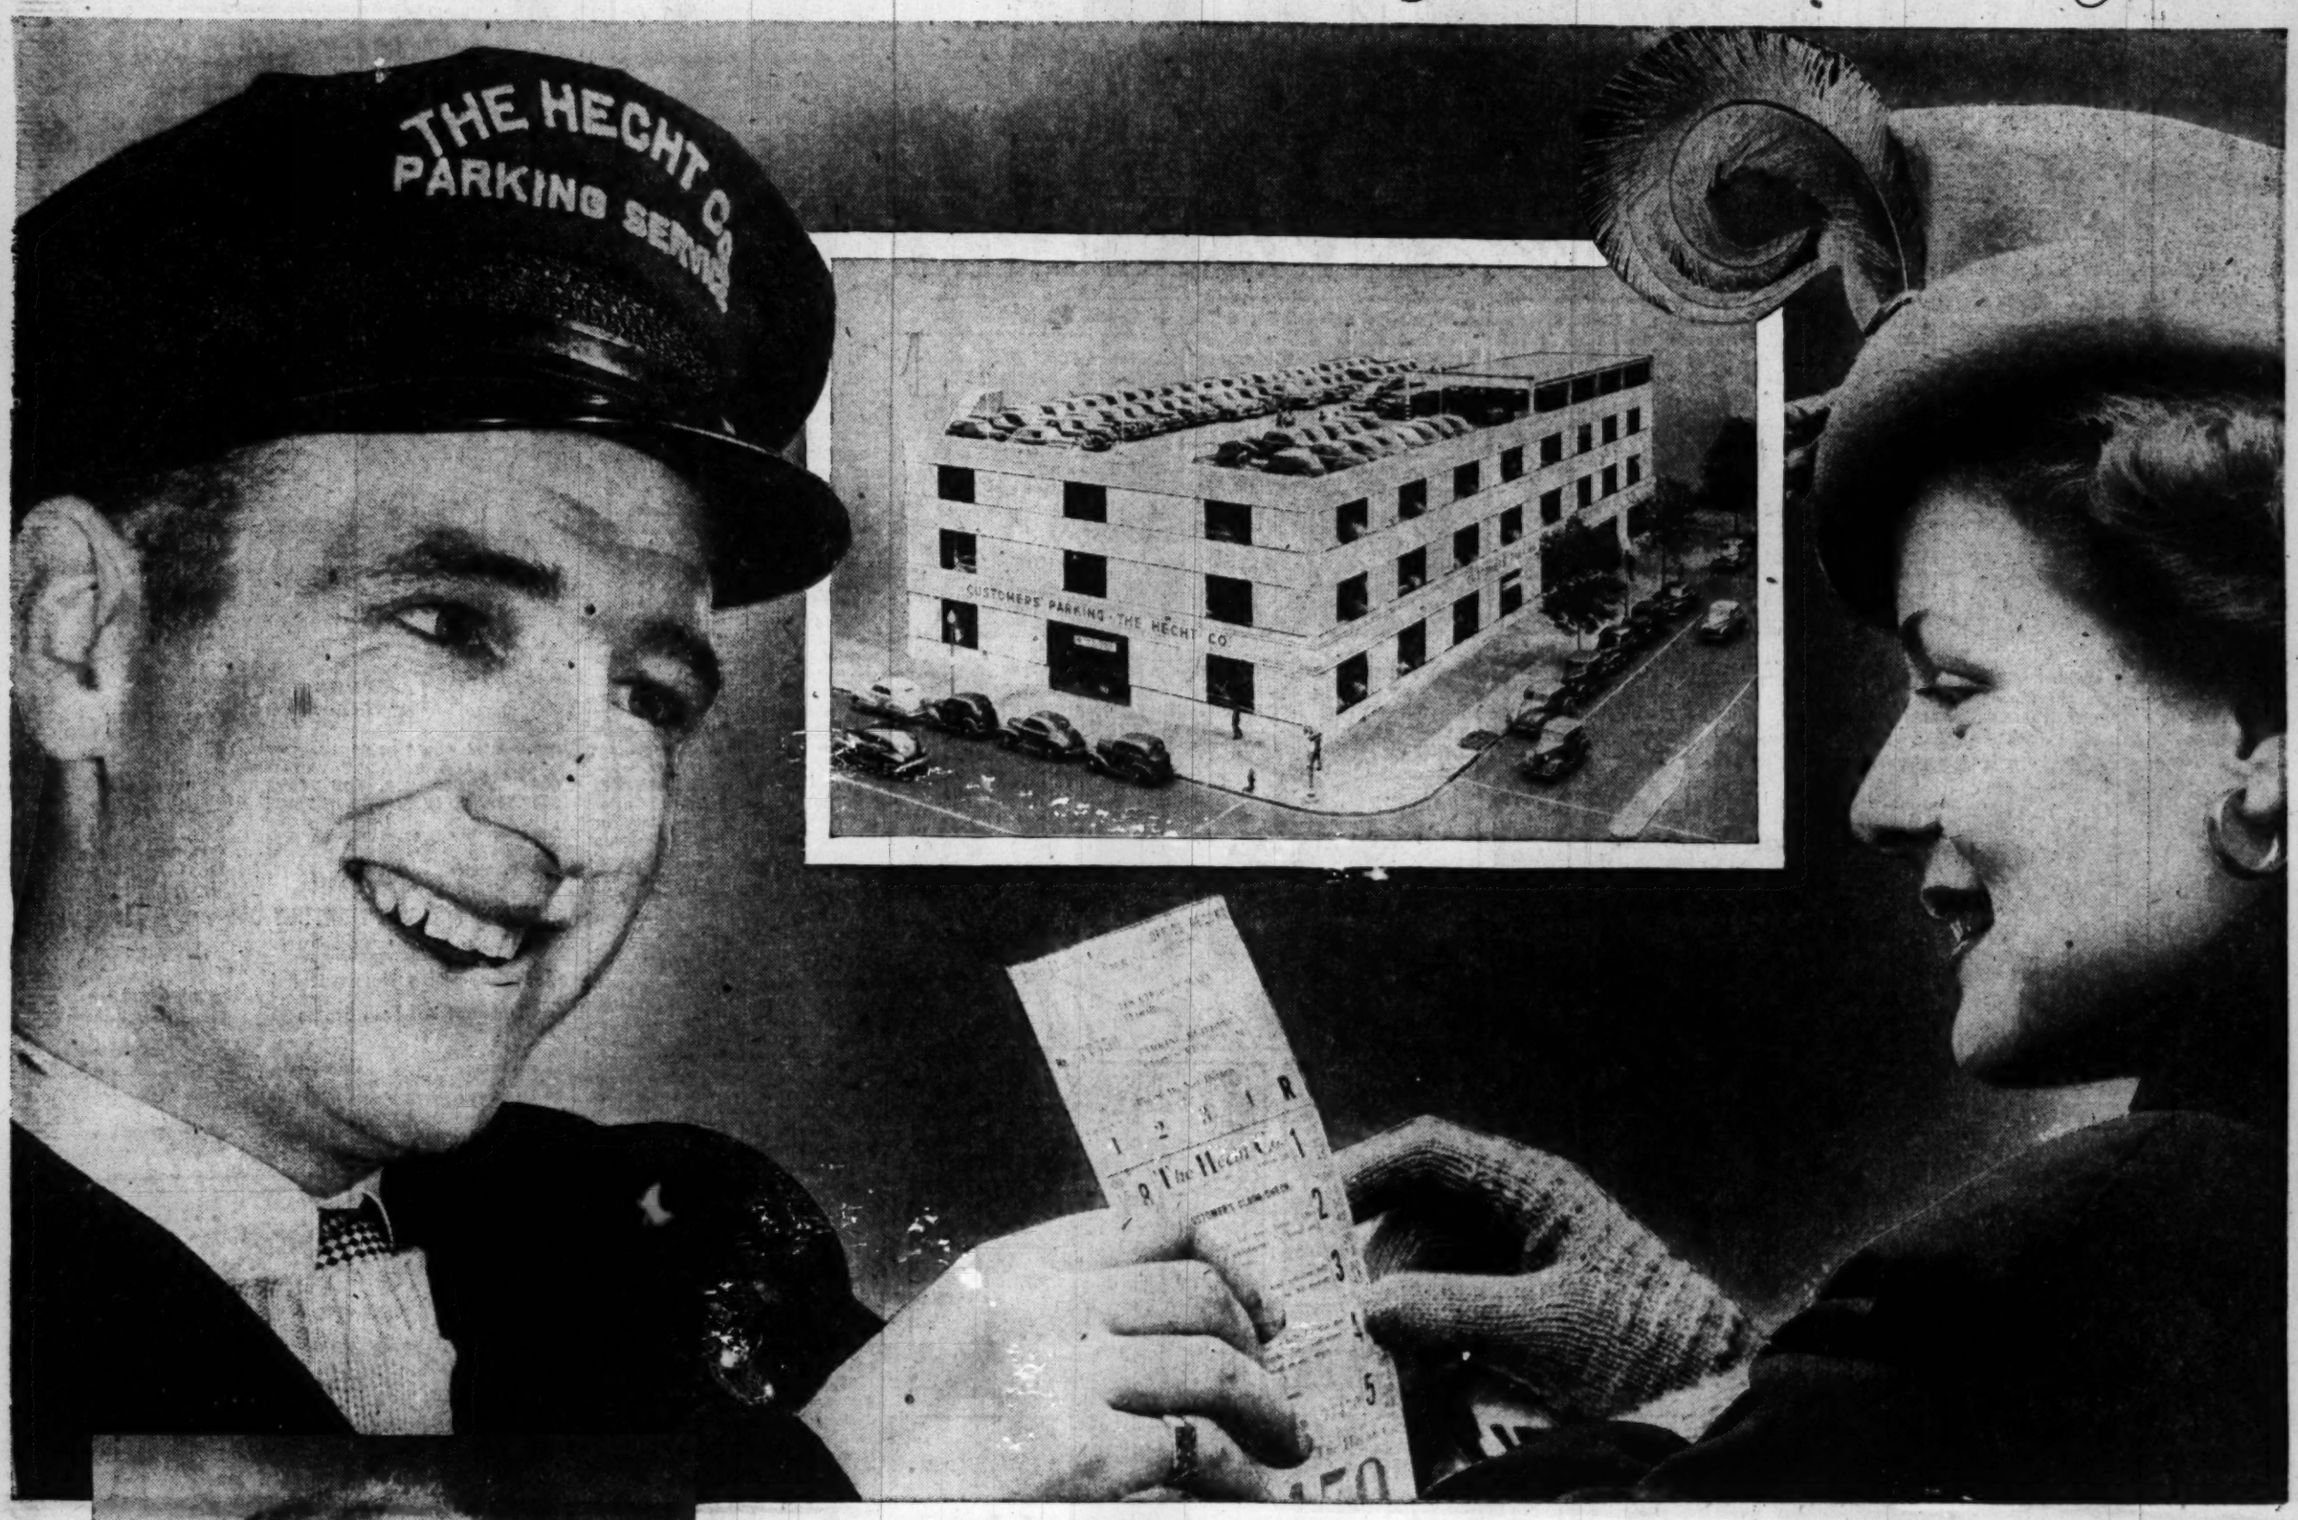
Number 3 in a Series... Hecht Co. Personalities in the News



J. DONALD CASKEY hails from Baltimore, Maryland. He left his native city 3 years ago to explore new horizons. That's when he came to Washington and applied for the Parking Building Superintendent's position then open at The Hecht Co. He's been greeting motorist-shoppers at the F Street entrance ever since. Don has been in the parking business for 14 years, having managed a service garage and supervised the parking operations of a large Baltimore organization. His present job entails the complete supervision of The Hecht Co. Parking Building. Rain or shine, Don or one of his 12 assistants is always on hand to greet you at our parking entrance!

I parking ticket people welcome...

SAYS J. DONALD CASKEY, PARKING BUILDING SUPERINTENDENT, THE HECHT CO.

"This may sound like a 'Believe it or not,' but we've handed out over 3,600,000 parking tickets since 1937 . . . and what's more, motorists welcome them. Because," says Mr. Caskey, "these parking checks represent peace-of-mind to Hecht Co. shoppers. Why, for the year 1948 alone, over 301,000 cars found their way in and out of our huge parking building. And believe me, that's a lot of metal, upholstery and gasoline to be housed in the downtown business district of a large city. Especially when you consider that 301,000 cars represents more than twice as many cars as there are in the entire District of Columbia. (Motor Vehicle registration for 1948 was 145,828.) I've been doing some research since I've been on this job, and I learned that when The Hecht Co. built their parking building it was one of the first structures of its kind in the country. The modern design was chosen to enhance the beauty of the city . . . the utilitarian construction to afford us maximum parking facilities and speedy efficient service. It is estimated that a customer spends less than 5 minutes of his shopping time parking and leaving the parking building. And with the downtown parking situation what it is, this low cost shopping service for Hecht Co. patrons has received the praises of traffic officials and the District citizenry alike. Now you might ask, why should a department store go into the parking lot business? The answer is simply this. For years the problems of downtown parking have challenged the existence of a convenient, centralized shopping district for Washington. And so The Hecht Co. met this challenge in 1937 with not only an eye to the then present problem, but recognizing and planning for the needs of the future. Today The Hecht Co. parking building stands as an accepted symbol of service to the people of Washington. No wonder so many customers take advantage of this convenience," says Mr. Caskey.
